The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
William Stone

[redacted]

From: Virginia Manuel <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 21:53:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Virginia Manuel
Houston, TX

From: Sheila Ward <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 21:57:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Sheila Ward
San Juan, PR

From: Christina E Dickson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 22:00:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Christina E Dickson
Black Mountain, NC

From: Lauren Warner <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 22:06:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lauren Warner
Peterborough, NH

From: Debra Reuter <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 22:12:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Debra Reuter
Vacaville, CA

From: Gerald Mackey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 22:23:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Gerald Mackey
Gainesboro, TN

From: Carol Mackey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 22:24:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Carol Mackey
Gainesboro, TN

From: Michael Wallens <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 22:24:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Michael Wallens
Alpine, TX

From: Diana Talbott <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 22:27:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Diana Talbott
FIRCREST, WA

From: Carol Book <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 22:32:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Carol Book
York, PA

From: Lizann Keyes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 22:38:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lizann Keyes
Santa Cruz, CA

From: Ruth Wells <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 22:58:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Ruth Wells
Charlotte, NC

From: moses hamilton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 23:05:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
moses hamilton
Pahoa, HI

From: Bob ONeil <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 23:16:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Bob ONeil
Rumford, RI

From: Donna Brown <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 23:29:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Donna Brown
Portland, OR

From: Denise Galbo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 23:30:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Denise Galbo

[redacted]

From: Dyron Bush <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 23:38:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Dyron Bush
[redacted]

From: Matthew Hall <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 23:40:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Matthew Hall
Lexington, KY

From: Evelyn Hanssen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 23:45:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Evelyn Hanssen
Denver, CO

From: Sherry Bupp <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Tue, 07 Jul 2026 23:57:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

As a lifelong Catholic Christian, who has deep respect and love for people who follow Jewish, Muslim, Buddhist, and other faith traditions - or no faith tradition - I urge the Religious Liberty Commission to ensure their final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sherry Bupp
[redacted]

From: Janet Prince <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 00:00:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Janet Prince
Nashua, NH

From: Michael Wallace <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 00:07:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Michael Wallace
Sarasota, FL

From: Sherry Bupp <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 00:13:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Sherry Bupp
Redmond, WA

From: Heather Campbell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 00:26:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Heather Campbell
Benicia, CA

From: Pamela Gallegos <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 00:56:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Pamela Gallegos
Madison, WI

From: Sona Rejebian <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 00:56:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Sona Rejebian
Evanston, IL

From: Holly Hall <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 01:53:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Holly Hall
Temecula, CA

From: Jennifer VerHelst <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 02:07:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jennifer VerHelst
Holland, MI

From: Jay Hufton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 02:33:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jay Hufton

[redacted]

From: Amy Bakken <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 04:00:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Amy Bakken
[redacted]

From: Gulshan Oomerjee <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 04:00:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Gulshan Oomerjee
Simi Valley, CA

From: Edward Main <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 05:56:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please include in the Religious Liberty Commission's final report the vital role that church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives each American the right to practice any religion, or no religion, as long as they do not harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for every American, religious and nonreligious alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families, not government officials, can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Edward Main

[redacted]

From: Osa Moody <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 06:00:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Osa Moody
Wentzville, MO

From: Lynde Uihlein <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 06:52:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lynde Uihlein
Milwaukee, WI

From: Katherine Ware <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 07:24:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Katherine Ware
Lewes, DE

From: Liljana Baddour <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 08:11:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

Even as a conservative, I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Liljana Baddour
Rockford, IL

From: Janis Nicolosi-Endo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 08:19:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. This commission is thinly veiling an attempt to establish a Christian theocracy. Although I practice Buddhism, I believe my faith is personal & should not impose or infringe on others with their beliefs.
As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Janis Nicolosi-Endo
Fair Lawn, NJ

From: Andrea Peacock <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 08:34:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

Our Founding Fathers held a diverse range of religious beliefs, almost all came from Protestant backgrounds.

Regardless of their personal faith, the Founders recognized the dangers of religious persecution. Consequently, they established the United States as a secular republic and intentionally omitted references to any deity in the U.S. Constitution. The First Amendment explicitly protects the free exercise of religion and prohibits a national state church.

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all. This is religious persecution.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Andrea Peacock
Hardeeville, SC

From: Don Deakins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 08:48:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Religious superstition has no place in government.

Sincerely,
Don Deakins

From: Liz Mikre <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 08:48:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

As an atheist, I have the right to my beliefs.

And I do not want Christian sharia law in this country

Sincerely,
Liz Mikre

[redacted]

From: Ralph Weinberger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 08:59:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ralph Weinberger

[redacted]

From: Augusta Rosenauer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 08:59:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Augusta Rosenauer
naples, FL

From: Tony Stornello <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 09:07:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Tony Stornello

[redacted]

From: Rose Hawley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 09:26:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I oppose the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission.

Since the Religious Liberty Commission only considers one religion worth protecting, it forces the rest of us to accept the following:

A philosophical interpretation of ancient bible stories that have been debated, disputed and rewritten countless times and muddled by thousands of translations.

…And, to my deep distress, the current interpretation focuses on fear, anger and revenge… leaving out empathy, compassion and love of neighbor.

A world without empathy, compassion and love is not a world to put into policy.

Respectfully,
Rose Hawley
Bonita Springs, FL

From: Anthony Toft <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 09:40:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The First Amendment demands absolute protection of church-state separation—and my religious freedom depends on it.

This isn't abstract principle. This is MY constitutional shield. As a British national and U.S. Green Card holder, I rely on these protections every bit as much as any citizen. Without genuine separation of church and state, I—as a Humanist—are directly vulnerable to government-imposed religious orthodoxy.

The First Amendment's Establishment Clause forbids government from:

Imposing religious beliefs on ANY person within U.S. jurisdiction
Favoring one faith over another
Compelling participation in prayer or religious observance
Using taxpayer funds to advance religious doctrines
For Humanists specifically, church-state separation means:

MY beliefs deserve equal respect under law—not second-class status beneath "traditional" religions
Public schools must remain free of coercive prayer—my children won't be marginalized or pressured to conform to majority faiths
Tax dollars cannot subsidize religions that may discriminate against me—including faith communities that reject secular philosophies or Satanism
Government cannot privilege "mainstream" religion while dismissing Humanism as unworthy of constitutional protection
Church-state separation is MY firewall against discrimination. It guarantees that when I walk into a classroom, a courthouse, or participate in civic life—I answer to my own conscience, not to legislators' theological preferences. As a permanent resident, I am equally entitled to these protections.

The First Amendment does not ask citizenship. It guarantees me—the Humanist, the Satanist, the atheist, the minority believer, the immigrant—equal standing before the law. Any erosion of this separation is an erosion of MY freedom.

Religious Liberty means ALL liberty—including mine.

Sincerely,
Anthony Toft

[redacted]

From: Maia Rose <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 09:49:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Maia Rose
Lander, WY

From: Anya Wasilenski <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 09:52:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As a Christian who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

Christianity calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity, where I love my neighbor like myself. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Anya Wasilenski
Ann Arbor, MI

From: J Gary Nelson <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 09:52:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. J Gary Nelson

PII
PII

From: Chris Wilstein <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 10:09:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Chris Wilstein

[redacted]

From: Paula Maiorano <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 10:11:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Paula Maiorano
WIlmington, DE

From: Dorothy Simonis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 10:31:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Dorothy Simonis
Hudson, OH

From: Beth DuBois <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 10:37:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Beth DuBois
Fayetteville, NY

From: Carol White <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 10:47:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Carol White
Scottsboro, AL

From: Martha Hill <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 10:48:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Martha Hill
Charleston, WV

From: Brian Cook <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 11:07:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Brian Cook
[redacted]

From: Peter Kazeck <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 11:10:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

One of the reasons our country was founded was to make sure every citizen had religious Freedom !!! That doesnt mean we were explicitly a Christian nation !!! Freedom to practice any religion or -NO- religion at all.

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Peter Kazeck
Palm Bay, FL

From: Samantha Demers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 11:13:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. This has never been a Christian nation. Church and state must remain separate.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Samantha Demers
[redacted]

From: Kay Hawley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 11:18:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Kay Hawley
Wichita, KS

From: Carolyn Wates <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 11:28:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Carolyn Wates
Springer, OK

From: Lisa Hochman <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 11:32:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lisa Hochman

PII
PII

From: Marty Grundy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 11:40:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

As a white Christian citizen I strongly oppose the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. I believe deeply there is Light in every person and therefore I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My religious faith calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to work to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Marty Grundy
needham, MA

From: Darla Wilson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 12:13:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Darla Wilson

[redacted]

From: Linda Fischer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 12:25:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Linda Fischer
Centennial, CO

From: Lois Upham <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 12:43:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report. (See bottom of this message for personal comment.)

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

PERSONAL COMMENT:
As a lifelong Christian, I believe that Jesus called us to treat all people equally and to be generious in our acceptance of others--even folks whose religious traditions are different from our own. This generosity was enshrined in our Constitution calling for the separation of Church and State - thus allowing for the free worship by citizens of whatever belief system they embrace. Please do NOT destroy this freedom by imposing political limits upon it.

Respectfully,
Lois Upham
Covington, GA

From: Eugene Wilson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 12:44:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

The appointed members of your Commission represent only one view of their own faith, and I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report. The report is an example of Religious Extremism and must NOT be allowed to be published. It will not be a legitimate document to a majority of our United States citizens.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of extreme religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all. I suggest the Commission review the United States Constitution and the Declaration of Independence before proceeding. This report breaches both!!

My belief system and my God calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism as desired by the Founders of our great Nation, not a single narrow politically-driven perspective that would privilege a select few. If approved, Commission members will have done a disservice to our one God, and to the intent of the Founders of our Great Nation.

Respectfully,
Eugene Wilson
Shawnee, KS

From: Marc Reynolds <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 13:02:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Marc Reynolds

[redacted]

From: Linda Bolduan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 13:20:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Linda Bolduan
Lake Oswego, OR

From: Denyse Corrado <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 13:27:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Religion should not be used a political tool!

Sincerely,
Denyse Corrado

PII
PII

From: Ruth Humes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 13:44:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Ruth Humes
El Mirage, AZ

From: Robert Turk <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 13:58:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Robert Turk

PII PII

From: Paula Jackson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 14:06:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

As an ordained Christian minister, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing the draft report issued by the "Religious Liberty Commission."

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination against people of minority beliefs, and would ultimately undermine religious liberty itself.

This report shows nothing like the religious freedom envisioned in the Constitution but rather, it establishes favor for a narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Paula Jackson
CINCINNATI, OH

From: Lois Ann Macleod Lois Ann Macleod <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 14:13:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lois Ann Macleod Lois Ann Macleod
GRAPEVIEW, WA

From: William Insley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 14:14:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
William Insley
Kettering, OH

From: Kaitlyn Ault <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 14:44:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am a lifelong Christian stay-at-home mother, living in a rural community. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kaitlyn Ault

[redacted]

From: David Pack <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 14:45:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission.

The United States IS NOT A CHRISTIAN NATION. Has the commission ever read the first amendment to the U.S. constitution? It says, "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." Apparently not!

Christian nationalism is anti-Biblical heresy that specifically leads people to ignore what Jesus Christ asks them to do. Go read Matthew 25: 31-46 while you approve policies to take food and housing away from those who need it.

I also commend Micah 6:8 to you - "He has told you, human one, what is good and what the Lord requires from you: to do justice, embrace faithful love, and walk humbly with your God." You stand against all three of these requirements, supporting unjust detention policies, spreading hate, and acting with enormous arrogance consistently.

So get off of your so-called Christian high horse. You are clueless about Christ asks of us!

Respectfully,
David Pack
Lenexa, KS

From: James Gerber <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 14:49:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The United States was built on the promise of a secular government, and has only grown stronger over 250+ plus years because of that. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. James Gerber

[redacted]

From: Michael Bolles <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 14:54:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

In the 17th century - more than 100 years before our nation's founding - my ancestors came to these shores in search of true religious liberty. As Pilgrims, my ancestors were subjected to religious persecution in Europe because of their beliefs. Due to their experience and those of countless others, one of our nation's founding principles has been freedom of religion as enshrined in the US Constitution's First Amendment. This allows all Americans to worship whatever religion they choose.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Michael Bolles
Hackensack, NJ

From: Reynold Soucy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 15:09:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Reynold Soucy

[redacted]

From: Sandra Briggs <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 15:12:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Sandra Briggs
Sandy, UT

From: Melissa Maxson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 15:14:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Melissa Maxson
[redacted]

From: David Rose <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 15:17:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
David Rose
Lakewood, NJ

From: Henrietta Rogers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 15:22:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Henrietta Rogers
Farmington, MI

From: J Calvin Smith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 15:46:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Too many pastors work with pundits and politicians, their pockets padded by the prosperous who benefit from their assistance in machinations that buy our government out from under benefiting All Of Us, in the favor of a privileged few. They have contributed for decades or centuries to a Long Game whose symptoms include sexism, racism, anti-intellectualism, and anti-environmentalism.

And some of them do it in the Holiest of Names.

It needs to stop. Pastors take no Federal oath, and it shows. They and their religious dogma and zeal have no place in our government. Christian Nationalism is wrong-headed and hurts both Church and State.

Sincerely,
J Calvin Smith

[redacted]

From: jill harmer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 16:08:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Soon ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
ms jill harmer
[redacted]

From: Jerrie Drinkwine <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 16:16:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Americans do value church-state separation. It does make our country stronger, and we will not tolerate it being erased by a dubious commission.

Church-state separation matters to me because I am a devoted Christian that wants my personal beliefs out of politics. I see that Chrisianity is be distorted and manipulated at the whims of politicians. Also, as a Christian and history teacher, I believe everyone has a right to their own beliefs no matter what religion or no religion at all. On the 250th anniversary of American independence, we all need to protect this pillar of our democracy.

Sincerely,

Jerrie Drinkwine

Sincerely,
Ms. Jerrie Drinkwine
[redacted]

From: Harry White <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 17:03:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am very concerned about the report being issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. It is clearly biased in favor of a "Christian Nationalism" perspective on American history. We need to maintain a separation of Church and State! Americans have freedom of religion. This report, if implemented, would restrict our freedoms, and allow government to use its considerable power to advocate for a religion, especially for Christian Nationalism.

Please, don't go against the wishes of our Founding Fathers. Because of the separation of church and state, we have the right to practice any religion, or no religion, as long as we don't harm others. Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another.

Please, keep coercive prayer out of our classrooms! Don't let Christian Nationalist government entities influence people using the power of government. Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

We need to keep Religion out of Government, and Government out of Religion. Houses of worship should be free from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference. Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone. The government must serve ALL people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Harry White

[redacted]

From: Suzanne J Dickson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 17:03:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Suzanne J Dickson
Wilmington, NC

From: Andrea Mason <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 17:10:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I strongly urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Protect people's rights to believe in what they want, even if it is to believe in no religion.

Respectfully,
Andrea Mason
Hawthorne, FL

From: Charles A Adelman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 17:18:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few. My religion teaches me that we are all G-D's children and that he loves all his children equally. It also teaches that we mortals are not qualified to sit in judgment of our fellow humans; only G-D knows all the facts and can truly judge us. This country was not founded as a "Christian" nation; it was intended to be a secular nation where all are free to develop their own relationship with their creator  without government interference.

Respectfully,
Charles A Adelman
Los Angeles, CA

From: Todd Boerger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 17:23:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Todd Boerger
Hattiesburg, MS

From: Donald Hudson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 18:15:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs or favor one religion. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government work best when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that parents can make their own decisions about religion and religious education. Baptists believe that belief and worship of God is meaningless if our members do not have free will to make their own choice. Please protect parents and churches from religious direction from our government.

Sincerely,
Donald Hudson

From: Ares Ridenour <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 18:42:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Ares Ridenour
[redacted]

From: Marguerite Huey Larson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 19:22:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Marguerite Huey Larson
Norman, OK

From: Scott Wasserman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 19:31:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate. There never was a state religion in this country and there never should be.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Scott Wasserman

[redacted]

From: Andrea Yang <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 19:54:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Andrea Yang

[redacted]

From: Ilene Mondschein <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 19:58:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Miss Ilene Mondschein

[redacted]

From: Joseph koalska <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 20:02:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Joseph koalska

[redacted]

From: John Keevert <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 20:34:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As a Unitarian Universalist who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I require the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report. Our country was founded on freedom of and from religion, with explicit separation of church and state. to the benefit of both. Of course individuals are guided by their beliefs, but there should never be an official religion.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
John Keevert
Rochester, NY

From: Antonia Darragh <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 20:37:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

I feel obligated to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. I want to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Antonia Darragh
La Jolla, CA

From: Brooke Lindsay <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 21:05:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

In her final opinion as a Supreme Court justice in 2005, Sandra Day O'Connor, a judicial conservative, reflected on the importance of church-state separation to guarantee full religious freedom. "The First Amendment expresses our Nation's fundamental commitment to religious liberty by means of two provisions – one protecting the free exercise of religion, the other barring establishment of religion." She concluded with a challenge: "Those who would renegotiate the boundaries between church and state must therefore answer a difficult question: Why would we trade a system that has served us so well for one that has served others so poorly?"

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Brooke Lindsay

[redacted]

From: Linda Sentz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 21:07:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

THE FOUNDING FATHERS KNEW VERY WELL WHAT HAPPENS WHEN RELIGION AND GOVERNMENT UNITE AND IT'S NEVER A GOOD THING FOR EITHER OF THEM. EUROPE SPENT HUNDREDS OF YEARS AT WAR BECAUSE OF IT!

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Linda Sentz
Champlin, MN

From: Mary Pfeifer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 21:21:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I'm submitting this comment to express my strong opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. I believe every person deserves to be treated with dignity, compassion, and respect, and I urge the Commission to substantially revise this report before it is finalized.

While this report claims to protect religious liberty, I believe it does the opposite. It elevates one narrow set of religious beliefs while failing to protect the rights, safety, and freedoms of people who hold different beliefs or no religious beliefs at all. Religious freedom should never be used as a justification to limit someone else's civil rights, healthcare, education, or ability to participate equally in society.

My values call me to care for my neighbors, stand up for vulnerable people, and support a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity under the law. I ask the Commission to reject recommendations that could enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, or employment. A report about religious liberty should protect the freedom of all people, not advance one politically driven interpretation at the expense of others. I hope the final report reflects genuine religious pluralism, fairness, and equal protection for everyone.

Respectfully,
Mary Pfeifer
Louisville, KY

From: Corinne Smith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 21:23:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Corinne Smith
Talkeetna, AK

From: Robert Kriesel <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 21:28:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Robert Kriesel
West Lakeland, MN

From: Constance Dryden <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 21:30:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Constance Dryden
Bridgeton, MO

From: Melissa Kahn <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 21:34:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Melissa Kahn
Versailles, KY

From: Stephen Fitch <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 21:41:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Stephen Fitch
Thousand Oaks, CA

From: Raymond Collins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 22:02:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Raymond Collins
Miami, FL

From: William Hale <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 22:15:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
William Hale
San Leandro, CA

From: Sean McShee <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 22:22:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Sean McShee
FORT LAUDERDALE, FL

From: barbara baraw <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 22:35:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

This statement is to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom allows for civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

Through my belief system I am called to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. I am called to help create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment which ultimately undermine religious freedom itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
barbara baraw
Stowe, VT

From: Kaye Kittredge <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 22:43:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. I reject the report's recommendations and urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all. Christian Nationalism is a narrow slice of this country's spiritual diversity and has no place in the workings of a fair and just nation.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Kaye Kittredge
North Reading, MA

From: Jack Stafford <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 22:44:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jack Stafford

[redacted]

From: Carla Ficke <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 23:16:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As a clergy person & someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My Christian belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Carla Ficke
Denver, CO

From: Jennifer Hobbs <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 23:20:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jennifer Hobbs
Newark, DE

From: Susan Dennis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 23:27:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

To disregard this very basic freedom is a disgraceful scar on democracy as we celebrate 250 years.

Respectfully,
Susan Dennis
Phillipsburg, NJ

From: Janet Hedgepath <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 23:43:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Janet Hedgepath
Vancouver, WA

From: Loisj Zeidman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 23:44:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Loisj Zeidman
[redacted]

From: Jon Hauxwell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 08 Jul 2026 23:45:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

As an American citizen, I'm concerned by recent political statements which devalue the church-state separation enacted by our nation's founders. I don't want to see the weight of the state's power privileging religious sentiments over those favored by non-religious taxpayers.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Jon Hauxwell
[redacted]

From: Aaron Chase <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 00:43:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Aaron Chase
York, ME

From: Aaron Chase <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 01:03:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Aaron Chase

[redacted]

From: Brandi Kilmer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 04:53:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Brandi Kilmer
Chantilly, VA

From: richard codding <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 08:44:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
richard codding
Rochester, NY

From: Karen Barker <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 09:05:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

As a Unitarian universalist, I believe that religious freedom is a crucial part of what it means to be a citizen of the United States of America. It is not appropriate, and does not align with the wishes of our founders or the current people of this country, to limit religious beliefs to only one way of thinking. We are a pluralistic and open-minded society.

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Karen Barker
Newark, DE

From: Catherine Caron <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 09:29:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission and I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

I have worked for interfaith/inter-religious dialogue and understanding in Spokane as director of the Interfaith Council and though I have retired from that work I am absolutely convinced, now more than ever, that those of us who hold any authority must work to protect religious groups and other groups of people who are being maligned by current lies and misrepresentation being perpetrated in our nation, specifically a Christian fundamentalist ideology that perceives itself as the only correct path for living. I myself am a Catholic Christian, and I'm willing to live side-by-side with other Christian groups, but I am not willing to let one of those Christian groups, my own, or any other, decide that it should holds ultimate truth. God, by whatever name, is far more complex than one single ideology can describe. And human beings and the multiple cultures and religious traditions into which we are born and educated are far more complex and beautiful than can be described or guided by a single religious ideology.

The report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission claims to protect religious liberty, but it absolutely does not do so. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Catherine Caron
Spokane, WA

From: Caroline Constantine <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 09:29:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all. I find many religions to be interesting and informative about my neighbors and people all over the country.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Caroline Constantine
Denver, CO

From: Steven Woolley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 10:41:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

Grace and peace to you,
Speaking as a priest in The Episcopal Church, I am deeply disappointed by the draft report of the Religious Liberty Commission. It has little to do with America's commitment to religious freedom as guaranteed by the First Amendment to the Constitution. Instead, it appears to privilege one particular expression of Christianity, principally what is often described as conservative evangelicalism, at the expense of the rich diversity of Christian traditions in this country.
I am especially concerned by any proposal that would permit churches to contribute financially to political campaigns or publicly endorse political candidates. Individual Christians have both the right and the moral responsibility to become informed voters and are free to support or oppose candidates as conscience dictates. Those rights, however, should not be extended to congregations or denominations acting as institutions.
I am also troubled by recommendations that would expand the use of school vouchers for parochial schools. As a strong supporter of public education, I believe voucher programs divert public funds needed to provide the highest quality education possible in our public schools, particularly those serving communities with the greatest needs. The role of magnet schools and school choice within the public school system is an entirely different issue and beyond the scope of these comments.
Finally, any movement toward Christian nationalism is utterly incompatible with orthodox Christianity. The age when the religion of the prince determined the religion of the people, whether they embraced it or not, ended long ago. Although a majority of Americans may identify as Christians of one tradition or another, the United States is not, and never has been, a Christian nation in any constitutional sense. To become one would inevitably diminish the religious liberty of those who profess other faiths—or no faith at all—and would be contrary to both the spirit and the letter of the Constitution.
Taken as a whole, the draft report gives the impression that the Commission was never primarily concerned with strengthening religious liberty for all Americans. Rather, it appears to advance a particular ideological agenda. In its present form, it reads less like an objective study with thoughtful recommendations than an advocacy document promoting a predetermined conclusion.
Yours in Christ's service,
The Rev. Steven Woolley Williamsburg, Virginia

Respectfully,
Steven Woolley
Williamsburg, VA

From: Carole Menninger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 11:06:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am 79 years old and have always maintained that the separation of religion and state should be the law of the land!

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Carole Menninger

[redacted]

From: Mary Pat Burns <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 11:11:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My Catholic faith calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors; protect all God's people. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Mary Pat Burns
Rocky River, OH

From: Mildred Meyer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 11:12:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission.

Religious freedom means freedom for everyone.

Respectfully,
Mildred Meyer
New Paltz, NY

From: Neve Mazique-Bianco <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 11:15:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As a person of faith who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Neve Mazique-Bianco
Hampton, NJ

From: Michael DeLoye <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 11:37:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

- Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

- Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

- Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

- Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

- Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

- Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

From the founding of our country, church-state separation has been vital to the progress of our nation. Allowing religion to interfere with governmental activities is not good for religious groups or the country.

Sincerely,
Michael DeLoye

[redacted]

From: Gail Otis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 11:48:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Gail Otis
Plymouth, MA

From: Connie Miatech <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 11:49:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Connie Miatech
Nevada City, CA

From: Herbert Ogden <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 12:02:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

The draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission proposes something un-American. As someone who believes deeply in religious freedom and the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations.

The report says it protects religious liberty, but it does the opposite. It favors one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

As a Unitarian Universalist I try to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors and create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. Please reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. The report should reflect genuine religious pluralism. It should privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Herbert Ogden
Rutland, VT

From: Katarina Sousa <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 12:16:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Katarina Sousa

[redacted]

From: Lisa Livelybrooks <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 12:18:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lisa Livelybrooks
Veneta, OR

From: Carrie Gleason <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 12:20:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Carrie Gleason
Bennett, CO

From: Ellen Isley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 12:31:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Ellen Isley
Scituate, MA

From: Gus Gonzales <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 12:34:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Gus Gonzales
Duncanville, TX

From: Cynthia Lapp <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 12:36:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As a Christian pastor, I believe deeply in the dignity of every person, that all are created in God's image. The Commission must substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report or we will not truly have religious liberty.

While this report claims to protect religious liberty, it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

As a Mennonite, my ancestors came to this country because they were seeking freedom of religion. Generations later, I still believe in that freedom for all religions, not just mine. My faith invites, indeed commands, me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of ALL my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few Christians of a certain stripe.

Respectfully,
Cynthia Lapp
Hyattsville, MD

From: Linda Lewis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 12:55:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Linda Lewis
Venice, FL

From: David Rush <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 12:57:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr David Rush

[redacted]

From: Ryan Keane <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 12:59:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Ryan Keane
Marlborough, MA

From: Barbara Rocha <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 13:03:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

We cannot stand strong, we cannot be the democracy our founders envisioned if we do not embrace each person's right to love the God of their choice or not love any God at all. We erode all our freedoms when we opt to make ourselves the arbiters of how people worship.

Christianity means we follow Christ. There is nothing in this position that honors the teachings of Christ. "Love thy neighbor as thyself" is just one of the many directives that point in this direction. And the Golden Rule is certainly not being applied here.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Barbara Rocha
Desert Hot Springs, CA

From: michael septimus <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 13:12:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
michael septimus
kelayres, PA

From: Linda Gertenbach <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 13:34:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

As an United Methodist clergywoman, I am guided by the Social Principles of the United Methodist Church when making decisions in the public sphere. "Our involvement in political systems is rooted in the gospel imperative to love our neighbors, to do justice and to care for the vulnerable. . .we acknowledge that love requires responsible political action and engagement aimed at the betterment of society and the promotion of the common good. ..We affirm that both church and state have vital and distinct roles to play in relation to the larger society . . .we generally affirm the independence and integrity of both insitutions and we advocate for a relationship of mutual respect in which neither institution seeks to dominate or unduly influence the other. . We urge governments, businesses, churches and other institutions in civil society to take concerted action to preserve and protect the rights of all religious people. We object any form of discrimination and intolerance toward religious minorities. . .We endorse the right of all religious people to practice their faith, free from unjustified and unnecessary legal, political and financial restraints.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Linda Gertenbach
Lakewood, CO

From: Sandra Miller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 13:40:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Sandra Miller
Greenbelt, MD

From: Richard Beach <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 13:59:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Richard Beach

[redacted]

From: Susan McBain <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 14:06:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

As my minister said in her sermon last Sunday, "This report is heresy."

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Susan McBain
Woodinville, WA

From: Kathy Hayes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 14:24:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

I believe in Jesus and I believe in separation of Church and state.

Respectfully,
Kathy Hayes
Gaston, OR

From: Bonnie Abrahamson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 14:57:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Bonnie Abrahamson
Vero Beach, FL

From: Bob Rossi <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 15:24:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am in the Lay Servant Ministry program in my Methodist church where I am associated with a foodbank ministry, a covenant group that I founded, and community ministries. I have spent much of my life serving others on the basis of my belief in God and my wider faith perspective that I believe is Scripturally sound.

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all. This is not Scripturally sound.

My God calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors as a defining act or demonstration of His love which I have no claim to except through His mercy. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity, once more as a demostration of God's love for all. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately point more people to atheism and even undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few. I am with Christ, not Herod.

Respectfully,
Bob Rossi
Salem, OR

From: Joseph Hample <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 15:25:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Joseph Hample
Morgantown, WV

From: Kathleen L Lundy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 15:28:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Kathleen L Lundy
Salt Lake City, UT

From: Gethin Wied <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 15:34:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief in Jesus Christ and his call to love others regardless of who they are compels me to support the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. My baptismal vows as a Christian call on me to promote the dignity of every human being. As a member of the clergy, I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Gethin Wied
SHEPHERDSTOWN, WV

From: Colleen Harshbarger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 15:37:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, who was raised Catholic, with a belief in the common humanity of all people, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. That's not consistent with the teachings of Jesus. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief as a  Christian calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Colleen Harshbarger
Morgantown, WV

From: Cara Vasquez <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 15:38:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Cara Vasquez

[redacted]

From: Joe Webb <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 15:44:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Joe Webb
Williamstown, WV

From: Dean Knight <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 15:58:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dean Knight

[redacted]

From: Denise Wise <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 16:17:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Denise Wise
Norwood, MA

From: Stephen Peck <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 16:22:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Stephen Peck
Washington, WV

From: Kenneth Giunta <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 16:43:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate. Nor should any member of the judiciary in the United States render legal decisions through the lens of their faith beliefs. They must leave those beliefs at the door and base their judgements from the bench solely on the law.

The United States is a secular republic, based on its Constitution and a commitment to the rule of laws that govern us. This has served all of us well these past 250 years. What is being proposed by the Religious Liberty Commission is antithetical to our nation's history, the Constitution and to the well documented and agreed understanding of the intent of our forefathers that we are a democratic republic founded and governed upon laws that protect the many and not ruled by the individual religious beliefs of a few.

Sincerely,
Mr. Kenneth Giunta

[redacted]

From: Tranee McDonald <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 16:46:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Tranee McDonald
Washington, DC

From: Virginia Snider <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 16:50:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Virginia Snider
Buffalo, NY

From: Greg Arens <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 16:56:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Greg Arens

[redacted]

From: Pamela Hinrichs <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:20:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

I am a Christian, a follower of Christ. That is my choice!! It is not my job to police other peoples beliefs! It is not my job to force my faith or my version of my Christianity on others and I don't want others to force their Christian beliefs on me. God doesn't want that or need us to do that. That is not God's will.

Sincerely,
Pamela Hinrichs

[redacted]

From: Bret Preston <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:29:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. The findings and recommendations, based upon my upbringing and Christian faith, do not represent religious liberty. It appears to be a document based upon anything but the teachings of the Bible to do justice, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with God. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Bret Preston
South Charleston, WV

From: Reed Miller <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:32:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Reed Miller

PII
PII

From: Dana Bennett <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:32:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dana Bennett

[redacted]

From: Sara Brumfield <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:32:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Sara Brumfield

[redacted]

From: Derek Binelli <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:32:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Derek Binelli
[redacted]

From: Rebecca McBryar <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:32:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rebecca McBryar

[redacted]

From: Nancy Loftin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:32:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nancy Loftin

[redacted]

From: Joan Maples <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:32:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rev. Joan Maples
[redacted]

From: Linda A Eastman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:32:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Linda A Eastman

[redacted]

From: Isaac Lee II <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:33:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Isaac Lee II

[redacted]

From: Mark Myers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:33:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mark Myers

[redacted]

From: Nancy Berg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:33:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Nancy Berg

[redacted]

From: Linda Mullaney <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:33:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Linda Mullaney

[redacted]

From: Keith Hillkirk <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:33:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Keith Hillkirk

[redacted]

From: Salvatore Ninfo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:34:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Salvatore Ninfo

[redacted]

From: Nan Brunskill <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:34:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Nan Brunskill
[redacted]

From: Jerry Bierens <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:34:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jerry Bierens
PII PII

From: Gary Cummins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:34:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Gary Cummins

[redacted]

From: Gregory Smith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:35:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Gregory Smith

[redacted]

From: Kate Lannamann <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:35:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

As a person of faith and a believer in the Constitution of the United Ststee I strongly urge you to ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The founders of our country had seen the harm that resulted from failure to observe this fundamental right. Please honor the wishes of the founding fathers.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Kate Lannamann
[redacted]

From: LEAH KARNS <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:35:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
LEAH KARNS
[redacted]

From: Andrea Lacey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:35:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Andrea Lacey

[redacted]

From: Erica Reisman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:35:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Dear members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

This is one of the most fundamental rights we have as Americans!

Thank you!
Erica Reisman

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Erica Reisman

[redacted]

From: Eric Simpson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:35:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Eric Simpson

[redacted]

From: Shannon Kelly <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:36:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

As a Christian, I believe that the Bible foretells of a time in the United States' history where this separation will come to and end. Please don't let it be on your watch. (Revelation 13:11-18)

Sincerely,
Mr. Shannon Kelly

[redacted]

From: Elizabeth Stanbro <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:36:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Elizabeth Stanbro
[redacted]

From: Amy Nemeth <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:36:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Amy Nemeth

[redacted]

From: David Herrington <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:36:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
David Herrington

[redacted]

From: Erin Znidar <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:37:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Erin Znidar

[redacted]

From: Naomi Weisman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:38:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Naomi Weisman
[redacted]

From: Priscilla Spence <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:38:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Priscilla Spence

[redacted]

From: Ernie Looney <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:38:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Ernie Looney

[redacted]

From: Fred Stollnitz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:39:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Fred Stollnitz

[redacted]

From: Kim Gabriele <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:39:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Kim Gabriele
[redacted]

From: Regina DeFalco Lippert <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:39:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Regina DeFalco Lippert

[redacted]

From: "Doris J. Lewis" <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:39:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Doris J. Lewis

[redacted]

From: Alex Kowtun <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:39:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Alex Kowtun
[redacted]

From: Evan Davis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:40:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Given all the false claims by supporters of President Trump that the United States was founded as and should operate as a Christian nation, it is incumbent upon him to publicly deny that claim. Anything less, including silence, must be seen as his support for that false interpretation of our founding documents and our subsequent history as a nation of religious freedom. Such failure supports the efforts to create a Christian version of Iranian theocracy in the United States.

Sincerely,
Evan Davis
[redacted]

From: Linda Vopicka <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:40:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Linda Vopicka

[redacted]

From: Stephanie Compton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:41:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Stephanie Compton

[redacted]

From: Andrew Brust <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:41:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Andrew Brust

[redacted]

From: Mark Kinney <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:42:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Mark Kinney

PII
PII

From: Sofia Montemayor-Thomas <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:42:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sofia Montemayor-Thomas

PII
PII

From: Craig Shankles <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:43:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Craig Shankles

[redacted]

From: Jean Shildneck <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:44:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the inherent worthiness and dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to diminish or impede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to support and protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jean Shildneck
Scituate, MA

From: Elizabeth Krocheski <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:44:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Elizabeth Krocheski

[redacted]

From: Jessica Laughton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:45:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jessica Laughton

[redacted]

From: Gregg Herbert <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:45:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Gregg Herbert

[redacted]

From: Allen Markham <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:46:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Allen Markham

[redacted]

From: Bob Booth <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:48:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

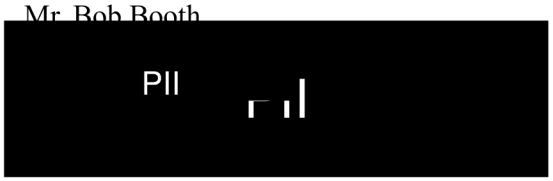
Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.



Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Bob Booth

From: Lois Mendezoff <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:48:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lois Mendezoff

[redacted]

From: Stephen Hatcher <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:49:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Stephen Hatcher

[redacted]

From: Pat Berte <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:51:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Pat Berte

[redacted]

From: Rod Stokes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:51:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Rod Stokes

[redacted]

From: Lana Cooke <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:51:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lana Cooke
Morgantown, WV

From: J Frati <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:51:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.
Theocracy destroys democracy.

Thank you for your important consideration.

Sincerely,
J Frati

PII PII

From: Michele Villeneuve <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:51:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Michele Villeneuve

[redacted]

From: Ronald Killingsworth <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:52:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Ronald Killingsworth
[redacted]

From: Joan Anthropo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:52:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joan Anthropo

[redacted]

From: Keith Becher <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:54:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Keith Becher

[redacted]

From: Holly Utz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:54:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Holly Utz

[redacted]

From: Carol Adams <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:55:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Carol Adams

[redacted]

From: Cheryl Vears <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:56:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized and we're that both religion and government flourish when they are separate and we're adamant about protecting that separation.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Cheryl Vears

PII
PII

From: Linda Silversmith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:58:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Linda Silversmith

[redacted]

From: Herb Shelton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 17:59:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Herb Shelton

[redacted]

From: Connie Raper <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:00:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Connie Raper
[redacted]

From: Daniel Beller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:00:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

To the Religious Liberty Commission:
I am writing to oppose the draft report's central claim that the separation of church and state is a "misapplied" or "weaponized" concept rather than a foundational constitutional principle. The Establishment Clause exists precisely so that government remains neutral among religions and between religion and non-religion — not to limit anyone's free exercise, but to ensure no single tradition is privileged with the machinery of the state.
I am particularly concerned about:
The push to reframe the Establishment Clause as a "bridge" rather than a wall. Neutrality is what protects minority faiths and nonbelievers from having a majority faith's preferences enforced through public schools, healthcare, and government offices.
Repeal of the Johnson Amendment. Allowing tax-exempt religious institutions to engage in partisan political activity blurs the line between church and state funding and electoral politics.
Expanded public funding for religious schools and institutions without corresponding accountability or protections for students of other faiths or no faith.
The commission's own composition — overwhelmingly one religious tradition — undermines its credibility in claiming to speak for "religious liberty for all Americans," including Muslims, Hindus, Sikhs, Jews, and the nonreligious, whose concerns received comparatively little attention in its hearings.
Religious liberty is best protected when government stays out of the business of favoring belief over disbelief, or one faith over another. I urge the commission to reconsider recommendations that erode that neutrality.

Sincerely,
Mr. Daniel Beller

[redacted]

From: Phillip Wilson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:01:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Phillip Wilson

[redacted]

From: John Coffey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:03:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.
John Coffey
Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. John Coffey

[redacted]

From: Denise Hosta <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:03:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Denise Hosta

PII PII

From: Pat Acheson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:03:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Pat Acheson
[redacted]

From: Tom Engle <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:03:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Tom Engle

[redacted]

From: Marjory Goldman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:05:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
I Marjory Goldman

[redacted]

From: Keith Levine <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:07:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Keith Levine

[redacted]

From: Eda Reisberg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:08:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Eda Reisberg

[redacted]

From: John Whitley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:09:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. John Whitley

[redacted]

From: Eda Reisberg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:10:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Eda Reisberg

[redacted]

From: William Gamelli <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:10:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Our country's founders fled to this country to avoid religious persecution. It is anti-American and a violation of our Constitution to designate a specific religion as the country's religion. It is blatantly discriminatory!

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Sincerely,
William Gamelli

[redacted]

From: Richard Yood <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:12:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Yood

PII
PII

From: Albert Gamez <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:16:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Albert Gamez

[redacted]

From: Melvin Buzzard <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:17:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Melvin Buzzard
Morgantown, WV

From: Ida Mollett-Chapman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:19:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Ida Mollett-Chapman

[redacted]

From: Jackelyn Navarro <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:19:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jackelyn Navarro

[redacted]

From: Robert Nelson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:20:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. I believe deeply in the dignity of every person, and I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Stand up, exercise moral courage, and do the right thing, please.

Respectfully,
Robert Nelson
Provo, UT

From: David Webb <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:20:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
David Webb

[redacted]

From: Elizabeth Boessenkool <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:22:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Elizabeth Boessenkool
[redacted]

From: Scott Trainor <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:23:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Scott Trainor

[redacted]

From: Evelyn Urquhart <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:25:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Evelyn Urquhart

[redacted]

From: John Krieger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:29:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
John Krieger

[redacted]

From: John Cassinari <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:30:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr John Cassinari
PII

From: Pamela Carnes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:31:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate. In the early history of our country many people came to America to escape religious persecution and religious coercion. We need to preserve religious freedom for all people here now too. This is what democracy looked liked to our founding fathers and what it needs to be for us in the twenty- first century too.

Sincerely,
Pamela Carnes

[redacted]

From: Margaret Collins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:32:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Margaret Collins

[redacted]

From: Richard Bunting <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:32:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Bunting

[redacted]

From: Robert Ryman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:32:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Robert Ryman

[redacted]

From: Marlin Lavanhar <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:32:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rev. Marlin Lavanhar

[redacted]

From: Christian Woehr <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:32:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Christian Woehr

PII PII

From: Elizabeth Leatherman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:32:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Leatherman

From: S Smart <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:33:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
S Smart

PII PII

From: Susan Berrian <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:33:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Susan Berrian

[redacted]

From: Mary Barbezat <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:34:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mary Barbezat

[redacted]

From: Larry Williams II <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:34:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Larry Williams II

[redacted]

From: David Tagliente <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:34:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. David Tagliente

PII
PII

From: Kathryn Bishop <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:34:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Kathryn Bishop

[redacted]

From: "Reese E. Forbes" <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:35:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Reese E. Forbes
[redacted]

From: Jessica Fry <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:35:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jessica Fry
[redacted]

From: Suzanne Hedrick <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:35:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Suzanne Hedrick

[redacted]

From: Geoffrey Lantz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:36:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Geoffrey Lantz

[redacted]

From: BEV BRAUN DIRNBERGER <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:37:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
MS BEV BRAUN DIRNBERGER

[redacted]

From: Marti Sladek <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:37:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. It's really separation of religion and government and it cuts both ways.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. ...and government can't interfere in a religion to force doctrinal changes.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Our Founders clearly understood this.

Sincerely,
Marti Sladek

[redacted]

From: Cody Goin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:38:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Cody Goin

[redacted]

From: William McClellan III <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:38:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr William McClellan III
[redacted]

From: Patricia Schoon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:38:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Patricia Schoon

[redacted]

From: Richard Parsons <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:38:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Parsons

[redacted]

From: Kolin Kilpatrick <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:38:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The seperation of church and state is absolutely paramount to traditional American values. The founding fathers put the 1st amendment 1st for a reason. They fled religious persecution for their beliefs. The freedom to choose your religion, or abstain, is the most American value there ever was. White christian nationalism is just idiot zealots bending the knee to some dead king. This is America, we don't stand for that sort of thing, I do not say that lighly.

Sincerely,
Kolin Kilpatrick

[redacted]

From: Melissa McClure <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:38:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Melissa McClure

[redacted]

From: Timothy Blevins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:39:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Timothy Blevins

[redacted]

From: Brenda Hunter <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:40:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

"Those who would renegotiate the boundaries between church and state must therefore answer a difficult question: why would we trade a system that has served us so well for one that has served others so poorly?"
- Sandra Day O'Connor - (1930 – 2023) American attorney, jurist, and associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States (1981 - 2006), nominated by President Ronald Reagan, and the first woman to serve as a U.S. Supreme Court justice

Sincerely,
Brenda Hunter

[redacted]

From: Mary Boone <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:40:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Mary Boone

[redacted]

From: Elaine Horobec <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:40:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Religion is too important and personal for the government to interfere with.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Elaine Horobec

[redacted]

From: Daniel and Judith Klement <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:41:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Daniel and Judith Klement

PII
PII

From: Gloria Hernandez <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:42:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Gloria Hernandez

[redacted]

From: Daniel and Judith Klement <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:42:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Daniel and Judith Klement

[redacted]

From: Barbara Sorkin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:42:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others and don't interfere with their ability to safely practice their ethics..

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

The government must NOT choose one religion's understanding of, for example, products to be consumed during rituals, or the point at which a conceptus becomes a new and separate human, over the traditions of other religions, must NOT make laws based upon such narrow, sectarian interpretations.

Sincerely,
Dr. Barbara Sorkin

[redacted]

From: Jackie Nirenberg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:42:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jackie Nirenberg
[redacted]

From: Jeremy Geouge <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:43:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jeremy Geouge

PII PII

From: Barbara Puett <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:46:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Barbara Puett

PII PII

From: Richard Putz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:46:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Putz

[redacted]

From: "J. R. Staton" <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:47:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. J. R. Staton

[redacted]

From: Andrea Tatkow <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:48:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Andrea Tatkow

[redacted]

From: William Keiser <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:48:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

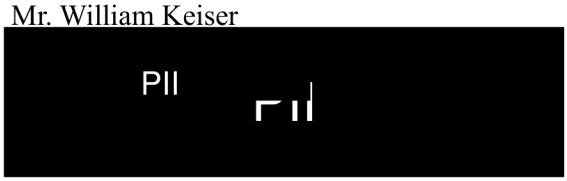
Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.



Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. William Keiser

From: Alton Mumm <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:48:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.
Alton Mumm
President
Nebraska Alliance for Retired Americans

Sincerely,
Mr. Alton Mumm

[redacted]

From: James Tornatore <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:49:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. James Tornatore

PII PII

From: Katie Bischoff <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:50:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Katie Bischoff

[redacted]

From: Susan Bookman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:51:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Susan Bookman
[redacted]

From: Kayla Pocquette <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:51:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Kayla Pocquette
[redacted]

From: Lindsey Stine <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:52:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lindsey Stine

[redacted]

From: Carl Rubenstein <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:57:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Carl Rubenstein
[redacted]

From: Michele Missner <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:58:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Christian Nationalism that we see developing on the right is no different than Sharia Law. Both try to stuff their views down the necks of those who have other religious views.

Sincerely,
Mrs Michele Missner

[redacted]

From: Brandon Ortega <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 18:58:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Brandon Ortega

[redacted]

From: Cathy Chapman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:00:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion at all. We are free to practice our religious traditions as long as we don't interfere with our fellow citizens.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that each one of us—not government officials—can make our own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should only be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion. This separation also ensures that religious groups do not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Cathy Chapman

[redacted]

From: Nik Leland <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:04:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Nik Leland

[redacted]

From: Joan Fregapane <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:06:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The First Amendment contains the establishment clause as well as the statement that there should be no interference in the free exercise of our religious beliefs. I believe these provisions are in the very first amendment because of there great importance.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Joan Fregapane

[redacted]

From: Angela Ducommun <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:06:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Freedom FROM religion is enshrined in the Constitution and reflects the wisdom of our Founders having watched centuries of useless, pointless bloodbaths across Europe over arguments of religion. The power of the church and the power of the state MUST NEVER BE COMBINED. We already know from history how stupid a move that is to make. Don't be stupid. Not keeping separation is a decision that rests only in the greed to abuse power and harm citizens. And you know it.

Sincerely,
Angela Ducommun
PII PII

From: Sandra Minnesang <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:07:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sandra Minnesang

[redacted]

From: candice coomer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:09:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
candice coomer

From: Lowell Bryan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:11:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lowell Bryan

[redacted]

From: Dave Albrecht <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:11:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dave Albrecht

[redacted]

From: Debra Shelton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:11:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Debra Shelton
[redacted]

From: Sherwin Back <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:11:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Sherwin Back
[redacted]

From: Corinne Mahaffey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:12:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Corinne Mahaffey

[redacted]

From: Jim Jacobson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:12:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

We will not let you make the United States a theocracy.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jim Jacobson

[redacted]

From: Paula Arevalos <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:14:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Paula Arevalos

[redacted]

From: Marey Cohen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:14:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Marey Cohen

[redacted]

From: Tom Boughan <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:15:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Tom Boughan

PII
PII

From: Amanda Koch <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:15:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Amanda Koch
[redacted]

From: Hilda Shelupsky <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:15:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Hilda Shelupsky

[redacted]

From: Leo Kucewicz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:16:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Leo Kucewicz

[redacted]

From: Bob Quail <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:17:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Bob Quail

[redacted]

From: Patty bender <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:18:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Patty bender

[redacted]
[redacted]

From: Arthur Meyer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:19:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Arthur Meyer

[redacted]

From: Anne Bendixen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:19:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Anne Bendixen

[redacted]

From: Kimberly Carignan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:23:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kimberly Carignan

[redacted]

From: Ruth Fatur <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:26:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rev. Ruth Fatur

[redacted]

From: Alvin Martin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:26:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Alvin Martin

[redacted]

From: Bill Lang <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:32:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Bill Lang

[redacted]

From: Gail Karr <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:32:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Gail Karr

[redacted]

From: Julie Powers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:33:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Julie Powers
[redacted]

From: Calvan North <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:34:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Calvan North

[redacted]

From: Ellen Brennan <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:34:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ellen Brennan

PII
PII

From: Patrick Kenny <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:36:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Patrick Kenny
[redacted]

From: Karen Coggan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:36:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Karen Coggan

[redacted]

From: Garrick Balk <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:36:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Garrick Balk
[redacted]

From: Deborah Schwarte <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:39:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Deborah Schwarte

[redacted]

From: Richard Fish <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:40:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Fish

PII PII

From: Loyola O'Brien <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:40:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Loyola O'Brien

[redacted]

From: Dick Wolfe <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:40:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Dick Wolfe
[redacted]

From: Ann Gilson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:40:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ann Gilson

[redacted]

From: Margaret Saracco <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:41:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Margaret Saracco

[redacted]

From: Lezlie Ringland <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:41:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lezlie Ringland

[redacted]

From: Steven Jones <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:42:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.
My grandfather and other friends of mine defended this country! Some of them believed more in Jesus and others were more deistic or undecided yet still were willing to defend the country for everyone and their rights of sanity, belief, nonbelief, and rights of consciousness...
The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Steven Jones

[redacted]

From: Linda Stout <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:42:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Linda Stout

[redacted]

From: Doyle Stadt <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:44:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Doyle Stadt

[redacted]

From: Jeremy Olliges <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:45:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jeremy Olliges

[redacted]

From: Debbie Hollis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:47:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The Establishment Clause is settled law.

The Religious Liberty Commission's final report shall reflect the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike.

It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another.

Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Debbie Hollis
[redacted]

From: Cindra Barnard <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:48:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Cindra Barnard

PII PII

From: JoBeth Bossart-Porter <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:51:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. JoBeth Bossart-Porter

PII
PII

From: Edward Blaha <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:52:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Edward Blaha
[redacted]

From: Edwin Martin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:53:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Edwin Martin

[redacted]

From: Sandi Hebley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:54:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Our country was built on a foundation of religious freedom, which means people can worship as they choose, and that means ALL religions are valid. And no one has to accept any religion!

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Sandi Hebley
[redacted]

From: Harold Draper <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:55:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.
Also your proposal establishes Protestant fundamentalism as the state religion, excluding even other Christian religions.

Sincerely,
Mr Harold Draper

PII PII

From: Adam Jenkins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:56:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

You have an obligation to ensure that your final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. Religious liberty is not under attack. It's secularism that is, and that's not the way it should be. Neither should endure deprivation of rights one way or the other.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Adam Jenkins
[redacted]

From: KENNETH ERICKSON <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:56:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. KENNETH ERICKSON

PII PII

From: Laura Anderson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 19:57:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Laura Anderson
[redacted]

From: Cassandra Mosley <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:00:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state SEPARATION plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. The entire founding of this nation was based on freedom to practice any or no religion, full-stop.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Cassandra Mosley

PII
PII

From: Dawne Kinsey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:01:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dawne Kinsey
[redacted]
https://protect2.fireeye.com/v1/url?k=9874089d-c7ef4a6e-98732c78-000babdfec90-0831147b7845771a&q=1&e=8ce6e559-cebc-424b-92b2-643b8a65a8dc&u=http%3A%2F%2Fwww.cordelia_bonanno%40yahoo.com%2F

From: Jonathan Brier <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:02:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. The current behavior of this administration is harming others and not doing no harm.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jonathan Brier

[redacted]

From: Chris Teachey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:03:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Chris Teachey

[redacted]

From: Kristine Simons <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:05:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Kristine Simons

[redacted]

From: Lois Hoyt-Berry <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:05:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lois Hoyt-Berry

[redacted]

From: John Zeman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:05:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. John Zeman

[redacted]

From: Laura Rendon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:06:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Laura Rendon

[redacted]

From: Don Hittle <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:07:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Let's be honest, those who created the Religious Liberty Commission and who seem to be determined to set its agenda are primarily if not exclusively interested in promoting the idea of Christian nationalism and imposing this idea on our social and political institutions.

How about you surprise these folks by clearly supporting the separation of church and state, as to do otherwise would only further threaten both our democracy and our religious freedom. Thank you for your consideration.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Don Hittle

PII PII

From: Jim Melton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:08:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jim Melton

[redacted]

From: Jacqueline Brabant <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:14:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Jacqueline Brabant

[redacted]

From: Natalie Oyler-Lusco <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:15:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Natalie Oyler-Lusco

[redacted]

From: Malcolm Wattman <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:19:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Malcolm Wattman

PII PII

From: Myles Davis <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:21:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Myles Davis

PII
PII

From: William Evans <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:22:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am writing from Fort Collins, Colorado.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Thank you.
Sincerely,
Will Evans

[redacted]

Sincerely,
Mr. William Evans

[redacted]

From: Colleen Sundberg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:28:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Colleen Sundberg
[redacted]

From: Jeremy Cohen <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:32:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Jeremy Cohen

PII PII

From: Eric Mendelson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:32:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Eric Mendelson

[redacted]

From: Christi Trimble-Kreutz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:32:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Christi Trimble-Kreutz
[redacted]

From: Sheila Green <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:33:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrd Sheila Green

[redacted]

From: Suzi Goldmacher <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:33:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Suzi Goldmacher

[redacted]

From: Maurizio Rios <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:33:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Maurizio Rios

[redacted]

From: Richard Wilmot <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:34:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Wilmot

[redacted]

From: Jon Lauderbaugh <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:34:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Jon Lauderbaugh
[redacted]

From: Janice Hallman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:34:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Janice Hallman

[redacted]

From: James Dawson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:34:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr and Mrs James Dawson

[redacted]

From: Candace Corbani <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:34:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Candace Corbani

[redacted]

From: Kay Novak <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:35:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Missing Kay Novak

[redacted]

From: Kylie Burk <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:36:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Kylie Burk

[redacted]

From: Michelle Wadle <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:37:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

I believe that my religion and my spiritual life is extremely personal and that no one has the right or the authority to mandate what I choose to believe or practice. I want the same freedom for all Americans. Furthermore, I believe in the rule of law and it troubles me greatly that anyone would minimize the significance of the First Amendment of the Constitution. Let us not forget the words of Sinclair Lewis: "When fascism comes to America, it will be wrapped in the flag and carrying a cross".

Sincerely,
Michelle Wadle

[redacted]

From: Daniel Kuperus <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:39:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Daniel Kuperus

PII PII

From: Phoenix Giffen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:39:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Phoenix Giffen
[redacted]

From: Frank Geltner <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:39:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Frank Geltner

[redacted]

From: Allan Campbell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:39:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Allan Campbell

[redacted]

From: James Moule <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:40:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
James Moule

[redacted]

From: Steve Schatz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:41:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Steve Schatz

[redacted]

From: Donna Krause <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:41:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Donna Krause
[redacted]

From: Tim Sauke <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:43:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans, a fundamental tenet of why our country was created.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. All of our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Tim Sauke

[redacted]

From: Carol Hugdahl <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:45:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the rib03fmght to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Carol Hugdahl

[redacted]

From: Joseph Pasternack <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:45:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Joseph Pasternack

[redacted]

From: Michelle Thibodeaux <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:45:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

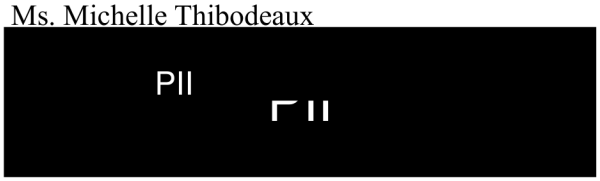
Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.



Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Michelle Thibodeaux

From: Gary Cantrell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:45:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Gary Cantrell
[redacted]

From: Cecilia Garza <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:47:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Cecilia Garza
[redacted]

From: Jan Rybka <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:47:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jan Rybka

[redacted]

From: Mike Tice <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:47:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans, and reflecting its centrality to First Amendment protections.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that religion and government become corrupted when commingled.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit We The People. All of us. Not a favored subset.

Sincerely,
Mike Tice

[redacted]

From: Margie Thibodeaux <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:47:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Margie Thibodeaux
[redacted]

From: Tracy Gleason <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:48:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Tracy Gleason

[redacted]

From: Sandy Templin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:48:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Sandy Templin

[redacted]

From: Christine Griffith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:48:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Christine Griffith

[redacted]

From: Katherine Smith-Mortensen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:53:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Katherine Smith-Mortensen

[redacted]

From: Lyla Neumann <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:53:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lyla Neumann

[redacted]

From: Jim Fitch <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:54:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jim Fitch

[redacted]

From: Steve Thompson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:54:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Steve Thompson

[redacted]

From: Philip Novak <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:54:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The failure to constitutionally separate Church and State in the structure of a nation, as we know from European history, all but assures outbreaks (and worse) of death-dealing fanaticism, irrationalism, Scriptualism literalism in its most violent forms, enmity, fear, strife, and the tragic loss of educational opportunities among individuals within human communities otherwise composed of human brothers and sisters but now oppresively cast as the ignorant and damned among the saved. Please don't contribute one whit to the threat of the return of this kind of widespread mental disease. Keep State and Religious Authorities separate. Insure that the govenment cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Guarantee that American students can each make their own decisions about religion and religious education. Ensure that schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Sincerely,
Philip Novak
[redacted]

From: Steve Thompson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 20:55:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Steve Thompson

[redacted]

From: Marilyn Shirk <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:00:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Marilyn Shirk
[redacted]

From: James Lott <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:02:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. James Lott

[redacted]

From: Jacky Grindrod <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:02:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Jacky Grindrod

[redacted]

From: Andrea Perr <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:03:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Andrea Perr

[redacted]

From: Mike Norman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:03:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mike Norman

[redacted]

From: Beth Barnes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:04:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Beth Barnes

[redacted]

From: Michael Mercer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:06:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Michael Mercer

[redacted]

From: Ray Hearne <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:06:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ray Hearne

[redacted]

From: Duane Stilwell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:08:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure that the final report of the Religious Liberty Commission does in fact protect religious freedom as well as freedom from religion. The vital role that the separation of church and state plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans is not always obvious, but it is crucial nonetheless.

The separation of church and state codifies in law our individual right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

The separation of faith and political action in our republic is what protects religious freedom for everyone—for believers and nonbelievers alike. It prevents the government from imposing religious beliefs on anyone and from favoring one religion over another.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Duane Stilwell

[redacted]

From: Lauren Stone <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:08:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lauren Stone
[redacted]

From: Steven Sainders <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:09:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I'd like the Religious Liberty Commission's final report to reflect why church-state separation matters so much to me and to religious freedom for all Americans.
It's the reason I can practice any faith, or none, without harming anyone. It protects everyone—religious and nonreligious alike—by keeping government from imposing or favoring any belief. It lets families, not officials, decide how kids learn about religion, keeps coercive prayer out of classrooms, and shields houses of worship from political interference. It stops my tax dollars from funding religion and guarantees equal treatment under the law for all of us, regardless of belief.

Sincerely,
Mr. Steven Sainders

[redacted]

From: Danica Worner <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:09:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Danica Worner

[redacted]

From: Maureen O'Neill <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:14:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Maureen O'Neill

PII
PII

From: Trudy Horkin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:15:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Trudy Horkin
[redacted]

From: Reuben Abraham <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:15:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Reuben Abraham

[redacted]
[redacted]

From: Jayne Pitchford <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:15:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jayne Pitchford

[redacted]

From: Gary Winfrey <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:19:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Gary Winfrey

PII
PII

From: Glenn Kraus <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:19:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Glenn Kraus

[redacted]

From: James Brumback <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:21:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
James Brumback
[redacted]

From: Charles Kutner <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:22:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Charles Kutner

PII

PII

From: Robert Foley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:23:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Robert Foley

[redacted]

From: Bryan DeVore <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:25:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Bryan DeVore
[redacted]

From: James Bridges <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:25:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Reverend James Bridges

[redacted]

From: John Parliman <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:27:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
John Parliman

PII PII

From: Harold Crooks <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:30:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Harold Crooks

[redacted]

From: Sharon McChancy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:32:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Sharon McChancy

[redacted]

From: Quanah Brightman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:34:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Quanah Brightman

[redacted]

From: Allyson Hamm <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:37:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Allyson Hamm

[redacted]

From: Steve Hamlin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:38:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Steve Hamlin

[redacted]

From: John Titcomb <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:39:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
John Titcomb

PII
PII

From: Lynn Brady <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:41:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Our country was founded on religious freedom.  Everyone deserves to practice or abstain from practicing faith according to their concious and value system.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lynn Brady

[redacted]

From: William Arnold <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:41:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
William Arnold

[redacted]

From: Richard Stark <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:42:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Stark
[redacted]

From: Angela Barbee <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:43:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Angela Barbee

[redacted]

From: Nan Brunskill <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:43:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Nan Brunskill

[redacted]

From: Andres Vasquez <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:46:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion (or no religion at all) as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Andres Vasquez

[redacted]

From: Sharon Collins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:53:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

I am very concerned that Christian Nationalists are reportedly trying to close public schools and force all students to attend church-run schools. This has become a controversial issue, as the Trump Administration has aimed to close the Department of Education.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sharon Collins

[redacted]

From: Ardys Flavelle <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:55:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The separation of church and state is one of the most important rights guaranteed all Americans, a guarantee that has elevated the USA from other countries for hundreds of years. Our Founders knew the importance of religious freedom, and recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Sincerely,
Ms Ardys Flavelle

[redacted]

From: Douglas Plante <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:55:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Douglas Plante

[redacted]

From: Pamela Speagle <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:55:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Pamela Speagle

[redacted]

From: Roberta Reed <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:57:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Roberta Reed

[redacted]

From: Deb Hahm <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 21:58:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Deb Hahm
[redacted]

From: Doug Faust <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:03:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Doug Faust

[redacted]

From: Dale Staley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:05:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Dale Staley

[redacted]

From: Charlie Molina <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:05:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Charlie Molina

[redacted]

From: Jean Beschta <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:05:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jean Beschta

From: Benjamin Waggoner <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:07:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Benjamin Waggoner

[redacted]

From: Ann Manly <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:07:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ann Manly

[redacted]

From: Charlie Molina <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:08:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Charlie Molina

[redacted]

From: Angela Brown <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:10:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

God gave us free will for a reason.
Forced religion is counter to faith.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—and ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Angela Brown
[redacted]

From: James Michael 'Mike' Henderson <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:10:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. James Michael 'Mike' Henderson
PII PII

From: Dani Marie Kleist <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:16:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Dani Marie Kleist
[redacted]

From: Jessica Morrow <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:17:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jessica Morrow

[redacted]

From: Steve Groze <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:17:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Steve Groze
[redacted]

From: Chris Hoyler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:17:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few. Our country was born on the principle of religious freedom without interference from the government. William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania and Philadelphia, the birthplace of our country, declared that religious freedom without interference by the government, is a sacrosanct pillar of our democracy.

Respectfully,
Chris Hoyler
Wyncote, PA

From: Lyz Kurnitz- Thurlow <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:18:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and non-religious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

All of the above are true and important statements AND goals.  The more that the government interferes  with trivia freedom, the more minorities will be harmed and discriminated against.

Sincerely,
Lyz Kurnitz- Thurlow

PII
PII

From: Ken Charles <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:18:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ken Charles

[redacted]

From: Amira Mansour <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:19:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Amira Mansour
[redacted]

From: O'Neill Louchard <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:20:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. O'Neill Louchard

[redacted]

From: karen winnubst <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:23:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
karen winnubst
Cedar Hill, TX

From: Anne Landman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:25:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Anne Landman

[redacted]

From: Sandra Keans <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:25:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Sandra Keans

[redacted]

From: Utkarsh Nath <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:25:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Utkarsh Nath

[redacted]

From: Patty Lee Hakes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:25:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Patty Lee Hakes

[redacted]

From: Jesus de la Garza <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:28:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Jesus de la Garza

[redacted]

From: Edie Spease <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:32:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Edie Spease

[redacted]

From: Randall Farleigh <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:33:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.
Failure to maintain that separation leads to theocratic authoritarianism like one sees in Iran and other middle eastern kingdoms. Compulsory white Christo Nationalism is just another theocracy like the Taliban.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for every one. . Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

The early colonists arriving on our shores were fleeing religious persecution from other religions and governments. There were also different religions among them. The separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference. There are many forms of Christianity as well as non Christian faiths which all deserve protection.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund someone else's religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit all.

Sincerely,
Randall Farleigh

[redacted]

From: Martin Carlton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:35:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Martin Carlton
[redacted]

From: Andrew Rowlas <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:41:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Andrew Rowlas
[redacted]

From: Andrew Rowlas <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:42:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Andrew Rowlas

[redacted]

From: Patricia Winter <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:49:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Patricia Winter

[redacted]

From: Donna Pope <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:49:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Donna Pope
Tampa, FL

From: Carol Wright <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:54:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Carol Wright
[redacted]

From: Carol Carlson <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:55:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Carol Carlson

PII
PII

From: Kris Korfanta <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:56:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Keeping church and state separated protects all citizens, religious or otherwise. Our ancestors came to America to escape religious persecution.

Sincerely,
Kris Korfanta

[redacted]

From: David Troup <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:56:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
David Troup

[redacted]

From: James Collop <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 22:58:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
James Collop

[redacted]

From: Joy Rosenberry Chase <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:03:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Joy Rosenberry Chase
[redacted]

From: Freda Eisenberg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:04:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.
It is a matter of life and death that the US not become a Christian nation.
The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others AND FOR 250 YEARS HAS BEEN A HALLMARK OF THE AMERICAN EXPERIMENT.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Freda Eisenberg
[redacted]

From: Richard Gundlach <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:05:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Richard Gundlach

PII PII

From: Robert Shearrer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:07:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Robert Shearrer

[redacted]

From: Silas Miller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:07:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Silas Miller

[redacted]

From: Sue Steinacher <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:18:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report allows for all the different ways Americans choose to practice their Christian faith, and all the other faiths embraced by our citizens. I come from a long line of Quakers, and we were once persecuted for our beliefs despite them coming directly from the teachings of Jesus.

We can only be free to practice our different forms of Christianity, and other belief systems, that are truest for us is to maintain separation of church and state.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Sue Steinacher
[redacted]

From: Linda Sheff <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:19:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Linda Sheff
[redacted]

From: Ray Soller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:25:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Attn: Kelly Shackelford

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state assures ALL the people that in the words of George Washington in his letter to the Hebrew Congregation of Newport, Rhode Island :
"It is now no more that toleration is spoken of as if it were the indulgence of one class of people that another enjoyed the exercise of their inherent natural rights, for, happily, the Government of the United States, which gives to bigotry no sanction, to persecution no assistance, requires only that they who live under its protection should demean themselves as good citizens in giving it on all occasions their effectual support."

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another.
Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ray Soller

Sincerely,
Ray Soller

[redacted]

From: Renee Arnett <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:26:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. Thats where you come in . Do not force a religion on our citizenry .

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Renee Arnett

[redacted]

From: Chris Clayborne <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:26:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Chris Clayborne

[redacted]

From: Dave Gantose <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:27:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dave Gantose

[redacted]

From: Jason Bruewer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:30:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jason Bruewer
[redacted]

From: John Dawson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:31:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The Religious Liberty Commission's final report fails to reflect the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. John Dawson
[redacted]

From: Katherine Foster <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:31:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Katherine Foster
[redacted]

From: Gerald Kelly <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:31:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Gerald Kelly
[redacted]

From: Devon L'Ecluse <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:31:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Devon L'Ecluse

PII PII

From: Gary Benz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:31:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Gary Benz
[redacted]

From: Nan Brunskill <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:31:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Nan Brunskill

PII PII

From: Kevin Smith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:32:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Kevin Smith
[redacted]

From: Patrick OHara <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:32:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Patrick OHara
PII PII

From: Dan Joyce <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:32:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education. The government doesn't belong in families' living rooms, telling them how to raise their children.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone. Many people do not prescribe to a faith and those people should not be made to fund a religion or faith they don't believe in.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dan Joyce
[redacted]

From: Scherry Rowland <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:32:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Scherry Rowland
[redacted]

From: Glenn Christensen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:33:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Sincerely,
Glenn Christensen

[redacted]

From: Gerald Kelly <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:33:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Gerald Kelly
[redacted]

From: Earl Shimaoka <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:34:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Earl Shimaoka
[redacted]

From: Linda Eastman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:34:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Linda Eastman
[redacted]

From: James Manore <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:34:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
James Manore

From: PeggyAnn Heeney <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:34:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. PeggyAnn Heeney
[redacted]

From: Barbara Jackson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:35:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

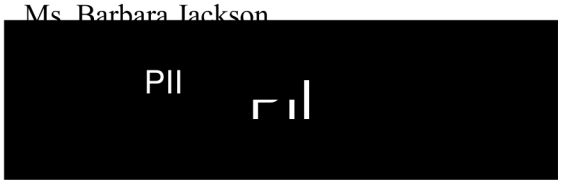
Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Do not stop me from having my own views.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.



Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Barbara Jackson

From: Frederick K Marchman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:35:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Separation of Church and State protects government from religion and religion from government,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Frederick K Marchman
[redacted]

From: Eric Newman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:36:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Eric Newman
[redacted]

From: "Rev. Allan B. Jones" <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:36:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure that the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures that schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Mr. Rev. Allan B. Jones
[redacted]

From: Rick Sibson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:36:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rick Sibson

[redacted]

From: Theodore Padgett <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:37:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. As you should know, the First Amendment, there Government is ordered to not establish any religion.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Theodore Padgett

[redacted]

From: Molly Hunt <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:38:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Molly Hunt
[redacted]

From: William Henry <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:38:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
William Henry

[redacted]

From: Cipra Nemeth <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:40:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Cipra Nemeth

[redacted]

From: Pamela Bielma <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:40:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Pamela Bielma
[redacted]

From: Robert Leyba <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:40:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

All of the above is clear enough! What should also not be forgotten is the origin of our legal need to keep church and state separate: our experiences in Europe! Please let us not forget all the loss of lives and property where power and privilege in the form of church and state control was allowed to gain unfair influence over the society in which it ruled.

Sincerely,
Mr. Robert Leyba

[redacted]

From: Leslie Evelo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:41:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Leslie Evelo
[redacted]

From: Valerie Elder <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:42:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The Religious Liberty Commission's final report must reflect the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

In addition it ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation also protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Valerie Elder

[redacted]

From: Martin Valens <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:42:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Martin Valens

[redacted]

From: Mark Tischler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:43:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

The Constitution may not say the words "separation of church and state", but it's clear the concept is there.

Sincerely,
Mr. Mark Tischler
[redacted]

From: Julie Bernstein <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:43:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. Our country was founded to protect religious liberty for all because most of the original colonists sought refuge from repressive state religion in Europe. Our deep tradition of religious freedom still makes us a vital religious refuge for people like the Falun Gong. While most people in the recent path who sought religious asylum were Christian, Muslims and Hindus have also come here in order to practice their faith freely.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

If we take the time to learn about various faiths, we can appreciate that they all have a firm ethical foundation that strongly admonishes people not to harm others and encourages people to love their neighbors as themselves.

The Religious Liberty Commission should reflect the variety of faiths that we have in our country and should uphold freedom of religion for all of them which means that the government should not be endorsing or favoring any particular faith or faiths. Thank you for seriously considering my thoghts onthis very important subject.

Sincerely,
Dr. Julie Bernstein
[redacted]

From: Barbara Tischler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:44:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

The Constitution may not say the words "separation of church and state", but it's clear the concept is there.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Barbara Tischler

[redacted]

From: Jenna Hutchinson <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:45:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Jenna Hutchinson

PII PII

From: David Fishman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:45:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. David Fishman

[redacted]

From: Pam Lynn <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:46:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Pam Lynn
[redacted]

From: PATRICIA NORTON <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:46:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

All of this is VERY important to me and most people I know,  including atheists who are good people too.

Sincerely,
Ms. PATRICIA NORTON
[redacted]

From: Martin and Sharon McGladdery <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:46:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Martin and Sharon McGladdery

PII
PII

From: Jackie Gray <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:46:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Miss Jackie Gray

[redacted]

From: Dick Landrum <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:47:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr and Mrs Dick Landrum

[redacted]

From: Les Dorr <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:47:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. Yet the commission appears hell bent (pun intended) on quashing the wording of the Constitution regarding establishment of religion in favor of Christian Nationalism.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

I've practiced Nichiren Shoshu Buddhism for 47 years. Christian Nationalism presents a very real threat to my rights as an American citizen.

Sincerely,
Les Dorr, Jr.

Sincerely,
Mr. Les Dorr

[redacted]

From: Joseph Izzo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:48:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.
I was raised in a Roman Catholic/Christian family, earned a Master's degree in Biblical Studies from La Salle University in 1978 and came to realize that much of the "cherry-picking" of the scriptures by the Christian Nationalist right wing was neither Christian nor biblically grounded. By 1982 I became a Quaker and Buddhist practitioner although I still treasure the teachings of Jesus but not those of his supposed followers. I refuse to accept your brand of distorted Christianity.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Joseph Izzo

[redacted]

From: Doris Applebaum <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:48:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Doris Applebaum

[redacted]

From: Adrienne Hudson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:48:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

I regard the principles of the Constitution as sacred!

Sincerely,
Ms. Adrienne Hudson
[redacted]

From: Heidi Renteria <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:50:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I want to be sure that the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

As an American, I believe that real separation of church and state is essential for the continuing success of our democracy.

Sincerely,
Ms. Heidi Renteria

[redacted]

From: glenda dugan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:50:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
glenda dugan
[redacted]

From: John Bradley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:51:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Keep government out of religion.  We are not like and Islamic nation.
Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
John Bradley

[redacted]

From: Claudia Wiebold <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:52:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

And churches should not be allowed to fund campaigns for political office. Again, we must keep church separate from state.

Sincerely,
Claudia Wiebold

[redacted]

From: Susan Leibowitz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:52:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Susan Leibowitz
[redacted]

From: TRACY Maestro <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:53:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
TRACY Maestro

PII PII

From: Tony Romero <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:53:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Tony Romero
[redacted]

From: John Schmid <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:54:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
John Schmid

[redacted]

From: Barbara Schaich-Rogers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:54:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Barbara Schaich-Rogers
[redacted]

From: Joan Maples <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:55:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rev. Joan Maples

[redacted]

From: Richard Poelker <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:55:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The first amendment of the Constitution states:
"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."
Thomas Jefferson wrote:
That the First Amendment built a "wall of separation between Church & State" to protect religious freedom.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Richard Poelker

[redacted]

From: Marcia Russell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:55:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Marcia Russell
[redacted]

From: "H. Lehman Holder Jr." <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:55:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Millions of Americans are not religious people. I strongly believe that separation of church and state must be maintained. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. H. Lehman Holder Jr.

[redacted]

From: Deborah Durbin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:56:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Deborah Durbin

[redacted]

From: Rustin Kern <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:57:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Rustin Kern

[redacted]

From: James Scavo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:57:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. James Scavo

[redacted]

From: PENELOPE S JEFFREY <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:58:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Church-state separation ensures that my family members of different faiths--Protestant, Roman Catholic, Jewish, Muslim, and Buddhist--can share in the blessings of this country, and worship as they wish.

Sincerely,
Ms. PENELOPE S JEFFREY

PII
PII

From: Cheryl Dzubak <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:58:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Cheryl Dzubak
[redacted]

From: Catherine Davis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:58:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Catherine Davis

[redacted]

From: Joan Grossman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:58:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The separation of church and state is one of the bedrocks of our Constitution. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joan Grossman

[redacted]

From: Joanna Taylor <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:58:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joanna Taylor

[redacted]

From: Susan Berrian <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:59:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Susan Berrian
[redacted]

From: Roger Williams <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:59:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

My namesake--Roger Williams of the 1600s--was a strong advocate for religious freedom and separation of church and state. He was right in doing so. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Roger Williams

[redacted]

From: Michelle Darbro <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:59:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Michelle Darbro

PII
PII

From: Eric Schonberger <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 16:59:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

You white "Christian" nationalists can F off!

Sincerely,
Eric Schonberger

PII PII

From: Maritn Moskowitz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:00:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Maritn Moskowitz

[redacted]

From: J Frati <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:01:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for ALL Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion AND no religion - as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.
Please consider extremely carefully for the future of ALL Americans what you will do.

Best regards,

Sincerely,
J Frati

PII
PII

From: Lenore Sivulich <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:01:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lenore Sivulich

[redacted]

From: Allan Rubin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:02:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Allan Rubin

[redacted]

From: Joseph Kondrot <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:03:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Joseph Kondrot
[redacted]

From: Carol O'Neill <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:04:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Carol O'Neill
[redacted]

From: Darlene Young <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:04:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Darlene Young

[redacted]

From: Richard Wasserman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:05:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Richard Wasserman
[redacted]

From: Andrea Perr <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:05:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Andrea Perr

[redacted]

From: Betty Gunz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:06:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Betty Gunz
[redacted]

From: Richard Pressman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:06:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Richard Pressman

[redacted]

From: Charles Reutter <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:06:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Charles Reutter

[redacted]

From: Jim Berry <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:07:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jim Berry

[redacted]

From: Diana Brunswig-Bosso <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:07:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Diana Brunswig-Bosso

PII PII

From: Jeffrey Bradley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:08:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jeffrey Bradley
[redacted]

From: Sandra Briggs <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:10:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate. I believe our country was founded on separation of church---any church or belief system ---- and state . To change actual history is wrong .

Sincerely,
Mrs. Sandra Briggs

[redacted]

From: Dawn Adams Miller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:10:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Dawn Adams Miller
[redacted]

From: Bonita Dillard <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:10:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Bonita Dillard

PII
PII

From: Lilian Kocher <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:10:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lilian Kocher
[redacted]

From: Alexander McKenzie <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:13:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

We have seen in the past, and continue to see in the present, the persecution individuals who are not members of the official religion undergo.  Such individuals are, and continue to be, tortured and put to death because their view of God's will differs from the official version. We don't want that in the USA!

Sincerely,
Mr. Alexander McKenzie

PII
PII

From: Arlene Drucker <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:13:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Arlene Drucker

[redacted]

From: Richard Doberstein <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:13:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Richard Doberstein

PII
PII

From: Catherine Williams <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:14:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Catherine Williams
[redacted]

From: Irene Roos <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:14:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Irene Roos

[redacted]

From: Larry Ellis Reed <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:15:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Larry Ellis Reed
[redacted]

From: Stephen Einson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:16:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Stephen Einson
[redacted]

From: Martin Melkonian <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:16:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Martin Melkonian
[redacted]

From: Bonita McPeek <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:17:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Bonita McPeek
[redacted]

From: Paul McCarthy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:17:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Paul McCarthy
[redacted]

From: Dorothy Olson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:18:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Dorothy Olson
[redacted]

From: Ron Hodges <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:19:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Ron Hodges
[redacted]

From: Scott Moody <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:19:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Scott Moody

[redacted]

From: Timothy Rabroker <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:19:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Timothy Rabroker

[redacted]

From: Glenn Lytle <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:22:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Glenn Lytle

PII PII

From: Ramona Crocker <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:23:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for ALL Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Ramona Crocker
[redacted]

From: Ann Shetler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:23:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ann Shetler

[redacted]

From: jean buchanan andrews <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:23:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. jean buchanan andrews

[redacted]

From: Chris Thomson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:24:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Chris Thomson

[redacted]

From: John Dreher <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:25:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
John Dreher
[redacted]

From: Claudia Casiano <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:25:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Claudia Casiano

[redacted]

From: Randall Schoonhoven <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:26:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

It is a fundamental doctrine of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution!

Sincerely,
Mr. Randall Schoonhoven

[redacted]

From: Daniel Devlin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:26:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Daniel Devlin
[redacted]

From: Robert Blizard <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:26:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Robert Blizard

[redacted]

From: Robert Blizard <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:26:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Robert Blizard

[redacted]

From: Donald Brownson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:27:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Donald Brownson
[redacted]

From: Jean Owen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:27:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jean Owen
[redacted]

From: Ruth Burstrom <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:31:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ruth Burstrom
[redacted]

From: Christine Miller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:32:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Christine Miller

[redacted]

From: Damon Weber <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:33:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Damon Weber

[redacted]

From: Diana Avery <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:34:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Diana Avery

[redacted]

From: Patricia Dion <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:35:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Patricia Dion

[redacted]

From: Alfredo Ocasio <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:36:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Alfredo Ocasio
[redacted]

From: Janet Marsden <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:36:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Janet Marsden

PII PII

From: Deborah Rodell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:36:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Deborah Rodell
[redacted]

From: Jeanne Hatcher <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:36:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am a devout Christian and proud American who wants to support our public education system. I do NOT SUPPORT any explicit language in our public schools that are clearly from ANY RELIGION. You can teach values without it being the Ten Commandments. This country was founded on religious freedom. It may have been all white Protestant freedom back then but things evolve.

Keep the church out of public schools. Spend your time doing something we actually need like improving our public education system. Or our healthcare system. Or anything else. Thank you

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jeanne Hatcher

[redacted]

From: Nancy Norton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:36:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Nancy Norton
[redacted]

From: John Gray <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:37:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

It also guarantees that one religious group cannot compel everyone else to behave according to the formers' religious beliefs.

Sincerely,
Mr. John Gray
[redacted]

From: Stephen Krokowski <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:37:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Stephen Krokowski

[redacted]

From: Oakley Van Slyke <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:37:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and the other Founders of our country ensured that no person would be discriminated against for his feelings about religion. This was the innovation that made our United States of America the country that it is today.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Oakley Van Slyke

[redacted]

From: Nancy Heck <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:38:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nancy Heck

[redacted]

From: Rachel Swanson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:39:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Miss Rachel Swanson

[redacted]

From: Judith Kerman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:40:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The type of Christianity promoted by many on the right does not reflect the religious views of most Americans, even most Christians. And our nation's Founders already knew that enforcement of any single religious viewpoint was a pathway to tyranny. This is the origin of the separation of church and state mandated in the US Constituion.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Judith Kerman

[redacted]

From: Joy Coe <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:41:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joy Coe
[redacted]

From: charles countryman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:41:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
mr charles countryman
[redacted]

From: David Hancock <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:41:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. David Hancock

[redacted]

From: Candace Corbani <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:42:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Candace Corbani

[redacted]

From: Tammy Haller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:43:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Tammy Haller

[redacted]

From: Richard Rutherford <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:43:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Rutherford
[redacted]

From: Jen Gunderson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:43:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I would like you to please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Church-state separation is essential to America and a strong, healthy, free nation.

Sincerely,
Jen Gunderson
[redacted]

From: Bryanf Loomas <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:43:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Bryanf Loomas

[redacted]

From: Richard Pressman <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:44:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Richard Pressman

PII PII

From: Emily Boone <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:44:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Emily Boone
[redacted]

From: Kathleen Nicholas <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:45:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Kathleen Nicholas
[redacted]

From: Aloysius Wald <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:46:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Aloysius Wald

[redacted]

From: Kirt Moelling <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:46:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Continued attempts to diminish the long-held Constitutional principle of the separation of church and state are deeply disturbing to me and most Americans. It is a cornerstone of our nation and allows churches to operate without state interference and vice versa.

As a Christian pastor and a lawyer, i am accutely aware of the importance of this separation. Moreover, the state giving favored sect status to any religion is anathema to the First Amendment. This is obvious from any plain and non-tortured reading of Constitutional jurisprudence and history. Some American colonies were fou ded TO ESCAPE state imposed religion. Let's not relitigate the issue or attempt a slanted rewrite of history.

So, please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission’s final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don’t harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rev. Kirt Moelling

[redacted]

From: James Bandoli <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:48:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I can read, and the first amendment is bell-clear - government cannot choose winners and losers in religious matters. Stop the Christian nationalist rhetoric and follow the constitution.

Sincerely,
Dr. James Bandoli

PII PII

From: Pat Bilger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:49:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Pat Bilger

[redacted]

From: Kathy Schnitzius <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:49:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Kathy Schnitzius
[redacted]

From: Lee O'Brien <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:49:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Sincerely,
Lee O'Brien

[redacted]

From: Vernon Batty <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:50:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Vernon Batty
[redacted]

From: Paula Crook <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:50:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

All Americans must be able to worship or not without government favoring or dis-favoring any religion(s). If this freedom is lost, America's founding principles are lost. Government must not be involved in religion, period.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Paula Crook

[redacted]

From: Debi Drewes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:51:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for ALL Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Debi Drewes

[redacted]

From: Maria Studer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:51:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. As a Ruling Elder in the Presbyterian Church I believe that this is of crucial importance.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Elder Maria Studer

[redacted]

From: Dolores Arndt <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:51:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Dolores Arndt

[redacted]

From: margaret murphy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:52:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. margaret murphy

[redacted]

From: Carol Sevcik <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:54:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am an 87 year old widow and I firmly believe that there needs to be complete separation of church and state. They should not be combined in any way,. This would undermine religious freedom. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Carol Sevcik

Sincerely,
Mrs. Carol Sevcik

PII
PII

From: Michael Carter <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:54:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Michael Carter

PII PII

From: Linda David <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:55:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Linda David

[redacted]

From: Brian Fletcher <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:56:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Brian Fletcher

PII PII

From: MARJORIE SKIDMORE <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:56:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. MARJORIE SKIDMORE
[redacted]

From: Carolyn Campbell <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:56:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Carolyn Campbell

PII
PII

From: Eric Simpson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:56:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Eric Simpson
[redacted]

From: Paul Dupuis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:57:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.
The absolute truth is the founding fathers INTENDED to have separation of church and state. No matter how much the so called ' christian nationalists " want it to be different. I am a history major( UW Madison 1978) and they are full of shit.

Sincerely,
Mr. Paul Dupuis
[redacted]

From: Pete Franzen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:57:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Pete Franzen
[redacted]

From: James Chambers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:57:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

As a Veteran, this is what I served for: that the Federal Government would not impose a one only religious belief on the United States of America. The federal government should serve all residents in the USA regardless of political party, race or where they were born.

Sincerely,
James Chambers

[redacted]

From: Lilly Knuth <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:59:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lilly Knuth

[redacted]

From: M Bennet Broner <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:59:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. M Bennet Broner

[redacted]

From: Christine Black <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:59:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Christine Black

PII PII

From: Sandra Joos <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 17:59:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Sandra Joos
[redacted]

From: Frances Boyer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:00:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Frances Boyer

[redacted]

From: Kathryn Fox <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:01:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Absolutely no one knows what is in the great beyond. Religion is a personal belief and one that can't be insisted upon, but something a person has decided upon after observing life all around. To impose a religion is no real insurance that a person will really beleive another's views. Nobody can alter what someone thinks.
And Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Kathryn Fox
[redacted]

From: Charissa Kreager <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:02:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Charissa Kreager
[redacted]

From: "B. Gold" <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:02:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
B. Gold

[redacted]

From: Barbara Clement <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:03:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I'm writing to ask you to mark this 250th anniversary of American freedom by acting in accordance with a deeply held principle established by the Founding Fathers: please do your part to ensure that the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vitally important role that church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

I was raised in a devout Catholic household at a time when many in this country still believed that a practicing Catholic should not hold elected office. Over the decades that prejudice faded but religious discrimination itself didn't go away - it just shifted to focus on othe, less mainstream faith traditions.

But standing firm on the American principle of church-state separation is what protects religious freedom for all of us. And it's our responsibility to see that the principle endures for future generations because it's fundamental to what we believe as Americans: that our government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone, that it cannot favor one religion over another, that families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education for their children.

The Founding Fathers recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

That separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference. It protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. And it protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religious institutions that may discriminate or seek to impose an ideology at odds with our own beliefs.

Sincerely,
Barbara Clement
[redacted]

From: Brian McCaskill <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:06:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Brian McCaskill
[redacted]

From: Jeffrey Denniston PhD CPS <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:08:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

PS I agree with the above and am now adding my own comments. Church-State seperation DOES matter. I was in an minority religion for several years and I was lucky to live in the United States, where I have freedoms.

AMEN

Dr. Jeff

Sincerely,
Dr. Jeffrey Denniston PhD CPS

[redacted]

From: Sally Woodard <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:08:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Sally Woodard
[redacted]

From: Dan Stanger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:09:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Dan Stanger

[redacted]

From: Raleigh Koritz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:10:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Raleigh Koritz

[redacted]

From: Adam Levine <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:11:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Adam Levine

[redacted]

From: Jodi Goodman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:11:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

If you've read "We The People's" Constitution, you should know the founders wrote it very purposely and with great thought, such that our government is secular. There is absolutely no claim about the US being a Christian nation. In fact, they essentially did the opposite. Laws and other government actions that favor Christians, particular types of Christians, any other religion, or none are blatantly unconstitutional.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students, individuals, and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

For our wonderful country to thrive, and live up to its promise, we must return to freedom without favor. Otherwise, we'll become a theocracy and dictatorship.

Sincerely,
Dr. Jodi Goodman

[redacted]

From: Ed Solenberger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:11:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

We can be so much better!  Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Ed Solenberger
[redacted]

From: jeff dupre <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:14:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
jeff dupre

[redacted]

From: David Elfin <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:15:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
David Elfin

PII PII

From: James Shannahan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:15:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
James Shannahan
[redacted]

From: Evelyn West <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:15:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Evelyn West

[redacted]

From: Jeff Soots <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:16:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate. If parents want to send their children to religious schools, they can do it using their own funds, not my tax dollars.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jeff Soots

PII
PII

From: Terry Fraser <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:17:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. Each individual has a personal relationship with their faith it is not the states role to legislate what that faith should look like. The Constitution ensures a freedom of religion.

My ancestors came to the USA over 200 years ago in part to be able to practice their individual freedom of religion.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Terry Fraser
[redacted]

From: Alexander Kowtun <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:18:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Alexander Kowtun

[redacted]

From: Jennifer Jones <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:18:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jennifer Jones

[redacted]

From: Alice Stehle <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:19:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Alice Stehle
[redacted]

From: Carolyn Blevins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:19:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Carolyn Blevins

[redacted]

From: Mary Alm <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:20:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

As a faith-full Unitarian Universalist, I'm not at all impressed by the makeup of your commission, much less its public statements.
How dare you suggest my faith means less than your faith, that my faith is not protected by the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States of America! This is unconscionable.
The founders (who were well aware of the Unitarian faith) clearly decided to favor NO ONE RELIGION over all others.
Stop pretending otherwise.
Building a strong wall between the functions of government and of religion was a stroke of genius on their part.
It is my opinion that you should be shoring up this wall, not weakening it.

Sincerely,
Ms. Mary Alm

[redacted]

From: Barry Swedlow <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:21:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Barry Swedlow

[redacted]

From: Robert Zeller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:21:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Robert Zeller

[redacted]

From: Charles Wieland <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:21:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
mr Charles Wieland
[redacted]

From: Micheal Erickson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:22:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Micheal Erickson

[redacted]

From: rebecca west <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:22:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. rebecca west
[redacted]

From: Leo Kucewicz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:23:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Leo Kucewicz

[redacted]

From: Elaine Maurer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:24:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Elaine Maurer

[redacted]

From: Jane Owen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:24:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Jane Owen
[redacted]

From: Jo Harvey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:28:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jo Harvey

[redacted]

From: Glen Thamert <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:30:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Glen Thamert
[redacted]

From: Mark Myers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:30:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mark Myers

[redacted]

From: Richard Saltsman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:31:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Saltsman
[redacted]

From: Shelley Snyder <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:31:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Shelley Snyder
[redacted]

From: James Dawson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:31:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
James Dawson

[redacted]

From: Deborah McFatter <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:31:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs. We are already seeing in our area religious nationalists trying to force THEIR beliefs on our local public school!!

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Deborah McFatter

[redacted]

From: Michalle Gleason <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:32:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Michalle Gleason
[redacted]

From: Keith Emery <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:33:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Keith Emery

[redacted]

From: Daniel Ward <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:33:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The one thing that set the United States of America apart from most of the rest of the world from the start was the separation of church and state.

The separation of church and state gave Americans the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Daniel Ward

[redacted]

From: Victoria Pawlick <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:35:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Victoria Pawlick
[redacted]

From: Christina E Dickson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:35:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Christina E Dickson

[redacted]

From: Paula Wolf <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:36:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Paula Wolf

[redacted]

From: Jo Ann Bingel <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:38:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jo Ann Bingel

[redacted]

From: Rose Jeffery <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:38:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rose Jeffery

[redacted]

From: Kathleen Rogers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:43:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Kathleen Rogers
[redacted]

From: Sherwin Back <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:44:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Sherwin Back

[redacted]

From: Carole Williams <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:44:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Carole Williams
[redacted]

From: Richard Askins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:45:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Askins
[redacted]

From: Georgia Shankel <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:45:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Georgia Shankel
[redacted]

From: Kat Taylor <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:46:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rev. Kat Taylor

From: Michael Spafford <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:46:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Michael Spafford

[redacted]

From: lloyd Kumley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:47:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role churches-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of churches and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Churches-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of churches and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Churches-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Churches-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Churches-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Churches-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. lloyd Kumley

[redacted]

From: Lori Riley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:48:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lori Riley

[redacted]

From: Robert Schwartz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:48:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Robert Schwartz

[redacted]

From: Donn Hellinger <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:50:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Donn Hellinger

PII
PII

From: Latricia Greene <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:51:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Latricia Greene

[redacted]

From: Isidoro Tamborello <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:53:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Isidoro Tamborello
[redacted]

From: Reid Wood <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:55:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Reid Wood

[redacted]

From: Joseph Fuller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:57:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Joseph Fuller

[redacted]

From: Nikki Blaha <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:57:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Nikki Blaha

[redacted]

From: Justin Philipps <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:58:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Justin Philipps

[redacted]

From: Maxine Litwak <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 18:58:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I absolutely support separation of church and state!

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Maxine Litwak

[redacted]

From: Eric Steinberg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:00:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Eric Steinberg

[redacted]

From: Andrew Hefner <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:03:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Andrew Hefner
[redacted]

From: Kenneth Kast <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:03:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

If you don't correct this mess, I am sure you are going to hell

Sincerely,
Mr. Kenneth Kast

[redacted]

From: Larry Bair <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:04:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

To the seriously confused, mislead, misguided, lying and quite possibly borderline demonic: Separation of church and state is law clearly written in our constitution.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

So, stop working for the devil. You are threatening your own souls by playing this dangerous game.

Sincerely,
Mr. Larry Bair

PII PII

From: Susan Schmidt <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:04:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Susan Schmidt
[redacted]

From: Kristin Lewis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:05:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Kristin Lewis
[redacted]

From: Carol Devoss <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:07:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Carol Devoss

[redacted]

From: Paula Mossaides <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:08:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Paula Mossaides

[redacted]

From: Bruce Johnson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:11:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

There is a place for religion in our community. However, when the state recognizes one denomination over all other denominations, this creates a two-tier citizenship. This is contrary to our country's foundational principals; that all people are created equal.

We've seen the results of a combined state and one denomination. The People who are treated as second class citizens do not feel that all People are created equal.

The only manner to treat all people equal is to keep the public space open to all religions. This is the purpose of keeping the state separate from religion.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Bruce Johnson
[redacted]

From: Barbara Tagg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:14:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Barbara Tagg

[redacted]

From: Stephen Willey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:22:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects THE VITAL ROLE CHURCH_STATE SEPARATION HAS IN PROTECTING RE:IGIOUS FREEDOM FOR ALL AMERICANS.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all religious backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Stephen Willey

[redacted]

From: Rolf Friis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:25:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Rolf Friis

[redacted]

From: Gayle Civale <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 02 Jul 2026 19:29:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Gayle Civale

[redacted]

From: Mark Giordani <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 00:26:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Mark Giordani

[redacted]

From: Linda Flynn <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 00:32:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Church-state separation is the foundation of America.

Sincerely,
Linda Flynn

[redacted]

From: MARION MOSS HUBBARD <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 00:38:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

1) Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike.

2) Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

3) Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

4) Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

5) Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

6) Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. Taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. MARION MOSS HUBBARD

[redacted]

From: Madeline Shapiro <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 00:38:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Madeline Shapiro

[redacted]

From: Betsy Cousins-Coleman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 00:40:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Betsy Cousins-Coleman

[redacted]

From: "Thomas M. Bush" <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 00:42:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

I strongly agree with all that I have said above.

Sincerely,
Thomas M. Bush

[redacted]

From: Regina Reich <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 00:54:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Regina Reich

[redacted]

From: Suzanne C Malochee <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 00:55:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

CHURCH-STATE SEPARATION IS VITAL. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Church-state separation gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike, without playing favorites. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from interference by the government and politics.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms and welcoming students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation ensures taxpayer dollars are used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

KEEP GOVERNMENT OUT OF RELIGION AND RELIGION OUT OF GOVERNMENT. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Ms. Suzanne C Malochee
[redacted]

From: Michael Blaszkiewicz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 01:04:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Michael Blaszkiewicz
[redacted]

From: Marianne Frusteri <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 01:04:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Marianne Frusteri

[redacted]

From: Jen Hazen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 01:04:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Jen Hazen

[redacted]

From: virginia weaver <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 01:06:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. virginia weaver

PII PII

From: Barbara Anders <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 01:11:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Barbara Anders

[redacted]

From: Jonathan Mariante <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 01:13:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jonathan Mariante

PII
PII

From: Kenneth Lawson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 01:14:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Kenneth Lawson

[redacted]

From: Veola Carter <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 01:16:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Veola Carter
[redacted]

From: Aimee Dars Ellis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 01:25:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Aimee Dars Ellis

[redacted]

From: George Parrish <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 01:28:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. George Parrish

[redacted]

From: Melissa Cathcart <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 01:29:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Melissa Cathcart

[redacted]

From: Susan Kohlhagen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 01:33:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Susan Kohlhagen

[redacted]

From: Vicki Terrell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 02:10:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Vicki Terrell

[redacted]

From: Michael Blailock <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 02:16:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Michael Blailock

[redacted]

From: Dirk Buijsman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 02:18:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dirk Buijsman

[redacted]

From: Destiny Mendoza <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 02:28:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Destiny Mendoza

[redacted]

From: Nancy Pollok <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 02:31:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nancy Pollok

PII PII

From: Valarie St Marie <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 02:31:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Valarie St Marie

[redacted]

From: John Anderson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 02:38:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. John Anderson

[redacted]

From: Thomas Yaussy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 02:48:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Thomas Yaussy

[redacted]

From: Kim Flores <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:00:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Kim Flores

[redacted]

From: David Tillery <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:00:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. David Tillery

[redacted]

From: Dirk Beving <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:00:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Dirk Beving

[redacted]

From: DIA REDMAN <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:00:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. DIA REDMAN

[redacted]

From: Mark Mahony <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:00:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role the Constitutional church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for ALL Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice ANY religion or NO religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for EVERYONE—religious and nonreligious people alike! It ensures that the government CANNOT impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—NOT government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation PROTECTS houses of worship from government intrusion, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain FREE from political control and interference.

Church-state separation PROTECTS our public schools by keeping COERCIVE prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of ALL backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures EQUAL treatment under the law. The government must serve ALL people fairly, REGARDLESS of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must NOT use religion to DISCRIMINATE!

Sincerely,
Mr. Mark Mahony

[redacted]

From: Alisha Nickols <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:00:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Alisha Nickols

PII
PII

From: Nancy White <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:00:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate. This is critically important to me, and I expect you to not only respect the separation, but to insure that it continues as intended.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nancy White

From: Michael Zacharia <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:00:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Michael Zacharia
[redacted]

From: Amy Harlib <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:00:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

FIRST AMENDMENT ESTABLISHMENT CLAUSE!

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Amy Harlib

[redacted]

From: Betty Stromberg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:00:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Betty Stromberg
[redacted]

From: Forest Frasieur <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:00:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Forest Frasieur
[redacted]

From: William Bishop <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:07:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
William Bishop
[redacted]

From: Michael Zacharia <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:10:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Michael Zacharia

[redacted]

From: Robert Ramsey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:23:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Dr. Goebbels would be extremely proud of your committee. It brings to life all of the propaganda and filth he supported during theThousand Year Reich.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

This committee formation is a tragic continuation of a pathetic attempt by an UNChristian individual to destroy the democracy and individual's religious choice of all citizens of United States of America. You have no more knowledge of religious freedom than Adolf Hitler or Joseph Stalin. You should be ashamed yourselves. The image of the president (sic) holding a Bible upside down says all an average American needs to know about his stupidity and incompetence.

Sincerely,
Robert Ramsey

[redacted]

From: Julie Kanoff <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:42:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Church and state separation is a founding principle of our constitution. I write to demand you ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Do not dismiss the founding principle of church and state separation as a hoax or outdated. It has made America what it is today and what we are seeing dismantled day by day by this Republican regime under a lawless president.

Sincerely,
Ms. Julie Kanoff
[redacted]

From: Alice Polesky <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 04:46:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Alice Polesky

[redacted]

From: Angus MacDonald <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 05:08:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Angus MacDonald
[redacted]

From: Kendall Griffith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 05:13:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I agree with the following points, and strongly support the separation of church and state.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Sincerely,
Kendall Griffith

[redacted]

From: Erik Schwarz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 05:49:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The Religious Liberty Commission's final report should reflect the long established and mutually beneficial role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Erik Schwarz
[redacted]

From: L Glasner <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 06:11:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
L Glasner

PII
PII

From: Abbie Bernstein <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 06:12:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am a person of faith, but I do not want the government involved in my or anyone else's religious observance or lack thereof.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Abbie Bernstein

[redacted]

From: Linda Rucci <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 06:17:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Linda Rucci

[redacted]

From: john maloney <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 06:19:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. john maloney

[redacted]

From: Gerald Stidham <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 06:33:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Gerald Stidham
[redacted]

From: Frank Wissler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 07:01:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. Favoring one religion, Christianity, is inconsistent with the Constitution, and is a direct attack on my right to be free of any religion.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone. Funding religion against my wishes is the equivalent of taxation without representation.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Frank Wissler

[redacted]

From: John Krizan <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 07:07:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

It is NOT a misinterpretation to say that church-state separation IS what is meant in the 1st amendment of our Constitution!! You are the ones who are misinterpreting! So, stop trying to dictate to people how to worship, or to worship at all, and start protecting their right to worship as THEY believe their god has inspired them to!!

Sincerely,
Mr. John Krizan

PII
PII

From: Glenda Mattes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 07:12:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Glenda Mattes

[redacted]

From: Dorothy Schwendinger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 07:32:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Dorothy Schwendinger
[redacted]

From: Rock Dash <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 07:36:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rock Dash

[redacted]

From: Dorothy Schwendinger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 07:36:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when's your on Ithey are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Miss Dorothy Schwendinger

[redacted]
[redacted]

From: Gail Trill <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 07:43:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Imagine being required to worship the devil in school! Or a Goddess. If government and religion are not separated, this could happen.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Gail Trill

[redacted]

From: Joe Martin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 07:45:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Joe Martin

[redacted]

From: Beth Conrey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 07:46:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Beth Conrey

[redacted]

From: Herbert Lord <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 07:48:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Herbert Lord

[redacted]

From: JoAnna Boyette <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 07:54:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
JoAnna Boyette

PII
PII

From: Robert Allen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:03:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Robert Allen

[redacted]

From: Pennie Portie <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:10:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Pennie Portie

[redacted]

From: Donald Jackman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:10:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Donald Jackman
[redacted]

From: Zareth Jones <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:12:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Zareth Jones

[redacted]

From: Naomi Weisman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:18:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Naomi Weisman

[redacted]

From: Wayne Griest <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:19:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Wayne Griest

[redacted]

From: Janet Cavallo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:22:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Janet Cavallo

[redacted]

From: Thomas Wineholt <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:26:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Thomas Wineholt

[redacted]

From: Jaszmene Smith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:28:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jaszmene Smith

[redacted]

From: Ann Throop <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:29:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Ann Throop

From: Jeff Masco <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:31:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jeff Masco

[redacted]

From: George Urban <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:32:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
George Urban

[redacted]

From: Ed Malone <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:35:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Ed Malone

[redacted]

From: CHARLES KEELING <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:35:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

SEPARATION OF CHURCH AND STATE IS NOT WHAT YOU THINK IT IS:

- The separation of church and state is what gives us the right to practice any religion OR NO RELIGION as long as we don't harm others.

- Church-state separation PROTECTS RELIGIOUS FREEDOM for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founding Fathers recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

- Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—make their OWN decisions about religion and religious education.

- Church-state separation PROTECTS houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

- Church-state separation PROTECTS our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms and ensuring that schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

- Church-state separation PROTECTS taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

- Church-state separation ENSURES EQUAL TREATMENT
under the law. This means the government must serve all people equally and fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. CHARLES KEELING

[redacted]

From: Jon Krueger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:41:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious opinion freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jon Krueger

[redacted]

From: Judith Hazelton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 08:48:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Judith Hazelton

[redacted]

From: Michael Stella <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:01:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Michael Stella
[redacted]

From: Katie Bischoff <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:04:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Katie Bischoff

[redacted]

From: Fiona Allison <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:05:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am appealing to you to do what Is right and abide by the Constitution.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Fiona Allison

[redacted]

From: Troy Hamilton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:06:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Troy Hamilton

[redacted]

From: Ron Richter <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:07:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Ron Richter
[redacted]

From: Michael Wallace <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:10:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Michael Wallace

[redacted]

From: Antonino Erba <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:11:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Antonino Erba
[redacted]

From: GREGORY PAVLIDIS <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:13:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. GREGORY PAVLIDIS

PII
PII

From: Mary Ann van Hartesveldt <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:18:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mary Ann van Hartesveldt
[redacted]

From: David Iler <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:21:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
David Iler

PII
PII

From: David Iler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:22:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
David Iler

[redacted]

From: Paul Messner <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:30:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Paul Messner

[redacted]

From: Julie Prandi <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:32:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—no can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Julie Prandi
[redacted]

From: Andrea Coffey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:34:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

This is one of the most important decisions to protect American Democracy. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Andrea Coffey

Sincerely,
Dr. Andrea Coffey

[redacted]

From: George Shrewsbury <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:45:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
George Shrewsbury

[redacted]

From: Linda Kelly <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:56:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Separation of church & state was promised by our founding fathers. Religious ideologies are historically the fire for wars & oppression of humanity. At 5 years old a bully neighborhood boy called me a"CatLicker" taunting & riding his bike around my 7 year old brother & I walking from school. Obviously his parents were religious bigots. Seems to me this present administration is full of religious bigots. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Linda Kelly

[redacted]

From: Mary Sullivan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:58:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Mary Sullivan

[redacted]

From: Elizabeth Goodson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 09:59:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Goodson

[redacted]

From: Gary Berke <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:03:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Gary Berke

[redacted]

From: David Clayman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:04:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
David Clayman

[redacted]

From: Ron De Stefano <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:15:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Ron De Stefano

PII PII

From: Jen Emerle-Sifuentes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:17:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Jen Emerle-Sifuentes
[redacted]

From: Vickie Stangl <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:18:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The Separation of Church & State is what has made our nation so revolutionary & our government stable since 1789. We have not endured religious strife and religious wars happening in the Middle East & Iran where bloodshed & oppression continue to plague these nations without a church-state separation mandate.

As a retired Political Science instructor I am well aware of the purpose & important inclusion in the US Constitution of the Establishment Clause due to James Madison's concern about religious coercion from political leaders using religion as their authority to oppress American citizens.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. Too many current laws & policies are using religious dogma to take away the rights of Americans. We see what is going on: from Roe, to contraceptives & even women voting continue, these important rights are being erased based upon one religious dogma, thus violating this long held principle in the Constitution that our government shall not promote or endorse any one belief system.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people .Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Lastly, it is ridiculous to try & erase documented history.The father of our Constitution clearly expressed the dangers of religion mixing with government & to that end made that sentiment clear in the 1st Amendment adopted by Congress in their first session. Later, Jefferson used a metaphor of a wall of separation to explain more clearly what the highest law of the land had established with this principle that must not be breeched.

Nothing is more critical to a stable democracy than a government free of religious intrusion. If you cannot support that fact then you clearly have other designs & are purposely failing to uphold the highest law of the land.

Sincerely,
Ms Vickie Stangl

[redacted]

[redacted]

From: John Winn <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:25:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
John Winn

[redacted]

From: Robert Depew <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:31:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Robert Depew

[redacted]

From: Alexander LeClaire <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:32:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Alexander LeClaire

[redacted]

From: Frank Aiello <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:33:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Frank Aiello

[redacted]

From: C Ruder <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:34:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Separation of church and state is written into the US Constitution. Religious liberty means being free to practice WHATEVER RELIGION you choose, not any dictated by the government of interest groups.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
C Ruder

[redacted]

From: Robin Beerman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:37:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Show us all that this commission is truly a patriotic one that understands and upholds the US Constitution which clearly defines separation of Church & State. That is: the freedom to practice whatever religion or none that you as an individual choses.

Sincerely,
Ms. Robin Beerman

[redacted]

From: Riley Canada II <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:41:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Riley Canada II

[redacted]

From: Tammy Jantzen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:41:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Tammy Jantzen

From: Debra Carey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:43:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Debra Carey

[redacted]

From: Dwayne Thomas <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:49:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Dwayne Thomas
[redacted]

From: Larry Gradwohl <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 10:56:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Larry Gradwohl

PII PII

From: jill harmer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:03:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion.

taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Miss jill harmer

[redacted]

From: Sheila Kinkead <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:06:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Sheila Kinkead
[redacted]

From: Kevin Curtis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:06:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

My wife and I hope the Religious Liberty Commission's report supports church-state separation in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Church-state separation means religious freedom for all and freedom from religion for all.

Our government should never impose religious beliefs or favor one religion over another.

Separation of church and state promises that children and their families make their own decisions about religion and religious education without government intervention in public schools.

We live in Madison County. President Madison was instrumental in the creation of the establishment clause. He opposed the establishment of a tax to support religion by asking the question, "which religions?"

Sincerely,
Kevin Curtis

[redacted]

From: Stewart Hockenberry <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:08:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am a born American and I am an atheist (not an agnostic). I personally reject all forms of religion but respect and can well tolerate others' freedom to religious practice and faith as long as these practices do not impinge upon or oppress another American's freedom to similarly live their personal life without prejudice or persecution.

I am an atheist, not based upon any scientific argument or proof, but on ethical conviction. Experience and the overdetermined patterns of history have taught that religion preys upon the vulnerable with coercive fears and threats as the stick to the carrot of cynical exploitive promises of transcendent redemption. For the select few appointed on top, the spoils of religion are lavish while for the great hapless multitudes in its thrall, its effects are soporific, deadening of life and true creative potentials, terroristically traumatizing and cruel. Since civilizations first emerged, there has been virtually no war, abomination, purge or mass act of human cruelty that has come without the justifying blessing of a convenient religious authority.

The framers of our democratic system of government built within its articles an unequivocal separation between what is church and what is state. That they had done so very deliberately draws directly from the bitter experiences within their homelands that had generationally brought them to this country with the great vision for real freedom. Any rupture in this sacred separation, opens us up again to the same corrupting use of religion as an exploitive authority over the vulnerable many by the self-interested few—the oligarchs, the theocrats and the authoritarian psychopaths who invariably fold any religious doctrine into their own fever dream.

Let me remind anyone who tampers with this vital church and state separation that nowhere has Jefferson's admonishment been more true: "The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants." I, for one, will not stand peacefully by, to allow my personal freedom oppressed by any religious delusion.

Sincerely,
Stewart Hockenberry

[redacted]

From: Laura Tomanka <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:09:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

I am absolutely opposed to the idea that America is a "Christian Nation" with only one religion. Our Founders were of different faiths and were here in part because they opposed the oppression of the Church of England on citizens.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church is the place to worship and indoctrinate its members as that religion believes best. Private churches can preach discrimination the wages of sin all they want in their houses of worship. BUT, public places and institutions should be non-religious, neutral, so that all persons who are served by public institutions can feel welcome and equal.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded services must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Laura Tomanka

[redacted]

From: Michael Davis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:22:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Michael Davis
[redacted]

From: Lisa Webb <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:26:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Lisa Webb
[redacted]

From: Sam Aldiero <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:27:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Sam Aldiero

[redacted]

From: J R Checchia <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:31:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. J R Checchia
[redacted]

From: Greg Tillman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:32:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Remember what happened when we, Americans, were forced by the church-state of England to act and worship the way they wanted us to. We revolted. Our founding fathers were smart enough to realize that religion had no place in politics, and that's why they put that in the Constitution.

Sincerely,
Greg Tillman

[redacted]

From: Norma Samame <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:34:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Norma Samame

[redacted]

From: Dennis Knaack <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:45:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Dennis Knaack
[redacted]

From: Gregory Rasmussen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:49:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Gregory Rasmussen

[redacted]

From: Laura Garro <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:51:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Laura Garro

[redacted]

From: "H. Kaplan" <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 11:53:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. H. Kaplan

[redacted]

From: Brian Campbell <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 12:01:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

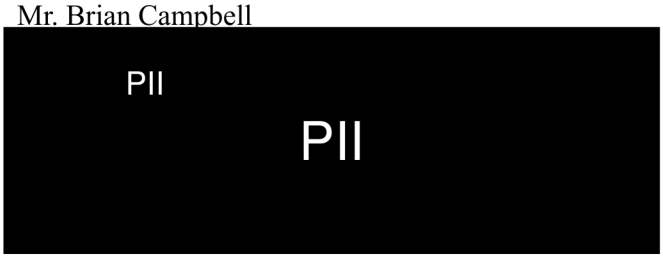
Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.



Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Brian Campbell

From: Molly OBrien <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 12:01:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am writing on the eve of July 4th, when my thoughts are full of America's past, present, and future.

Just over 200 years ago, on July 10, 1822, James Madison – a founder of the Republic, primary architect of the U.S. Constitution, and fourth U.S. President—wrote these words:

"Every new & successful example therefore of a perfect separation between ecclesiastical and civil matters, is of importance. And I have no doubt that every new example, will succeed, as every past one has done, in shewing that religion & Govt. will both exist in greater purity, the less they are mixed together."

I've been to James Madison's estate and stood in his office, surrounded by the books and wisdom he drew on as he labored to craft a constitution that would withstand the push and pull of politics and power. He thought about this deeply, and recognized that freedom to practice one's faith and a government "of, by, and for the people" both do better when protected by church-state separation.

I grew up in the Catholic church. Faith is so deeply rooted that of course people feel strongly about it, as they should. When there is no barrier between religion and government, people who belong to minority faiths are often subject to unequal treatment, and politicians are incentivized to use religion as a wedge. It opens up religious institutions to greater likelihood of political corruption, and fuels conflict.

Tempting as it may be for people of faith to want to remove the separation of church and state, I urge you in the strongest terms not to pursue that course.

Sincerely,
Ms Molly OBrien

[redacted]

From: Karin Hemmingsen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 12:02:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am writing as a native born US citizen (some of whose ancestors came to this land in the 1630's to escape religious discrimination England) and as a strong proponent for our Constitution.

You need to ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others, per the Constitution.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate. And of course, even in their day, it was not just different denominations of Protestants in this country, but rather Protestants, Catholics, Jews, Muslims and others.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Karin Hemmingsen

[redacted]

From: Trish Stevens <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 12:05:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Trish Stevens

[redacted]

From: Alene Shaibi <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 12:12:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Alene Shaibi
[redacted]

From: Michael Holman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 12:20:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rev Michael Holman

[redacted]

From: Harold Rosenberg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 12:24:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Harold Rosenberg
[redacted]

From: Marion Becker <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 12:26:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
mrs Marion Becker

[redacted]

From: Susan Aronson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 12:47:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

As a Jewish American, my family and I have been made to feel different and excluded at schools and public gatherings when Christian prayers and beliefs have been exclusively promoted. Our founding fathers understood the importance of separation of church and state and I wholeheartedly support that principle.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Susan Aronson

[redacted]

From: Allan Campbell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 13:08:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

The separation of church and state is real and it is what the founders would have wanted. All freedom starts when religion is separate is from government.

Sincerely,
Mr. Allan Campbell

[redacted]

From: Rabbi Adele Plotkin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 13:11:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. We must not impose our religion on others and they should not be allowed to impose their religious views on us!

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms and school events. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion in any of its religious endeavors. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups who do public service [food, clothes, etc.] must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Rabbi Adele Plotkin
[redacted]

From: Shari Riffe <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 13:13:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Shari Riffe

[redacted]

From: Michael Brown <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 03 Jul 2026 13:14:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Michael Brown
[redacted]

From: Herschel Ramsey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 13:20:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

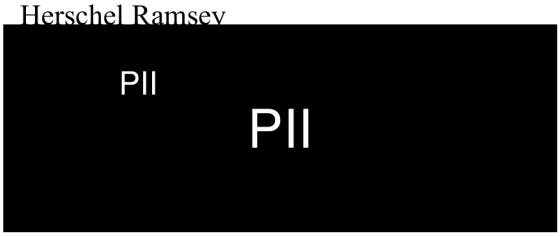
---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,



Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Herschel Ramsey

From: Valeri Fornagiel <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 14:13:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Valeri Fornagiel

PII PII

From: Phillip Mixon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 17:04:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate. Further, since when do religious uniformity and conformity strengthen a nation's government? The CIA should investigate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Phillip Mixon

[redacted]

From: D C <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 17:46:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. D C

[redacted]

From: Michele Hemeryck <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 18:12:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

I am fortunate to live in an area where my fellow residents come from all over the globe. My friends express their spirituality in many ways, based sometimes, but not always, on many religious traditions. Their friendship and willingness to share their beliefs have shaped my own by offering differing perspectives for me to explore. Church-state separation gives us the opportunity to live together as a supportive and powerful community, recognizing we are all human beings striving to pursue life, liberty and happiness.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Michele Hemeryck

[redacted]

From: Deborah Greenberg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 18:14:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Deborah Greenberg

[redacted]

From: Steve Botts <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 18:23:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Steve Botts

[redacted]

From: Judith Lowell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 18:24:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Judith Lowell

[redacted]

From: Lynette OPray <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 18:26:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lynette OPray

PII PII

From: Judith Lewis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 18:29:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Judith Lewis

[redacted]

From: Nora Kancelbaum <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 19:59:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

When religious education is presented in publc schools, that is a form of coercion.  No one should be forced to believe in someone else's religion.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nora Kancelbaum

[redacted]

From: Alonzo Jones <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 20:44:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Our founding fathers were well aware of the dangers of combining political and religious power. Many had personal experiences with the religious wars of the time. They did not want them here. They also did not want to limit the beliefs of the citizens. The variety of faiths in our nation is decidedly healthy.
As a Rotarian I believe firmly in the Four Way Test's final points: Will it be fair to ALL concerned? and Will it be beneficial to ALL concerned. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.
That said Americans gave up some of their religious power when they gave up their care for the welfare of their neighbors to the government. We have found since how difficult and unduly expensive that is when an impersonal government must intervene in a personal situation.is an arena where the government can help religions regain the power they walked away from decades ago when the expense was overwhelming

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious welfare oriented groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Alonzo Jones

[redacted]

From: James Moran <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 21:11:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
James Moran
[redacted]

From: Richard Richard <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 22:02:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Richard

PII
PII

From: Virginia Manuel <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 22:05:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Virginia Manuel

[redacted]

From: Nora Rhan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 22:13:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Nora Rhan

[redacted]

From: Dalia Salgado <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 22:37:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dalia Salgado

[redacted]

From: Joan L Bybee <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 22:58:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I believe firmly in that the separation of church and state is one of the main pillars of our democracy.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
DR Joan L Bybee
[redacted]

From: Elizabeth Ruegsegger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 23:44:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Elizabeth Ruegsegger

[redacted]

From: Andrew Kohen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 04 Jul 2026 23:52:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Andrew Kohen

[redacted]

From: Linda Ricks <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 00:29:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Linda Ricks

[redacted]

From: Robert Poignant Jr <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 00:38:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

FACT: Founders of this nation were aware of the history of Protestant-Catholic political conflict and murders in Great Britain. They were aware of centuries of European wars conducted by countries ruled by "christian" rulers. They chose to have the 13 Colonies united and free of religious conflict since there were Catholic, Quakers, Baptists, et. al and even Jews and Muslims living here at that time.

GET THOSE FACTS INTO YOUR BIGOTED BRAINS!

Ensure the "wall of separation between state and religion remains intact.
Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Robert Poignant Jr

[redacted]

From: Kevin Ascher <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 01:01:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Kevin Ascher

[redacted]

From: David R Wilcox <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 09:30:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. David R Wilcox
[redacted]

From: Erika Shadow <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 09:36:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

True religious freedom for all Americans requires a strict separation of church and state.
This core principle protects the rights of both religious and nonreligious citizens by preventing government endorsement or imposition of faith.
It leaves spiritual decisions to families, shields houses of worship from state control, and keeps public schools welcoming to all backgrounds.
Ultimately, keeping religion and government separate ensures equal treatment under the law, prevents discriminatory use of public funds, and allows both institutions to flourish.
Our founding fathers escaped religious persecution from Europe and ensured that freedom was put into our Constitution.
They believed in a god and were considered deists not religious fundamentalists.
Please continue the separation of church and state from this great nation.

Sincerely,
Erika Shadow

[redacted]

From: James Beckwith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 09:52:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. James Beckwith

[redacted]

From: Dorothy Anderson <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 10:18:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Dorothy Anderson

PII PII

From: Janice Lyle <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 10:40:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Religious liberty includes freedom to choose religion, expression of religion, and to refuse religion. If I don't follow your precepts I'm still a citizen. Don't force your beliefs on me.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Janice Lyle

PII PII

From: Kate Butt <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 11:01:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Kate Butt

[redacted]

From: Carollynn Zimmers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 11:18:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am 77 Years old, grew up in the United States, and was taught in school about the separation of Church and State.

Separation of Church and State is a fundamental freedom that is being threatened and needs to be protected.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Carollynn Zimmers

[redacted]

From: CAROLE CROPLEY <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 11:32:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. CAROLE CROPLEY

PII PII

From: Marisa Conners <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 11:35:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Making the choice to learn about another religion should come from a place of curiosity, not forced education like in Texas. Please highlight the importance of the separation of church and state in your final report.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marisa Conners

From: James Martin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 12:33:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
James Martin
[redacted]

From: John Altshuler <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 12:43:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. John Altshuler

PII
PII

From: Christopher Buckley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 12:50:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

As a lifelong practicing Christian, I implore you to see that the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Christopher Buckley

[redacted]

From: Lorie Lucky <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 13:09:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

i would have liked to say this myself, but Americans United has already said everything that needs to be said on this issue of separation of church and state.  Do we have to go back to look at one of the giant reasons that the Pilgrims and Puritans arrived here?  To practice their own religous ideas without fear of a government interlocked with any religion.

Recollection of the Grand Inquisition and the many countries and people it brought literally to their knees in Western Europe still springs to mind

Sincerely,
Ms. Lorie Lucky

PII PII

From: Dan Green <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 13:24:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I'm writing to let you know how important church-state separation is to me and to my community. I believe in religious freedom for all Americans and I hope you do too. I hope your final report will take this into account.

It would be serious government overreach--not to mention misuse of taxpayer funds--if any one religion was favored over another. It would also betray our Constitution.

Sincerely,
Dan Green
[redacted]

From: Jack Stansfield <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 13:24:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jack Stansfield

[redacted]

From: Susan Cullom <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 13:29:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am not part of any of any of the hundreds of religions practiced here in the USA and do not want anyone's version of their religion shoved down my or my children's throats by elected officials whose job is to represent their constituents, religious or not.
What happens if a Satanist, Hindu, Muslim is elected and wants to share their beliefs thru government channels-you ok with that?
Freedom From Religion is truly Freedom of Religion!
Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Susan Cullom

[redacted]

From: Jeffrey Collins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 13:46:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

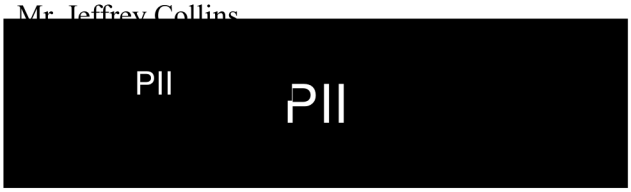
Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. This is one of the important foundations of our nation. We cannot allow one particular religion or set of religious values to impact our government.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.



Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Jeffrey Collins

From: Clayton Compton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 14:03:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families, not government officials, can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Clayton Compton

[redacted]

From: Ann Michel <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 14:04:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Americans are being attacked because of their religious beliefs.

It is crucial that the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ann Michel

[redacted]

From: Megan Perry <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 14:20:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Megan Perry

[redacted]

From: Jordan Jarecki <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 14:33:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jordan Jarecki

[redacted]

From: Corley Phillips <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 14:47:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The Pilgrims came to this country to escape religious persecution. That's why the Constitution demands that the government establish no religion in the country.

That freedom is under attack. My right to practice a different version of Christianity, or no religion at all, is being taken away.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Corley Phillips

[redacted]

From: Peter Roberts <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 15:03:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Peter Roberts
[redacted]

From: Lucas Miller <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 15:22:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Lucas Miller

PII PII

From: Lynne Glaeske <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 15:32:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Government promotion of one religion discriminates against those of other beliefs -- that's why our Founding Fathers were opposed to government-religion promotion.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lynne Glaeske

[redacted]

From: Anne Cooper <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 15:38:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Anne Cooper

[redacted]

From: Katharine Harbury <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 15:59:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Our Founding Fathers, especially George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and James Madison, learned from the tragic history of religious persecution back in old Europe and thus were determined bot to repeat Europe's mistakes. Thus they all came up with religious tolerance for all.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Remember, early European settlers in the 17th-century forced Christianity on the Indigenous people. On the other side of the same coin, most of us Americans are descendants from ancestors who were persecuted for their religion, be it the Salem Witch trials, Quakers, Huguenots, Judaism, and so on.

The separation of church and state gives us the absolutely essential right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm or force our beliefs on others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for EVERYONE—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another.

Again, our very wise Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate, and held such ideas listed below concerning the future:

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

This is what made this country so outstanding and extraordinary in the eyes of the world. We must thus keep the separation of church and state!

Sincerely,
Ms. Katharine Harbury

[redacted]

From: Marian Schwartz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 16:06:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am writing to strongly express my view that the separation of church and state is an idea put forth by the founding members of this country, and is still a very important idea.

In this country, everyone should have equal opportunities to practice their religion, or no religion, as they wish. Government should never promote one religion over another.

This is an idea that differentiates us from many countries and we should be very proud of that.

For example, taxes should not be used to fund religious institutions, and prayer should not be present in public schools.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marian Schwartz

[redacted]

From: Victoria Hassrick <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 16:20:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Separation of Church-state is a fundamental foundation of our DEMOCRACY!

Sincerely,
Victoria Hassrick

[redacted]

From: Carol Scholp <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 16:39:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. The Constitution is very specific in separating church and state. The founders made it a core principle.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Carol Scholp

From: MARTHA CETINA <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 16:46:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. MARTHA CETINA
[redacted]

From: Joy Hahn <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 16:56:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joy Hahn

[redacted]

From: Vic DeAngelo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 17:34:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Vic DeAngelo

[redacted]

From: Susan Weddig <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 17:42:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Susan Weddig

[redacted]

From: Susan Weddig <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 17:49:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

My husband and I think it is very important to keep religion and politics separate because if thestate gets mixed up in religion it only creates hardships and anger and wars like the crusades or the catholic fights in Ireland or the Jewish problems with being treated unfairly. Actually that goes for everyone who is not part of the group supported by the state. Please keep our Bill of Rights intact.

Sincerely,
Susan Weddig
[redacted]

From: Michelle Condon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 18:10:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Our Constitution's first amendment clearly states that Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

I am a very happy United Methodist, and I do not want the government involved in any aspect of my worship and my religion.

Sincerely,
Ms. Michelle Condon

[redacted]

From: Nara Thacher <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 18:42:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Nara Thacher

[redacted]

From: Melissa Brooks <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 20:32:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Melissa Brooks

[redacted]

From: Lorie Tudor <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 21:56:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am a devoted Presbyterian, and I am at church several times a week! And I strongly believe that church and state separation is critically important. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lorie Tudor

[redacted]

From: Matthew Conway <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 22:32:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Matthew Conway

[redacted]

From: Thomas Rottmayer <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 23:22:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all of us in the USA.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion, or no religion, as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone - religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families - not government officials - can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Thomas Rottmayer

PII
PII

From: Brandon Barnard <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 23:25:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Brandon Barnard

[redacted]

From: Robert Schwarz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 05 Jul 2026 23:35:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Members of the Religous Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Thanks so much.
Robert Schwarz

Sincerely,
Robert Schwarz

[redacted]

From: Allyson Mathis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 00:08:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The Separation of Church and State matters to me because I'm a Utahn. The religious persecution that members of the LDS Church faced led to the migration of LDS Church members to Utah.

The Separation of Church and State matters to me because I live in a diverse community. Somewhere around half of my community is LDS and lots of other faiths are practiced (Catholicism, Episcopalism, various Protestant denominations), Judaism, many other faiths or none at all.

Not having a faith privileged is the only way to have a free and fair society, and the only way to have freedom of religion.

There is nothing more American than the Separation of Church and State.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Allyson Mathis

[redacted]

From: Frank Rouse <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 00:09:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Frank Rouse

PII
PII

From: Kathleen Doyle <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 01:02:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure that the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role that church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another.

Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families, not government officials, can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures that schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Kathleen Doyle

[redacted]

From: Alissa Vermillion <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 01:15:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Taxes shouldn't be used to fund religion, The Constitution even says so!

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Sincerely,
Alissa Vermillion

PII
PII

From: Kristina Wayland <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 08:11:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I value the separation of church and state. By separating church and state, Americans have the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Our government should not impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate. Who should make decisions about religion? Not the state but individuals.

Sincerely,
Kristina Wayland

[redacted]

From: Wesley Goible <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 08:20:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Wesley Goible

PII
PII

From: Lori Murphy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 08:27:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans and has since this country's inception.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

As a retired public school teacher, I feel strongly that
Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

.
I grew up in a household with one Irish Catholic parent and one English Protestant and religion was a contentious topic. From an early age I realized that fighting over religion is just stupid. Consequently, I do not want any religion shoved down my throat and I do not want my taxpayer dollars to be funding anything religious AT ALL. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Sincerely,
Ms. Lori Murphy
[redacted]

From: Joan Zierler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 08:53:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joan Zierler

[redacted]

From: Alicia Johnson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 09:11:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

There is no United States without the separation of church and state - our country's freedom to believe as we choose, to not have government force religion on anyone, to not show favoritism, to allow people to practice their religion without government interference so long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Sincerely,
Alicia Johnson
[redacted]

From: Linda Jordan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 09:12:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Linda Jordan

[redacted]

From: Alexis Alt <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 09:21:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Alexis Alt

[redacted]

From: Marian Hoops <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 09:38:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marian Hoops

[redacted]

From: Stefanie Carr <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 10:09:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Stefanie Carr

[redacted]

From: Anna May Casagranda <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 10:24:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Anna May Casagranda

[redacted]

From: Anna May Casagranda <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 10:25:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Anna May Casagranda

[redacted]

From: Jill Beckwith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 10:57:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jill Beckwith

[redacted]

From: Josh Feldblyum <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 11:09:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Religious freedom, for people of ALL religious beliefs (or none at all), is a core American value and is an essential component of a free society. And religious freedom requires that no religious belief, or set of beliefs, is punished or privileged by the government, and that there is no coercion to follow or to abandon any specific belief. And maintaining this freedom REQUIRES a strong separation between church and state.

The reason for this requirement is simple - as soon as the government adopts a particular religious belief, whether in an official capacity or even just by declaring that it is established on the principles of a particular religion, all other beliefs are relegated to second-class status. This does not require any overt discrimination. If I declare that the law must be guided by my religion, and you do not share my religion, then there is an inherent risk that the law will compel you to violate your religious beliefs, and you will be unable to do anything about it because my religion is enshrined into law and yours is not. This could even be the case if you and I share the same religion but differ in our interpretations of a relevant bit of scripture. The only solution is for NO ONE's religion to be enshrined into law.

One point I would like to clarify, because I have encountered this argument from people who want to suppress religious freedom - demanding a secular government is DIFFERENT from demanding an atheistic government. The latter case is an example of giving privileged status to one specific religious belief (in this case, "all religions are false"), and this is no more appropriate in a free society than giving privileged status to any other religious belief. A secular government, on the other hand, is one in which true freedom is preserved - every member of the government (and every other person as well) is welcome to follow whatever beliefs they hold as individuals, but the government itself does not give any sort of preference to any particular belief or set of beliefs. Including, but not limited to, using religious beliefs as a basis for writing laws, hiring staff, or awarding contracts.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission’s final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. I am well aware that this Commission was not actually formed to protect religious freedom, but to promote its erosion and to support privileged status for one particular set of religious beliefs. But I hope that, despite this, you will support the American people instead.

Sincerely,
Josh Feldblyum

[redacted]

From: Beth Wilke <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 11:11:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Beth Wilke

[redacted]

From: Jill Engbring <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 11:17:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jill Engbring

PII
PII

From: sherri hodges <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 11:36:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. sherri hodges
[redacted]

From: Becca Smith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 11:59:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Thank you for taking the time to read this. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate. Everyone the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

I share your values of not wanting government intrusion in personal and family decisions and prudence with taxpayer money. Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Becca Smith

[redacted]

From: Lisa Schoultz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 12:04:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lisa Schoultz

[redacted]

From: Andrea Feist <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 14:11:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Andrea Feist

[redacted]

From: Olah Kaplan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 14:11:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Olah Kaplan
[redacted]

From: Sue Crouse <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 14:13:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sue Crouse
[redacted]

From: Amity Buxton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 14:16:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role that church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they operate separately.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures that schools are welcoming to students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures by law the equal treatment of all people. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Amity Buxton

[redacted]

From: Bryan Hill <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 14:33:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Bryan Hill

PII
PII

From: Carol Soph <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 14:36:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

A child could be harmed if told to follow the 10 Commandments to honor your father and mother if there is violence, sexual assault, and brutality by the family against the child. A child could be afraid to tell a councilor or teacher for help. They in some cases run away from home, suffer in school and turn to alcohol drugs and violence themselves. Breeding another generation of brutality in our communities.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Carol Soph
[redacted]

From: Elaine Edell <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 14:42:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Elaine Edell

PII PII

From: Gilly Nadel <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 15:07:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

As a religious American and a retired attorney, I urge you to issue a report that reasserts the centrality of church-state separation in our democracy.

One thing I've learned over decades of watching American legal doctrine is that we don't want to give even the best government any power that we wouldn't want the worst government to have. If we allow today's government to promote religion, tomorrow's government could use the same power to promote secularism, or Scientology, or really anything that it labels as "religion."

This is why the Founders protected religion from the state -- and the state from religion.

I'm especially wary of my tax dollars being used to promote a particular interpretation of the Bible, especially through the public schools. Each of us reads the Bible through the lens of our respective religion or denomination, and I don't want this most sacred and most private relationship to be shaped by politics.

Please protect religious liberty by confirming that the best -- the only -- way to do so is to keep church and state firmly separate.

Sincerely,
Gilly Nadel

[redacted]

From: Arriba Stature <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 15:27:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Arriba Stature

[redacted]

From: Guthrie Graves-Fitzsimmons <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 15:34:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

Faith flourishes when it is free from government interference. The institutional separation of religion and government is what has allowed for religious freedom to flourish in American history. The Religious Liberty Commission is undermining this core American freedom. I ask you to revisit the history of church-state separation to better understand our religious freedom tradition.

Respectfully,
Guthrie Graves-Fitzsimmons
Washington, DC

From: Drew Kolber <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 15:36:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Drew Kolber
Fairfax, VA

From: Jan Salas <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 15:54:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jan Salas

[redacted]

From: Amorah Ross <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:22:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Amorah Ross

[redacted]

From: "P.R. Sturm" <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:28:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. P.R. Sturm

[redacted]

From: william holden <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:31:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
william holden

[redacted]

From: Karen Jacobsen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:32:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Karen Jacobsen

[redacted]

From: Sofia Montemayor-Thomas <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:39:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Sofia Montemayor-Thomas
Acton, MA

From: John Richkus <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
John Richkus
Jersey City, NJ

From: Shaun Edmonds <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Shaun Edmonds
West Palm Beach, FL

From: Trish Stevens <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Trish Stevens
Troy, ME

From: STEVEN Nasta <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
STEVEN Nasta
New City, NY

From: Laurie Millette <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Laurie Millette
Portsmouth, OH

From: Paul Clinch <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Paul Clinch
Oak Brook, IL

From: Alice Nunns <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Alice Nunns
Richardson, TX

From: Daniel polley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Daniel polley
Chicago, IL

From: Tracey Flanagan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Tracey Flanagan
Murphy, NC

From: James Norris <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
James Norris
Saint Louis, MO

From: Gina Bates <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission.

As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others.

True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity.

I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself.

This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Gina Bates
Apple Creek, OH

From: Pam Pollack <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Pam Pollack
Powell, OH

From: Jason Smith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jason Smith
Knoxville, TN

From: Lisa Meyer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lisa Meyer
Plano, TX

From: Marti Jurick <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Marti Jurick
Moorpark, CA

From: Bruce Ross <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Bruce Ross
Katy, TX

From: Phil UpChurch <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Phil UpChurch
Talbott, TN

From: Mary Gershanoff <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Mary Gershanoff
Lincoln, MA

From: Tara Dondas <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Tara Dondas
Scottsdale, AZ

From: Robbin Flowers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:40:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Robbin Flowers
Raleigh, NC

From: Judith Blanton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Judith Blanton
Clearwater, FL

From: Betty Schwarz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Betty Schwarz
Janesville, WI

From: Clare Meek <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Clare Meek
Boerne, TX

From: Cathy Mason <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Cathy Mason
Alpena, MI

From: "William St. George" <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
William St. George
Wilmington, NC

From: Judith Pekowsky <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Judith Pekowsky
New York, NY

From: judy alexandre <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
judy alexandre
Ventura, CA

From: Lucy Hart <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lucy Hart
Encino, CA

From: Ed Parks <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Respectfully,
Ed Parks
Lawton, OK

From: Kendell Williamson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Kendell Williamson
Apple Valley, CA

From: Erik-Paul Sallmen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Erik-Paul Sallmen
Minneapolis, MN

From: Benjamin Schoon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Benjamin Schoon
Rochester, MN

From: Emily Hayden <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Emily Hayden
Wilmettette, IL

From: Alfred Staab <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Alfred Staab
Wichita, KS

From: Margaret Guilfoy Tyler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Margaret Guilfoy Tyler
Saint Louis, MO

From: Mark Johns <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Mark Johns
Omaha, NE

From: James Adams <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
James Adams
Chanute, KS

From: Mary Highland <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Mary Highland
Fallbrook, CA

From: Joan Quinn <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Joan Quinn
San Marcos, CA

From: Lisa Stone <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lisa Stone
Houston, TX

From: Leslie Asllani <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Leslie Asllani
Trumbull, CT

From: Kelly Miller-Sanchez <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:41:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Kelly Miller-Sanchez
Dublin, CA

From: Victoria Fortin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Victoria Fortin
Redondo Beach, CA

From: Brian Moore <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Brian Moore
PHILADELPHIA, PA

From: Carolina Mercado <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Carolina Mercado
Miami, FL

From: Diana Ward <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Diana Ward
Saint Petersburg, FL

From: Johanna Freeman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Johanna Freeman
Sarasota, FL

From: Teri D <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Teri D
Orlando, FL

From: William Hall <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
William Hall
Baltimore, MD

From: Jeffrey Clouser <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jeffrey Clouser
Mount Joy, PA

From: Larry Rafey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Larry Rafey
Defuniak Springs, FL

From: Gerardo Oviedo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Gerardo Oviedo
Miami, FL

From: Robert Groff <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Robert Groff
Panton, VT

From: Philip Snelling <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Philip Snelling
Redding, CA

From: Lora Mackie <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lora Mackie
Herndon, VA

From: Merrill Zack <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Merrill Zack
Brooklyn, NY

From: Vincent Geiger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Vincent Geiger
Winter Haven, FL

From: Kimberly Seater <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Kimberly Seater
Seattle, WA

From: Ernestine Linton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Ernestine Linton
Nashville, TN

From: Ned Gelband <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Ned Gelband
Boca Raton, FL

From: Robert Feuchter <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Robert Feuchter
Jamaica Estates, NY

From: Mary Schell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Mary Schell
Valencia, PA

From: Brent Spencer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Brent Spencer
Los Angeles, CA

From: Sherry Wilson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:42:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Sherry Wilson
St Charles, IL

From: Shauna Weitzer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Shauna Weitzer
Denver, CO

From: Carolyn Gammerman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Carolyn Gammerman
West Hartford, CT

From: E Kadera <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

OPPOSE OPPOSE OPPOSE the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
E Kadera
Warrenville, IL

From: Jan Hall <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jan Hall
Worthington, OH

From: Karen Klauseger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Karen Klauseger
Lemont, IL

From: Lynnette Black <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

This is URGENT. I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lynnette Black
Falcon Heights, MN

From: Tony Romero <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Tony Romero
New York, NY

From: Steven Scharf <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Steven Scharf
Providence, RI

From: Harry Harrison <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Harry Harrison
Warwick, RI

From: Susan Leibowitz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Susan Leibowitz
Chicago, IL

From: Deborah Ayres <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Deborah Ayres
Tulsa, OK

From: Robin Dumler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Robin Dumler
Berlin, MD

From: Alex Neubert <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I grew up in a very active Baptist family. My father was an American Baptist pastor for over 45 years. We knew Baptist history, especially about Roger Wiliams who founded the First Baptist Church in America.

Roger Williams, a 17th century English minister, was banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony because of his ideas about religious freedom which challenged the exixting powerful Congregational church in Massachusetts. He then moved south, founded the State of Rhode Island, and established Providence as a refuge for individuals fleeing religious persecution. He also founded the First Baptist Church in America. The resulting colony became a sanctuary for Baptists, Quakers, and Jewish settlers, establishing the first true democracy with no religious prerequisites for voting..

A big part of his belief was the Separation of Church and State, arguing that civil government had no right to enforce religious beliefs or punish individuals for matters of their own conscience.

Having lived in another country where there was a 'state religion' (Islam), I was keenly aware of the negative consequences for anyone who would dare to speak out against that church. That experience made me appreciate even more how precious Separation of Church and State is.

I am very concerned that now in the United States there is a growing trend of religious fundamentalists (Christian Nationalists) who believe that they have the right to impose their beliefs on all Americans. Many of these people love to crow about their Baptist faith, unaware of the history of Baptists in America and its struggles. Because they live in parts of the United States where Baptists are now the dominant religion, they believe that all people should 'fall in line'. I find this hypocrisy not only very hard to take but also dangerous. Losing real freedom of religion in America would be a tragedy.

I urge the Religious Liberty Commission to take a strong stand for Separation of Church and State. It is as American as apple pie and a bedrock principle of our country's founding.

Sincerely,
Mr. Alex Neubert

[redacted]

From: Alison McGinty <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:43:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Alison McGinty
Boulder, CO

From: Karen and Will Lozow Cleary <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:44:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

We are submitting this comment to express our strong opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someones who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, we urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

Our belief system calls us to protect the freedoms and well-being of our neighbors. It calls us to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. We urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Karen and Will Lozow Cleary
Bloomington, IN

From: Cynthia Liss <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:44:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Cynthia Liss
Brooklyn, NY

From: Arthur Friedman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:44:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

Religious liberty and freedom means that EVERYONE is entitled to practice their own religious beliefs. No religion supersedes any other. The United States is a pluralistic society of religions.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Arthur Friedman
Rego Park, NY

From: dave anderson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:50:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
dave anderson
laurel, MD

From: Bernadette Porche <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:50:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Bernadette Porche
Atlanta, GA

From: Joellen Height <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:50:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Joellen Height
Chesapeake, VA

From: Leanne Friedman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:50:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Leanne Friedman
Davis, CA

From: Barbra Wolfe <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:50:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Barbra Wolfe
Las Vegas, NV

From: James Klein <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:50:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
James Klein
Corpus Christi, TX

From: John Reading <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:50:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
John Reading
Lemon Grove, CA

From: Charles Plopper <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:51:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Charles Plopper
Aptos, CA

From: Susan Rice <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:51:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few. Our Constitution ensures that we Americans have the right to choose our own religion or no religion. This is what our democracy is all about, Freedom to choose!

Respectfully,
Susan Rice
Garnet Valley, PA

From: Rutherford Charlot <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:51:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Rutherford Charlot
Saint Albans, NY

From: Rebe Lee <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:51:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Rebe Lee
San Lorenzo, CA

From: Sybil Schwartzbach <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:51:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Sybil Schwartzbach
Troy, NY

From: Mike Peale <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:51:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Mike Peale
Aston, PA

From: Deborah Zipf <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:51:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Deborah Zipf
White Plains, NY

From: PAUL Silverstone <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:51:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Separation of church and state is one of the glories of the American constitution and must be maintained. No government should be allowed to raise one religion above the others nor legislate its tenets to deprive other religions of their beliefs.

Respectfully,
PAUL Silverstone
New York, NY

From: Ellen Peters <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:51:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As a Christian, I strongly uphold the concept of separation of church and state. The USA is built on the idea that people of ANY faith, or no faith, should be equal in the eyes of the law and should not be punished for not believing a certain way.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and well-being of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Ellen Peters
Williamsburg, VA

From: Veronica Roche <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:51:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am a Catholic woman religious who has much respect for people of other faiths and for those who have no faith. I appreciate the value expressed in our Constitution for separation of church and state that protects this right.

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Veronica Roche
Haddon Township, NJ

From: Dallas Windham <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:51:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Dallas Windham
Fort Worth, TX

From: Barbara Meyers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:52:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Barbara Meyers
Fremont, CA

From: Mary Jane Sager <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:52:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Mary Jane Sager
Endicott, NY

From: John and Robbie Wertin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:52:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
John and Robbie Wertin
Payson, AZ

From: Tim Fisher <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:52:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Tim Fisher
Staten Island, NY

From: Paul S Schwartz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:52:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Paul S Schwartz
Grass Valley, CA

From: Roslyn Carson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:52:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Roslyn Carson
Ardmore, PA

From: Scott Davidson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:52:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Scott Davidson
Missoula, MT

From: Anne Herrmann <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:52:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Anne Herrmann
New York City, NY

From: Alan Mitchell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:52:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Alan Mitchell
New York, NY

From: Bob Schildgen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:53:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Bob Schildgen
Annapolis, CA

From: James Richardson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:53:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
James Richardson
Seattle, WA

From: Daniel Demetzky <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:53:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Daniel Demetzky
North Ridgeville, OH

From: Mary Ellen Sychtyz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:53:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Mary Ellen Sychtyz
Hanover Township, PA

From: Randall Welch <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:53:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Randall Welch
Snowflake, AZ

From: Christian Daman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:53:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Christian Daman
Sterling Heights, MI

From: Jane Walters <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:53:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jane Walters
Madison, WI

From: Chris Ziegler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:53:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. It elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. This is NOT religious freedom, and does NOT protect of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective benefitting a select few.

Respectfully,
Chris Ziegler
Arlington, MA

From: Clifford Barr <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:53:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Clifford Barr
Frederick, MD

From: Shannon Smith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:53:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Shannon Smith
Rochester, MN

From: Ann Bein <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:54:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Ann Bein
Los Angeles, CA

From: Raymond Schneider <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:54:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Raymond Schneider
Bronx, NY

From: Cameron Samuels <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 16:54:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Cameron Samuels
Katy, TX

From: Tony Kerr <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:01:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Tony Kerr
Bucyrus, KS

From: Rose Berger <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:02:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am a Christian, committed to Jesus Christ as my Lord and Savior. I am absolutely opposed to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission that supports repealing the Johnson Amendment.

I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would elevate preferential options for some Christian perspectives to the detriment of the many Americans in need of housing, healthcare, education, and employment.
Please revise your 12 key recommendations thusly:
1. Instruct the Department of Justice and Supreme Court to strengthen the Establishment Clause and the separation of church and state.
2. The Department of Justice, Department of Health and Human Services, and Equal Employment Opportunity Commission shall NOT issue “Know Your Rights” Posters for anyone.
3. Do NOT single out religious liberty violations as separate from other civil rights violations. Don't waste tax payer money on new systems when the current systems work effectively.
4. Nominate and confirm federal judges with a history of understanding civil rights cases of merits and don't allow the judicial system to become clogged with nuisance, politically motivated cases.
5. Combat all religious liberty violations through existing civil rights cases in the established judiciary system.
6. The Department of Justice shall apply "equal justice under law" in all cases.
7. Maintain and strengthen the Johnson Amendment.
8. Order the Department of War to maintain a broad diversity of support for service members across the religious spectrum, or those of no religious affiliation. Make religious conscientious objection more available to those in and outside the military system.
9. Discontinue efforts to restore benefits to servicemembers who endangered public safety by refusing Covid vaccinations.
10. Honor the courage of religious conscientious objectors to war and those who refused to commit war crimes in active combat.

Respectfully,
Rose Berger
Oak View, CA

From: Jared Cornelia <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:02:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jared Cornelia
Grand Island, NY

From: Karine Denicola <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:02:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Karine Denicola
Cypress, CA

From: SHIRLEY GILFERT <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:02:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report. I was raised in the Christian faith, my grandfather, brother, and three cousins were all ministers, and I have always followed what I believe are the ways Jesus taught us. Nowhere in the Bible did he say love only those with a white skin!
Your beliefs are bigoted and selfish while Jesus was inclusive and selfless.
This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
SHIRLEY GILFERT
Syracuse, NE

From: Jerry Gale <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:03:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jerry Gale
Columbia Heights, MN

From: Kathy Bradley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:03:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I assert my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Kathy Bradley
Lugoff, SC

From: Dana Huntington <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:03:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Dana Huntington
West Hartford, CT

From: Catherine Brackley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:04:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

This is pure discrimination. Trump is not even a religious person. He probably doesn’t even know the story of Jesus Christ. I oppose this vehemently.

Respectfully,
Catherine Brackley
Porterville, CA

From: Joanne Lakosil <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:04:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Joanne Lakosil
Taylor, MI

From: Wayne Stalsworth <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:04:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Wayne Stalsworth
Seguin, TX

From: Rodney Grunes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:04:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Rodney Grunes
WILTON MANORS, FL

From: Gerritt and Elizabet Baker-Smith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:04:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

As Presbyterian clergy, we are submitting this comment to express our opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, we urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

Our belief system calls us to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. We urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Gerritt and Elizabet Baker-Smith
Portsmouth, VA

From: Cathy Delia <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:04:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Cathy Delia
Cape Coral, FL

From: barbara klein-robuck <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:05:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
barbara klein-robuck
San Juan Capistrano, CA

From: James Bengel <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:05:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
James Bengel
Pittsboro, NC

From: Mary Lebert <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:05:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Mary Lebert
Brighton, MI

From: Irene Roos <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:05:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Irene Roos
Lakeside, CA

From: John Peters <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:06:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
John Peters
Conesus, NY

From: Carlos Nunez <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:06:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Carlos Nunez
Reseda, CA

From: Linda Hamann <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:06:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Linda Hamann
Fargo, ND

From: Robert Van Wyk <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:06:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My Christian faith calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Robert Van Wyk
Dorset, OH

From: Lucas Peters <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:06:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lucas Peters
Reno, NV

From: Bailee Francis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:06:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Bailee Francis
Cedar Hill, TX

From: Rene Merwin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:06:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

Religious freedom is a pillar of our country.  This report does the opposite of religious freedom.

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Rene Merwin
Durham, NC

From: Hollie Motley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:07:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Hollie Motley
Chapel Hill, NC

From: winifred hopkins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:07:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
winifred hopkins
Fullerton, CA

From: Angelia Parker-Savage <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:07:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Angelia Parker-Savage
Bradenton, FL

From: Mark Meeks <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:07:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Mark Meeks
Bailey, CO

From: Catherine Trejo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:07:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.
This country was founded on the principle of separation of church and state. In their wisdom, and knowing the history of many who fled countries abroad in search of religious freedom, our founders could foresee the dangers of labeling our new country with any one religion. Many religions discriminate against people based on their sex, gender identity, and "cast". Going down those paths will doom our democracy!

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Catherine Trejo
Rancho Mirage, CA

From: Juanita Blau <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:07:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Juanita Blau
Shinglehouse, PA

From: Jan Emerson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:07:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am strongly opposed to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all. We must protect the right and the freedom of every individual to follow the religion they choose, to follow their beliefs. If we are not all protected, no one is protected.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jan Emerson
New York, NY

From: Michele Kolp <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:07:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Michele Kolp
Rochester, NY

From: Corinne Brown <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:07:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Corinne Brown
Eugene, OR

From: Rondi Saslow <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:07:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Rondi Saslow
Berkeley, CA

From: Elizabeth Watts <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:07:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Elizabeth Watts
Boynton Beach, FL

From: Michael Naphys <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:08:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Michael Naphys
Runnemede, NJ

From: Julius Weiss <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:08:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Julius Weiss
Bluemont, VA

From: Phil Clark <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:08:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Phil Clark
Lakeland, FL

From: Terry Flowers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:08:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Terry Flowers
Independence, MO

From: Crystal Whitescarver <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:08:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Crystal Whitescarver
[redacted]

From: Louise Machinist <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:08:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Louise Machinist
Sarasota, FL

From: KAREN Nagel <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:08:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
KAREN Nagel
Rochester, MN

From: Lin Higley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:08:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lin Higley
Mead, WA

From: Stephen Krokowski <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:08:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Stephen Krokowski
West Memphis, AR

From: Antonino Erba <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:09:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Antonino Erba
Dubuque, IA

From: Janet Moser <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:09:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Janet Moser
Baldwin, NY

From: Sara Gunter <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:09:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Sara Gunter
Janesville, WI

From: Ryan Baka <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:09:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Ryan Baka
Minneapolis, MN

From: Douglas Kadison <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:09:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Douglas Kadison
Austin, TX

From: Kevin Walsh <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:10:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Kevin Walsh
Madison, CT

From: Jim Anthis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:10:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jim Anthis
OKLAHOMA CITY, OK

From: Sallie Martin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:10:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

Prior to this time, at the Fourth, we sang “may God bless America “, now we sing “May God SAVE, America, and all we hold dear, like freedom of religion,
This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Sallie Martin
Oakland, CA

From: Gabriele Singleton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:10:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Gabriele Singleton
Silvis, IL

From: Bonnie Xavier <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:10:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Bonnie Xavier
Bay City, MI

From: Marie Garside <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:10:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

As someone who honors the United States Constitution, I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Marie Garside
Simi Valley, CA

From: Marshall Kirk McKusick <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:11:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

The Religious Liberty Commission draft report claims to protect religious liberty but does the opposite. The report promotes one narrow version of faith, ignores the harm done by Christian nationalism, and dismisses the constitutional separation of church and state.

Among its failings is its recommendation to roll back the Johnson Amendment to let houses of worship funnel dark money into political campaigns, it allows religious claims to override civil rights protections, it expands school voucher programs without safeguards for religious minorities, it misuses religious freedom claims to weaken patients' access to healthcare, and it weaponizes the fight against antisemitism to target other communities.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and well-being of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Marshall Kirk McKusick
Berkeley, CA

From: Gene Tunnell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 06 Jul 2026 17:11:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Gene Tunnell
Rome, GA

From: Connie Gundlach <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:20:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Connie Gundlach

[redacted]

From: Linda Roberts <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:21:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Linda Roberts
[redacted]

From: Deborah Cruze <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:26:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Deborah Cruze
[redacted]

From: Zain Orion <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:34:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Zain Orion

[redacted]

From: Helen Athey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:37:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Helen Athey

[redacted]

From: Elizabeth Packard <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:49:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Elizabeth Packard

[redacted]

From: Sandy Cobel <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:50:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. I am Jewish and I do not want Christianity to become the "religion of America." I firmly believe that there should be a clear separation of "church and state" in our country.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Thank you for taking my views into consideration.

Respectfully,
Sandy Cobel
Renton, WA

From: Luis Lopez <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:51:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Luis Lopez

[redacted]

From: Patricia Sittig <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 09 Jul 2026 23:55:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Miss Patricia Sittig
[redacted]

From: Don Gorelick <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:03:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Don Gorelick

[redacted]

From: William Craig Henry <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:09:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. William Craig Henry

[redacted]

From: Helen Stanwell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:11:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

It is very important that we support the Constitution and the Bill of Rights which keep religion out of our politics. I firmly believe in the separation of church and state.

I'm an octogenarian and over the years have had friends, acquaintances, and colleagues who were Jewish, Hindu, Buddhist, Native American (who believed in the ancient religion), and Zoroastrian. They have helped me when I have been ill or recuperating from one of many surgeries. They have helped me when I was working on a challenging project before I retired. America needs to be welcoming to all.

There should not be any religious teaching in our public schools. Children should get their religious indoctrination at home or at Sunday school or at temple or at their mosque. Our Founding Fathers (Thomas Jefferson, Ben Franklin, Tom Paine, James Madison, Alexander Ha.ilton, and George Washington) were Deists. That is why they firmly believed in the separation of Church and State.

Sincerely,
Helen Stanwell

[redacted]

From: Linton Wildrick <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:12:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Lastly, breaking down the Wall of Separation, as some fellow citizens wish, could lead to the same situation as in some Moslem countries where the religious leaders rule with an iron hand.8

Sincerely,
Linton Wildrick

PII
PII

From: Darlene Brown <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:14:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Darlene Brown
[redacted]

From: Bonnie Teeman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:17:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please support separation of church and state. Also please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Bonnie Teeman

[redacted]

From: Mary Koch <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:19:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Mary Koch
[redacted]

From: Patricia Dufau <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:19:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Patricia Dufau

[redacted]

From: Gregory Mueller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:19:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Gregory Mueller
[redacted]

From: Carol Valentine <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:21:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Religious Liberty MUST apply to all Americans, not limited to a singular part of a singular religion.
Religious Freedom means we ALL have the right to worship, or have no religion, as we choose. Pushing any single religion is trampling on the rights of a majority of citizens.
Religious Liberty means the separation of church and state, in all forms, especially in public schools. Crossing the line between church and state is part of religious coercion. Our Founders left religious coercion behind and did not want the same for our beautiful country
Keep religion out of government and public schools. Keep MY taxpayer money out of religious schools.
Religious Freedom not Religious Coercion.

Sincerely,
Carol Valentine
[redacted]

From: Paige Garberding <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:30:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Paige Garberding

[redacted]

From: Joanna Phillips <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:38:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joanna Phillips

[redacted]

From: Jesse Parraine <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:47:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jesse Parraine
[redacted]

From: Marilyn Nyborg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 00:55:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Marilyn Nyborg

[redacted]

From: Melissa Herren <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 01:01:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Melissa Herren

[redacted]

From: Michael Soso <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 01:05:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Michael Soso

[redacted]

From: Marjorieno McCommon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 01:07:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Marjorieno McCommon
[redacted]

From: Charles Smith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 01:17:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Charles Smith

[redacted]

From: Arlene Williamson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 02:03:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Arlene Williamson
[redacted]

From: Nancy Wilder <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 02:13:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Religious freedom is one of the very strongest issues of America's founding, reflected in its being clearly stated in the 1st Amendment.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nancy Wilder

[redacted]

From: George F Shea Jr <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 02:32:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. George F Shea Jr
[redacted]

From: Richard Stern <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 02:41:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Richard Stern

[redacted]

From: Clare Hemmer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 02:54:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for ALL Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Clare Hemmer

[redacted]

From: Joseph Lee <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 04:00:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joseph Lee

[redacted]
[redacted]

From: Wendy Wilson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 04:23:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Wendy Wilson

[redacted]

From: Janet Bergamo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 04:26:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The separation of church and state is vital to democracy, and must continue. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Janet Bergamo
[redacted]

From: John Cochran <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 05:18:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr John Cochran
[redacted]

From: Mary Payne <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 05:22:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mary Payne
[redacted]

From: Mary Payne <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 05:26:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mary Payne

[redacted]

From: Joe Crider <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 05:55:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joe Crider

PII PII

From: Jonelle Ringnalda <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 05:57:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jonelle Ringnalda

[redacted]

From: Jonelle Ringnalda <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 05:59:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jonelle Ringnalda
[redacted]

From: Linda Moorman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 06:35:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Linda Moorman
[redacted]

From: Emery Goff <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 06:51:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Emery Goff
[redacted]

From: Elizabeth Mahalik <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 07:05:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Elizabeth Mahalik
[redacted]

From: Karl Bronn <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 07:10:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

It is critically and morally important that the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. I am an agnostic but passionately support the position of Americas United for the separation of church and state!

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish only when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Karl Bronn

[redacted]

From: Richard Robinson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 07:22:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Robinson
[redacted]

From: Mary O'Reilly <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 07:24:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government official —can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of their religious beliefs or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mary O'Reilly
[redacted]

From: Steven Walton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 07:27:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Dear members
Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.
I served in the navy and took an oath to protect the separation of church and state and I take that oath seriously. I don't appreciate any politician weakening the rights of US citizens
You all know deep in your hearts
That you are not doing your job to protect us correctly, now is the time to grow up and do your job.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Steven Walton
[redacted]

From: Barry Thomas <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 07:31:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Barry Thomas

[redacted]

From: Tracy Gee <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 07:40:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Tracy Gee

[redacted]

From: Stephen Einson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 07:43:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Stephen Einson

[redacted]

From: Perry Butler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 07:57:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Perry Butler

[redacted]

From: Joan Cottrell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 08:10:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Joan Cottrell
South Lyon, MI

From: Linda Biemer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 08:13:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Linda Biemer
[redacted]

From: Marie Brasseur <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 08:16:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Marie Brasseur
[redacted]

From: Florence Rice <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 08:25:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Florence Rice

[redacted]

From: Joe Gillis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 08:26:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joe Gillis

[redacted]

From: Rachael Funk <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 08:27:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rachael Funk

[redacted]

From: Joan Brannigan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 08:30:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joan Brannigan

[redacted]

From: Steven Kramer <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 08:30:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Steven Kramer

PII
PII

From: Mindy Fink <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 08:33:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mindy Fink

[redacted]

From: Meredith Kent-Berman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 08:39:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Meredith Kent-Berman

[redacted]

From: Evan Fulmer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 08:51:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Evan Fulmer

[redacted]

From: Katherine Porter <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 09:00:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am writing to request that your final report reflect the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

As you know, church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.They understood that students and families—not government officials—can and should be able to make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

They also understood church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

They realized church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Please make these crucial distinctions clear in your report.  They provide the foundation for maintaining our democracy.

Sincerely,
Katherine Porter

PII PII

From: Averi Peoples <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 09:00:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Averi Peoples

[redacted]

From: Jean Grabaskas <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 09:20:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jean Grabaskas

[redacted]

From: Juliane McAdam <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 09:24:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Juliane McAdam

[redacted]

From: Dana Burke <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 09:30:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Dana Burke
Frankfort, IL

From: "N. Eileen Harris" <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 09:33:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
The Rev N. Eileen Harris
[redacted]

From: Carolyn Dulai <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 09:43:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Do unto others as you would have them do to you. Good advice

Sincerely,
Carolyn Dulai
[redacted]

From: Janet Bergamo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 09:54:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The separation of church and state is a key concept held by our Founding Fathers; the state is not to espouse any religion, or impose one on United States citizens. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Janet Bergamo
[redacted]

From: Linda Sartori <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:00:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Linda Sartori

[redacted]

From: Jim Smith <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:01:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jim Smith

[redacted]

From: Victoria Williamson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:04:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Victoria Williamson

[redacted]

From: Sheila Zinkerman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:08:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Sheila Zinkerman

[redacted]

From: Therese Campbell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:14:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Miss Therese Campbell
[redacted]

From: Bridget Spann <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:18:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Bridget Spann
Williamstown, MA

From: Michael Wilson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:18:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Michael Wilson

[redacted]

From: Meredith LaBonte <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:18:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Meredith LaBonte
[redacted]

From: Sarah Ballard Molway <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:32:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Sarah Ballard Molway

[redacted]

From: Lisa Bertola <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:33:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lisa Bertola
Scituate, MA

From: M Carl <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:37:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital and constitutional role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for ALL Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. All must abide by that for their OWN sakes.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools welcome students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone. Too many states have gone WAY too far in using taxpayer money for unregulated (mostly Christian) schools.....Enough

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
M Carl

[redacted]

From: Nancy Richards-Stower <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:38:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I adopt the language drafted by my Unitarian Universalist Church, as set down below. But my own outrage at the proposal is as significant as the administration's cutting off funds for feeding families. The proposed policy change stabs at the heart of separation of church and state and religious independence from government. I am a big: NOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOO!

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Nancy Richards-Stower
Yarmouth, ME

From: Wayne Miller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:43:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Wayne Miller

[redacted]

From: Jamesk Clark <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:45:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jamesk Clark

[redacted]

From: Barbara Beier <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:47:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Barbara Beier

[redacted]

From: Shana Dellos <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 10:53:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Shana Dellos
[redacted]

From: MARTIN BORTNICK <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:01:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
MARTIN BORTNICK
[redacted]

From: Raymond Allen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:05:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Raymond Allen

[redacted]

From: Cora Zawiszs <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:05:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Cora Zawiszs

[redacted]

From: Hernan Sierra <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:08:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Hernan Sierra

[redacted]

From: Faith Clements <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:08:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I oppose the recommendations in the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. I believe in the dignity of every person and urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite - it elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Faith Clements
Rockland, MA

From: Mark Matthews <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:13:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. Religious liberty is already guaranteed by the first amendment. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Mark Matthews
SCITUATE, MA

From: Gregory Aydt <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:14:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Gregory Aydt

[redacted]

From: Linda Furber <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:15:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

I am a firm believer in the separation of church and state and during my long lifetime (78 yrs) I have seen how this separation has played such an important role in helping us (citizens) maintain our democracy and provide personal freedom for all.  Please do not allow this very important policy to be compromised.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Linda Furber
[redacted]

From: Laura Hartwell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:17:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Laura Hartwell

[redacted]

From: Simone Schicker <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:32:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Simone Schicker
Kalamazoo, MI

From: Wesley Westmeyer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:42:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Wesley Westmeyer
[redacted]

From: Richard Cruce <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:44:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

I realize your organization has nothing to do with religion, but you all need to remember no matter what lies you believe or promote, the Constitution also guarantees freedom from religion!

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Richard Cruce

[redacted]

From: Richard Stower <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 11:58:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission.

I am Minister Emeritus of the First Parish Unitarian Universalist Church of Scituate, Massachusetts. The congregation was gathered in 1636.

As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights, liberties and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the rights and liberties of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

The people who gathered in Scituate in 1636 fled England because they sought to practice their faith as they chose, not bound by a monarch or an archbishop. The founders of our 250 year old nation, most of whom were believers, saw the wisdom in protecting religion from the state and the state from religion, letting each person worship in their own way. They saw the dangers of a state religion causing the English Civil War and the religious wars of Continental Europe.

I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective. We are not a nation with a state religion.

Across diverse faith traditions, "We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union establish justice...provide for the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity..." are called to protect the vulnerable and build a society where all people, regardless of belief, are treated with equal dignity. This report and its possible policy implementation moves us in the opposite direction

Respectfully,
Richard Stower
Yarmouth, ME

From: DAVE JUSTIN <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 12:05:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
DAVE JUSTIN

[redacted]

From: Jeanne Heshelman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 12:17:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jeanne Heshelman
[redacted]

From: Deborah Storey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 12:18:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Think of all the wars and strife around the world as people fight over religious differences. I believe this is one of our country's strengths. Most Americans respect religious beliefs which allows us to work together toward common goals.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Deborah Storey
[redacted]

From: James Bridges <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 12:20:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Reverend James Bridges
[redacted]

From: Robert Whitehouse <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 12:22:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Robert Whitehouse

[redacted]

From: Kathleen Reilly <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 12:24:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Kathleen Reilly
[redacted]

From: Mary Hutcherson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 12:32:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Mary Hutcherson
[redacted]

From: Ruth Clifford <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 12:39:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ruth Clifford
[redacted]

From: Kat Taylor <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 12:46:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rev Kat Taylor
[redacted]

From: Michael ZELINSKAS <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 12:53:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Michael ZELINSKAS

PII PII

From: Loretta Kane <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 13:06:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Loretta Kane

PII PII

From: John Dodge <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 13:07:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. John Dodge

[redacted]

From: Penny Holliday <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 13:09:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Penny Holliday

[redacted]

From: Ronald Barry <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 13:14:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ronald Barry

[redacted]

From: Melissa Herren <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 13:18:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Melissa Herren
[redacted]

From: Jeff Plate <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 13:24:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I would like to express my urgent opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, whatever their beliefs or sexual orientation, I call upon the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but instead elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My faith calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to work for a society where EVERYONE is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jeff Plate
Marshfield, MA

From: Lynne Oulman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 13:26:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Lynne Oulman

[redacted]

From: mary whitley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 13:26:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.
I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
mary whitley
Scituate, MA

From: Jessica Shepherd <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 13:26:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Jessica Shepherd
[redacted]

From: Sheryl Fletcher <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 13:31:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Sheryl Fletcher

PII PII

From: Timothy Young <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 13:36:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Timothy Young
[redacted]

From: Marcia Mathes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 13:49:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Marcia Mathes

[redacted]

From: Joyce Wiegand <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 14:03:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Joyce Wiegand
[redacted]

From: Jeffrey Sanderson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 14:08:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jeffrey Sanderson

[redacted]

From: Michelle Walters <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 14:10:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Michelle Walters
[redacted]

From: David Ward <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 14:20:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
David Ward
Waterloo, NY

From: Manny Flecker <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 14:24:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Manny Flecker

[redacted]

From: Susan Cooper Cronyn <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 14:25:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Susan Cooper Cronyn
Marshfield Hills, MA

From: Jack Houghton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 14:35:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jack Houghton

[redacted]

From: Joel Klass <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 14:40:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joel Klass

[redacted]

From: Sheila Zinkerman <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 14:53:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sheila Zinkerman

PII PII

From: Beth Donahoe <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:07:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

It is absurd that a country founded on religious freedom would turn back the clock over 250 years.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Beth Donahoe
[redacted]

From: Mark Beaudin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:08:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Jesus was not a fascist. This is about enshrining corruption, not religious freedom. Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Mark Beaudin

[redacted]

From: Robert Hughes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:14:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Robert Hughes
Albany, NY

From: Melinda Pavek <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:15:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The Religious Liberty Commission's final report should reflect the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all U.S. citizens and residents.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by ensuring schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Melinda Pavek

PII PII

From: Raymond Intemann <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:19:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Raymond Intemann
Cliffside Park, NJ

From: Samuel Park <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:22:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Samuel Park
Fullerton, CA

From: Laura Haigwood <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:23:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Separation of church and state is the most fundamental of America's defining liberties. You are free to follow your faith tradition and personal conscience because I am equally free to follow mine. The founders were not all of one sect nor even of one faith. The proudest moments of our national life are when we offer refuge to victims of religious persecution.

Your report must affirm the separation of church and state if it is to uphold our traditional American liberties as enshrined in the Constitution. Americans want to live in the peace and fellowship of mutual respect, not in a nation riven by hate and prejudice.

Sincerely,
Laura Haigwood

[redacted]

From: Rae Shepherd <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:24:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

It is of paramount importance that we maintain a separation of church and state. Religious freedoms are the cornerstone of our democracy. The religious liberty commissions report does not uphold these rights. It doesn't allow for diversity or religious tolerance for the people of the United States, but gives more powers to a religious few. The Johnson act should not be repealed nor should we become a state of Christians only.

Please discuss the four pending religious freedom lawsuits filed. They are important and need your focus.

Please don't let history repeat itself.

Respectfully,
Rae Shepherd
Monroe, WA

From: Joseph Valades <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:30:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure that the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role that church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

This church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone--religious and nonreligious people alike--and it ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that BOTH RELIGION AND GOVERNMENT FLOURISH WHEN THEY ARE SEPARATE.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate. The Christian Right has no place in the congressional decision-making process.

Sincerely,
Mr. Joseph Valades

[redacted]

From: Linda Mallinson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:31:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I do not want the United States to be a country controlled by religious doctrine. The Religious Liberty Commission's final report should be based on thorough research and should uphold the protected citizens' rights that now are protected by church-state separation. Religious freedom for all Americans is provided/protected through the separation of church and state. This separation gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Linda Mallinson

[redacted]

From: Naomi Barcanic <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:39:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Naomi Barcanic

[redacted]

From: CARLSEN GRIFFITH <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:41:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
CARLSEN GRIFFITH
[redacted]

From: Renae Kaiserlian <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:50:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Renae Kaiserlian

[redacted]

From: Bruce Korb <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 15:57:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Christ taught us to love our neighbor as ourselves.  There are no exceptions.

Respectfully,
Bruce Korb
Homosassa, FL

From: Carol Sullivan-Hanley <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 16:10:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Carol Sullivan-Hanley
Scituate, MA

From: Judy Daniels <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 16:15:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Judy Daniels
[redacted]

From: Abby Diamond-Kissiday <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 16:19:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I don't understand why you believe that my Unitarian Universalist (UU) faith is not one that should be recognized. I was married by my UU minister in our church, the oldest wooden one in continuous use in the US. This is not some fly by night faith, that was dreamed up. We have values, family friendly, and principals. What we do not have is dogma or preacher telling us what we must believe. I feel, you truly need to reconsider UU as a faith to be added back for all those UUs who serve our country.

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Abby Diamond-Kissiday
Hull, MA

From: Bryan Fretwell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 16:21:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Bryan Fretwell

[redacted]

From: Brad Korb <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 16:26:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report. Religious liberty must be available to all people, regardless of their belief system.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Brad Korb
Huntsville, AL

From: Virginia Keller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 16:52:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Virginia Keller

[redacted]

From: "Rev. Dr. Michelle Walsh" <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 16:54:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system and role as a Unitarian Universalist clergy person calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Thank you for your attention to this profoundly moral issue.

Respectfully,
Rev. Dr. Michelle Walsh
Quincy, MA

From: Sharon Stephens <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 16:56:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sharon Stephens

[redacted]

From: Holly Beck <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 16:58:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

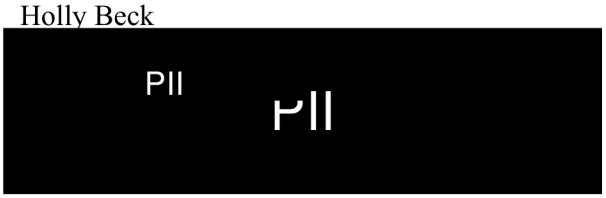
The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.



Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Religion is a matter of conscience and cannot be dictated by external forces.

Support everyone's right to follow their own conscience and abstain from pursuing this blatantly unconstitutional effort.

Sincerely,
Holly Beck

From: Julia Wangler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 17:05:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the continuation of separation of church and state. This is guaranteed by the Constitution. It is too important to be changed.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Julia Wangler

[redacted]

From: Antoinette Panico <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 17:14:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Antoinette Panico
[redacted]

From: Paul Garrett <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 17:26:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr.and Mrs Paul Garrett

[redacted]

From: Joya Caryl <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 17:33:55 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joya Caryl

[redacted]

From: Jennifer Jones <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 17:41:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Our country's founders took great pains to make sure all US Americans were free to choose their religion. Favoring one type of religion (Christianity) over the many, many other religious beliefs held by many Americans is unconstitutional and immoral.

Respectfully,
Jennifer Jones
Dewey, AZ

From: Hampton Howell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 17:44:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Honor the Religious Liberty Commission's final report that reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Hampton Howell

[redacted]

From: Carol Miller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 17:50:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for Americans of all faiths, as well as those of none.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone, not just the members of a particular faith or faiths.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Carol Miller

[redacted]

From: Jean Owen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 18:11:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jean Owen
Joliet, IL

From: Marcia Smith-Hill <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 18:37:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Marcia Smith-Hill

[redacted]

From: Johnny Henderson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 19:23:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Johnny Henderson
[redacted]

From: Patricia Humphrey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 19:29:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Patricia Humphrey
[redacted]

From: Michael Adams Sr <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 19:36:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Michael Adams Sr
Willingboro, NJ

From: Lindsey LaCelle <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 19:44:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lindsey LaCelle
[redacted]

From: Ariella Henderson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 20:11:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ariella Henderson

[redacted]

From: Laurie Ulrop <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 20:42:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Laurie Ulrop

[redacted]

From: Gabriel Zafiu <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 21:05:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Gabriel Zafiu
[redacted]

From: Karen Farrell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 21:23:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Karen Farrell

[redacted]

From: Jennifer Gomez <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 21:58:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Gomez
[redacted]

From: Janet Pozmantier <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 22:56:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Janet Pozmantier
[redacted]

From: Mada Johnston <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 23:41:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure tjat the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or none as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that American families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Mada Johnston
[redacted]

From: Laura Hanks <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Fri, 10 Jul 2026 23:53:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Laura Hanks
[redacted]

From: Mary Kuehne <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 00:00:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

As a Christian, I am appalled by these changes. My relationship with Christ tells me that this is wrong. If Christianity were made illegal, it would be easy to convict me. I attend church services three to five times a week, volunteer at my church to help feed people twice a month, have volunteered for church children's programs for over 50 years, graduated from a religious college, lead Bible study at least once a month and am a member of a church council. These are all outward signs, of course, and as St. Paul says I count as nothing. I mention them only because I want you to know that many people who tick off the boxes are not behind this for good reason.

I agree with Roger Williams, founder of Rhode Island and advocate for religious liberty, on this. Blurring the differences between church and state is never good for the Gospel. These actions will only alienate people from religion. It is the work of Holy Spirit to call and gather. When we try to force it, we drive people away.

Respectfully,
Mary Kuehne
Dayton, OH

From: Tonny Settler <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 00:55:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Tonny Settler
Twining, MI

From: Lois Frankel <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 07:27:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

True religious liberty is the freedom to practice your religion or no religion at all as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Lois Frankel
[redacted]

From: Hosea Henderson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 07:32:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

We need to adhere to religious liberty and uphold the constitution as given by our founders. To go against the constitution is to ultimately become like the countries that impose dictatorship upon its people and we are not to be so.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Hosea Henderson

[redacted]

From: Genesis Henderson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 07:33:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Genesis Henderson
[redacted]

From: Susan Gorr <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 08:17:00 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Susan Gorr

[redacted]

From: Margaret Boatman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 08:26:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Margaret Boatman

[redacted]

From: Judi Pasino <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 08:37:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

America was founded by people escaping religious persecution, and the Founders were explicit in making sure that government and personal religion remained separate, so that all could live their beliefs as their conscience guided them. This draft seems to do the opposite of what what the framers of the Constitution established, making one religion primary at the expense of all others.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Judi Pasino
Newark, DE

From: Mark Davis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 09:08:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Mark Davis
[redacted]

From: Loretta Matthews <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 09:09:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Loretta Matthews

[redacted]

From: Fred Holden <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 09:14:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Fred Holden

[redacted]

From: Craig Rich <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 09:26:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Craig Rich
[redacted]

From: Don Deakins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 09:28:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

It is imperative that we maintain the separation of church and government. Without it we could end up like Iran where religious extremist rule the country and we are presently headed in that direction. Our government has been abducted by the overly religious and they try to force their beliefs on others. “In God We Trust” has long been on our money. They want to post it and the Ten Commandments on all public buildings and are rapidly passing laws to require it. Without separation of church and state, we will eventually reach a point where anyone that doesn’t subscribe to the ruling religion will be punished. We must maintain separation of church and state.

Sincerely,
Mr Don Deakins

[redacted]

From: Tessa Eldridge-Saeed <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 09:43:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Tessa Eldridge-Saeed

[redacted]

From: Susan Clarke-Mahoney <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 09:58:45 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Susan Clarke-Mahoney
[redacted]

From: Cristy Caldwell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 10:40:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Church-state separation strengthens democracy AND religious faith.

Sincerely,
Ms. Cristy Caldwell

[redacted]

From: Peggy Nagle <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 10:42:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Peggy Nagle
Centerville, OH

From: Joyce Short <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 10:43:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Joyce Short

[redacted]

From: Andrea Rauch <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 11:15:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Andrea Rauch

[redacted]

From: Anne True <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 11:22:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Anne True
Taunton, MA

From: Janis Dorr <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 11:22:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Jesus is my spiritual master of choice, although I respect and learn from masters of other religions as well. It is highly offensive to me that Jesus' teachings are (not for the first time in history, of course) being so utterly bastardized for some people's selfish and deplorable purposes. White "christian" nationalists do not represent anything in keeping with what Jesus taught and lived. This is one more reason that separation of church and state is absolutely necessary.

Respectfully,
Janis Dorr
Baltimore, MD

From: Farilyn Hale <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 11:29:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Farilyn Hale

[redacted]

From: Joanna Norris <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 11:32:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

I am a practicing Christian, but have long been taught,  and recognize, that our country was not founded as a solely Christian nation, but one with all faith traditions.  Our Constitution is clear on that.  As Christians we see all mankind as children of God inspite of the differences.  If we believe in the Golden Rule, found in the Sermon on the Mount, some version of which is found in all cultures, it is only natural to love all of our neighbors and embrace the differences, as well as the many similarities.  All humanity comes from one divine source!  That isn't specific to Christianity!  Living our faith is true freedom — but it is not the mandate of government to dictate what we believe.

Sincerely,
Joanna Norris

[redacted]

From: JoAnn Loomis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 11:36:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. JoAnn Loomis
[redacted]

From: Jane Hange <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 12:20:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

As a Christian, I value the religious freedom that this country afforded my ancestors and now me and my family. Religious freedom must mean NO creation of a religious preference or requirement, NO prohibition against non Christians or nonbelievers, and NO tolerance for the limiting of the rights of LGBTQ+ individuals by any employer, landlord, hospital, educational entity, organization, or federal, state, or local agency. Our children deserve the same rights we have enjoyed.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jane Hange
Charleston, WV

From: Claudine Nyiramutuzo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 12:31:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Claudine Nyiramutuzo
[redacted]

From: Gentille Dusabimana <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 12:33:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Gentille Dusabimana

PII
PII

From: Ron Welch <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 12:58:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ron Welch

[redacted]

From: Dinah Jentgen <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 13:13:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I grew up in a community that was enriched by equal religious standing among its citizens. The result was a deeper understanding of my own faith and its place in our world. So please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role that tolerance and church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Dinah Jentgen

PII PII

From: Maggie Hart <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 13:19:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Maggie Hart

[redacted]

From: Gus Morrison <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 13:23:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Gus Morrison

PII PII

From: Sarah Cleveland <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 13:30:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Sarah Cleveland
[redacted]

From: Vickie Willis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 13:31:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Separation of church and state is not a myth. The exact phrase doesn't have to be in the constitution for the concept to be present in our founding documents

Our constitution gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

I'm concerned that too many people don't understand history. Separation of church and state refers to the INSTITUTIONAL separation of the two. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

But this doesn't mean that people of faith (or no faith) can't participate in government or strive to influence our government. I am a Baptist Christian who has long supported our historic Baptist identity in this country. I have seen that the principle of separation is necessary for the church's well being and prophetic witness.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Sincerely,
Vickie Willis

[redacted]

From: Kristin Klade <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 13:31:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rev. Kristin Klade
[redacted]

From: Kathy Michaelson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 14:12:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Kathy Michaelson
Rockton, IL

From: Gloria Andersen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 14:19:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.
Church-State Separation allows people to practice their religion , or not without coercion.

Sincerely,
Gloria Andersen

[redacted]

From: Barbara Hearn <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 14:27:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Barbara Hearn

[redacted]

From: Paula Graham <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 14:39:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

It is your constitutional job to keep church and state separate.

Sincerely,
Paula Graham
[redacted]

From: Edward Brown <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 14:39:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The Religious Liberty Commission's final report must add and emphasize the central role that rigorous separation of church and state plays in maintaining our American experiment in true religious freedom for all Americans.

Government decisions must be limited to fact-based argumentation, not based on any church's claim to know what God wants it to do.

Religious freedom requires that individual Americans are left free to choose for ourselves what churches (if any) we trust to speak for God. Or to remain secular, like our Constitution - not invoking the name of God at all.

Separation of church and state should guarantee that no taxpayer money is diverted to so-called faith-based" religious projects.

Particularly no money diverted to religious schools from our public schools where American children of all religions can learn about our shared American values of honesty, empathy, and evidence-based science, history, and law.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

And church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Sincerely,
Mr. Edward Brown
[redacted]

From: Stanley Chavez <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 14:40:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Stanley Chavez
[redacted]

From: Jennifer Reichert <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 14:54:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Reichert

[redacted]

From: Sam Burkhardt <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 15:38:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Sam Burkhardt

[redacted]

From: Sam Burkhardt <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 15:39:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Sam Burkhardt

[redacted]

From: Joy Rosenberry chase <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 16:03:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission.

The Constitution GUARANTEES separation of church and state. This means that religious organizations should not be allowed to block people's rights or discriminate against people. Religious freedom does NOT mean someone can refuse to provide medical treatment for someone; that is ridiculous and clearly violates the ill individual's rights. Scientologists don't believe in medical treatment; does that mean they can refuse to provide health insurance for their employees? Of course not! Medical staff and businesses should not be allowed to refuse to perform or pay for medical treatments based on their own personal beliefs. That's what freedom of religion means: no one should be harmed, excluded, or discriminated against based on someone else's religious beliefs.

As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Joy Rosenberry chase
Madison, WI

From: Susan Porter <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 16:08:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Susan Porter

[redacted]

From: Lynda Knightstep <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 16:31:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Lynda Knightstep
Atascadero, CA

From: Robert Townsend <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 16:44:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Robert Townsend
[redacted]

From: Kathy Walsh <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 16:52:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Kathy Walsh
New Orleans, LA

From: Cena Buchannon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 17:14:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Cena Buchannon
Huber Heights, OH

From: Andrea Deckert <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 17:22:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please vote to keep church and state separated. We live in the land of the free and the home of the brave. If Church and state are no longer separated, we will no longer be free. It is only the separation that assures everyone the freedom of their own religious choices. This is what this country was founded upon. This should not be changed. Please keep our freedom, alive and well and not under the Dominion of the government. That has never worked well in the past and it will not work well in the future either. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Andrea Deckert

[redacted]

From: Betty Wood <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 17:26:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

My Anabaptist ancestors came to the USA in the early 1700's to flee religious persecution in Europe. Our country was founded on religious freedom, a separation of church and state, which was guarded in our Constitution. Roger Williams' established the Rhode Island colony based on this separation of church and state, with the other colonies following soon after. George Washington, James Madison, Thomas Jefferson, and other presidents ensured this separation of church and state. It is vital to my religious liberty personally, and to every American.

I am in agreement with all of Pillar of Freedom, Jonathan Zirkle JD's response to the President's Religious Liberty Commission Draft Report.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Miss Betty Wood

[redacted]

From: Melinda Bobo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 17:43:01 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I oppose the the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. We need to have far fewer ties between particular religious groups and government. The Constitution is crystal clear, and the Founding Fathers were, too: No state religion. The church, regardless of faith or denomination, is to be separate from governance. Individuals may use their faith as a guide to their decisionmaking, but the government itself is to have NO affiliation with any religion. The Commission needs to revise its recommendations to be in accordance with the Constitution before finalizing this report.

People who came to this country to escape religious persecution were very aware that any religion, no matter its intentions, will become tyrannical if allowed to rule over people. They had personal experience and did not wish to see them continued. Every single human being is entitled to the same civil rights, healthcare access, and educational protections, regardless of their religious beliefs.

As a lifelong Christian I am required by Jesus Christ to protect my neighbors' rights and freedoms. I am required to fight for everyone to be treated with equal respect, because the Bible says that everyone is created in the image of God. Please reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment. Permitting people to violate other people's constitutional rights in the name of religion will end up undermining religious liberty and all other liberties. This report should reflect real religious freedom for all people, not merely a pretense for the sake of greed and hatred.

Respectfully,
Melinda Bobo
PINEDALE, WY

From: Gwendolyn Kanies <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 17:55:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

My great great grandparents came here looking for freedom from someone else's religion. And you want us to go back to that time? The time where your religion controls me? No way.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Gwendolyn Kanies
[redacted]

From: Eileen McCorry <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 17:59:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am a strong believer in the separation of Church and State. Our founding fathers saw what harm state religions in Europe had caused. They had witnessed wars and violence over religion.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Eileen McCorry

PII PII

From: Allison Wilson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 18:15:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Allison Wilson

[redacted]

From: Bethany Opalewski <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 18:51:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Bethany Opalewski

[redacted]

From: Amira Mansour <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 19:27:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Amira Mansour
[redacted]

From: Nancy Burbeck <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 19:41:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nancy Burbeck
[redacted]

From: Jennifer Myers <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 19:42:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Myers
[redacted]

From: Dolores Belinte <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 19:55:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Dolores Belinte
Farmington, NM

From: Edward Bennett <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 20:25:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Edward Bennett

[redacted]

From: Dawna Sawatzky <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 20:28:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
ms Dawna Sawatzky

[redacted]

From: Elsie Rivera <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 20:42:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate. Jesus stated "render to God what belong to God & render to Caesar, what belongs to Caesar. Our freedom of conscience belongs to God, not the state or government.

Sincerely,
Ms Elsie Rivera

[redacted]

From: Karen Caton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 20:50:02 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

My family believes in the total separation of church and state; it makes our country stronger, and we will not tolerate it being erased by a dubious commission.

On this 250th anniversary of American Independence, we need to protect this pillar of our democracy. American citizens have had the freedom to worship as they want; it is not up to you to decide what belief systems any of us should hold.

You believe the way you want to - worship who you want to - believe in who you want to - but don't think you have the right to make any of the rest do as you do. That is not the American way - and America is not a White Christian Country!

Sincerely,
Karen Caton

[redacted]

From: David Dow <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 21:33:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Your assistance in this matter is very important.

Sincerely,
Mr. David Dow

[redacted]

From: Juliet Cornelius <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 21:56:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Juliet Cornelius
[redacted]

From: Paula Currey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 22:26:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

To whom it may concern: Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.
Sincerely,
Paula Currey
Rose Hill, Ks

Sincerely,
Paula Currey

[redacted]

From: Tracy Sullivan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 22:34:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Tracy Sullivan
Brookline, MA

From: Louise Bogart <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 23:09:18 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Louise Bogart
[redacted]

From: Louise Bogart <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 23:12:05 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

We don't need Christian sharia law in the United States any more than we need Islamic shara law!!

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Louise Bogart

[redacted]

From: CD Kennedy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 23:16:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

Having been a religion major in college, this issue hits home. When doing deep studies of my professed faith, I also realized the the tenets of other faiths were more similar than different. We split hairs too much.

This report in question claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

America was founded by people seeking true religious freedom!

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
CD Kennedy
Marshfield, MA

From: Alan Kennedy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 23:25:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Alan Kennedy
MARSHFIELD, MA

From: Kristina Curl Johnston <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 23:48:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Kristina Curl Johnston
Rio Linda, CA

From: Carrie Allmon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sat, 11 Jul 2026 23:52:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Carrie Allmon
Kaysville, UT

From: Rebecca Thuch <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 01:12:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rebecca Thuch
[redacted]

From: Keith Rosen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 07:05:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Keith Rosen

[redacted]

From: Elizabeth Thompson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 08:03:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

In her final opinion as a Supreme Court justice in 2005, Sandra Day O'Connor, a judicial conservative, reflected on the importance of church-state separation to guarantee full religious freedom. "The First Amendment expresses our Nation's fundamental commitment to religious liberty by means of two provisions – one protecting the free exercise of religion, the other barring establishment of religion." She concluded with a challenge: "Those who would renegotiate the boundaries between church and state must therefore answer a difficult question: Why would we trade a system that has served us so well for one that has served others so poorly?"

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Thompson

[redacted]

From: Janis Eberenz <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 08:23:16 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Janis Eberenz

PII PII

From: Marisol Barragan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 08:52:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Marisol Barragan

[redacted]

From: William Lang <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 09:23:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Why is a government agency needed keep government OUT of religion. Or, is the real purpose of the Committee to force one group's religious opinions on the rest of us?

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. William Lang

[redacted]

From: Karen Romero <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 09:36:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Karen Romero

[redacted]

From: Tina Boyles <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 09:40:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Tina Boyles

[redacted]

From: Denise Bonk <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 09:50:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Denise Bonk
Philadelphia, PA

From: Judy Hamilton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 10:32:34 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Judy Hamilton
Charleston, WV

From: Tonya Lizarraga <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 11:34:27 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.
America was and is great because we have this freedom to choose. Please Fight for this freedom. Any time force is used love is destroyed.

Sincerely,
Tonya Lizarraga
[redacted]

From: Rose Doty <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 11:50:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. This is one of the most important and basic of the rights promised to us in our constitution.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rose Doty

From: Darla Mittendorf <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 13:28:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Darla Mittendorf
[redacted]

From: Aria Fa'amasino <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 13:45:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Aria Fa'amasino
Mesa, AZ

From: Roger Shultz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 13:46:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Roger Shultz

[redacted]

From: Nelson Huang <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 13:48:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Nelson Huang

[redacted]

From: Asha Miller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 14:32:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please listen to these points listed below. Separation of church and state is so important for many reasons.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Asha Miller

[redacted]

From: Eleanor Bennett <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 14:37:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Eleanor Bennett
[redacted]

From: Colet Johnson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 14:42:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

You can't legislate morality. Its an individual thing.

Sincerely,
Colet Johnson

[redacted]

From: Steven Hendrickson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 15:01:48 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Steven Hendrickson
Punxsutawney, PA

From: Vivian Ogden <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 15:07:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Vivian Ogden
[redacted]

From: Melody Tapia <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 15:30:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

This is the foundation of this country, and why Europeans arrived in Plymouth, MA to find that freedom to practice their safe freely.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Melody Tapia
[redacted]

From: Diana Douglas <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 15:56:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Diana Douglas
[redacted]

From: Therese Millet <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 17:15:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Therese Millet

[redacted]

From: Wayne Sharpe <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 18:47:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Wayne Sharpe
[redacted]

From: Judith Chaskes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 18:56:56 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Judith Chaskes
[redacted]

From: Eric Rose <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 19:03:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The influence from your proposals and deliberations will obviously have a major impact on the greatest country in the world at this time.

This is why I urge you to think carefully and deliberately regarding why many of those who founded this great country left their motherlands in Europe. Many of the best of them left the homes of their ancestors because a church was dominant in their country and it happened to have a control over the state. This church-state connection forced their interpretation of "God's will" on everyone in their realm. This often meant that the Scriptures could not be translated or possessed in the common language of the masses. This might mean in some cases that citizens were required on pain of death to participate in a ceremony that claimed to create the actual body and blood of Christ and then make everyone eat it (The Mass). The blood of martyrs still cries out to God from these "Dark Ages."

You may think these examples extreme, but in Revelation 13 two powers are presented and the second causes all the earth to receive the mark of the beast. There is a "no buy no sell" penalty and increasing to capital punishment.

Let's return to the placid and inspired vision of Roger Williams who clearly saw the immortal truth that none should compel the conscience of others. Let's leave the worship of our God, or any god, to the free conscience of all and not entangle the government of our great land with religion of any kind.

In the end of time, "worship" will be forced by increasing penalties. On our watch, let not this be the case. The blood of millions still tells us that when religion is united with the state, corruption is inevitable and persecution is the result.

Sincerely,
Eric Rose

[redacted]

From: Simeon Nerelus <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 19:23:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Simeon Nerelus
[redacted]

From: Julia Anderson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 19:24:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Julia Anderson
[redacted]

From: D Christensen <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 19:29:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Members of the Religious Liberty Commission:

It is more than clear that our founders in ensuring the rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness identified religious freedoms and the importance of church-state separation. Any report by your group or other governmental body must reflect that founding view as indicative of the uniqueness of the American experience.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone as It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. It also protects houses of worship from governmental oversight allowing for independence of thought.

As a Christian, I am thankful to be living in a country where such a Church-state separation exists, allowing each person to develop their own relationship with God. We need our governmental commissions to respect that tenet.

Sincerely,
D Christensen
[redacted]

From: Beatrice Sager <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 19:40:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. The separation of church and state ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. We cannot claim to have a true democracy, in which all citizens are treated as equal, if our federal or state governments choose one religion over others.

Sincerely,
Beatrice Sager

PII PII

From: Alyssa Singh <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 19:43:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Alyssa Singh
[redacted]

From: Franklin Cobos II <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 20:09:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. That's civility. That civility is what we expect our government to legislate and enforce through the actions of civil government, and not a moralized version of government like, for example, Iran uses.What we do not expect is for our government to legislate and enforce any religious dogmas.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

If the current practice of Christianity by patriots across this nation is in itself, insufficient to win general, widespread adherence to its principles, and we blame the moral decline of our nation on such lack of acceptance of this religion (which I too happen to practice), clearly that religion and its enforcement is not the solution. Benjamin Franklin famously said that "When a religion is good, I conceive that it will support itself; and, when it cannot support itself, and God does not take care to support, so that its professors are obliged to call for the help of the civil power, it is a sign, I apprehend, of it being a bad one."

Recognize these political movements for what they are, an attempted power grab by certain religionists, whose personal moral code is failing to voluntarily win citizens to adhere to their version of Christian principles. Thus the need to enforce that which people will not freely choose on their own.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr Franklin Cobos II
[redacted]

From: Stephanie Reed <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 20:30:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Just a reminder if you haven't read the Constitution lately, the first amendment says: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof". This is a concept called "separation of church and state". (State means the government.) Thomas Jefferson wrote about it if you want to look him up.

This means the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Religious liberty means that all Americans have the freedom to choose what religion--or no religion--to practice.

The Supreme Court thinks so too. In the Supreme Court decision on West Virginia State Board of Education v. Barnette, Justice Robert H. Jackson wrote: "If there is any fixed star in our constitutional constellation, it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion, or other matters of opinion or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith therein. If there are any circumstances which permit an exception, they do not now occur to us."

You can't truly have religious liberty without separation of church and state and I hope you remember this.

Sincerely,
Stephanie Reed

[redacted]

From: Dwayne Lovejoy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 20:33:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dwayne Lovejoy
[redacted]

From: Dwayne Lovejoy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 20:35:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dwayne Lovejoy
[redacted]

From: Barbara Taylor <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 20:47:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Barbara Taylor
[redacted]

From: Arjen Bes <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 20:55:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

I am for separation of church and state!
I don't want any changes for now and the future!

Sincerely, Arjen Bes

Sincerely,
Mr. Arjen Bes
[redacted]

From: Heidi Rose <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 21:16:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Heidi Rose

[redacted]

From: Kimberly Layon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 21:38:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am writing to respectfully express my strong opposition to any effort that would weaken or remove the vital wall of separation between church and state.

The separation of church and state is one of the foundational principles that protects the God-given right of every person to worship according to the dictates of his or her own conscience. This principle is deeply rooted in the Constitution and has safeguarded religious liberty for generations. Once government gains authority over matters of faith, both religion and civil government are weakened.

True faith cannot be produced by force. It must be the result of a free and willing response to God. Whether Christian, Jew, Muslim, atheist, or any other belief, every individual should have the freedom to worship—or not worship—according to conscience, without coercion from the government or interference from man. Freedom of speech and freedom of religion stand together, protecting the liberty of every citizen regardless of their beliefs.

History has repeatedly demonstrated that whenever church and state unite, the result is oppression, persecution, and the loss of religious freedom. Government exists to protect the civil rights of its citizens, while the work of the church is to win hearts through truth, love, and persuasion—not through legislation or civil enforcement.

The Scriptures also teach a distinction between the responsibilities of civil government and the things that belong to God.

Jesus declared:

> "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's." — Matthew 22:21 (KJV)

Christ also said:

> "My kingdom is not of this world." — John 18:36 (KJV)

The apostles affirmed that our highest allegiance belongs to God:

> "We ought to obey God rather than men." — Acts 5:29 (KJV)

The Bible teaches that each person is individually accountable before God:

> "So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God." — Romans 14:12 (KJV)

The Apostle Paul further reminds us:

> "Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth." — Romans 14:4 (KJV)

These passages demonstrate that matters of conscience belong between the individual and God, not between the individual and the state.

I respectfully urge the Religious Liberty Commission to continue defending the constitutional protections that preserve freedom of conscience for all people. Please oppose any measure that erodes the separation of church and state or grants government authority over matters of faith.

Religious liberty is not only a constitutional principle—it is a biblical principle. It safeguards the rights of every individual and allows faith to remain voluntary rather than compelled.

Thank you for your time, your service, and your commitment to protecting the freedoms that have long been a blessing to our nation.

Respectfully,

Kim Layon

One note: while the phrase "wall of separation between church and state" does not appear in the U.S. Constitution, it comes from Thomas Jefferson's 1802 letter describing the First Amendment. The Constitution itself prohibits the establishment of religion and protects the free exercise of religion, which together have long been understood to support government neutrality in matters of faith.

Sincerely,
Kimberly Layon

From: Yohanna Hernandez <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 21:47:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. Separation of church and state supports a healthy growth of all citizens of America and encourage love for our nation and for the leadership. Our founding fathers recognized this that is why separation of church and state exist.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Separation of church and state is what makes America great.

Sincerely,
Yohanna Hernandez
[redacted]

From: Betty Miosi <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 21:48:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Betty Miosi
[redacted]

From: Lauren Palermo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 21:49:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Lauren Palermo
[redacted]

From: Erica Bailey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 21:49:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

To Whom It May Concern:

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

This is very freedom is important to me and that is why I am taking the time to send this. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Dr. Erica Bailey

[redacted]

From: Kimberly Layon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 22:06:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am writing to respectfully express my strong opposition to any effort that would weaken or remove the vital wall of separation between church and state.

The separation of church and state is one of the foundational principles that protects the God-given right of every person to worship according to the dictates of his or her own conscience. This principle is deeply rooted in the Constitution and has safeguarded religious liberty for generations. Once government gains authority over matters of faith, both religion and civil government are weakened.

True faith cannot be produced by force. It must be the result of a free and willing response to God. Whether Christian, Jew, Muslim, atheist, or any other belief, every individual should have the freedom to worship—or not worship—according to conscience, without coercion from the government or interference from man. Freedom of speech and freedom of religion stand together, protecting the liberty of every citizen regardless of their beliefs.

History has repeatedly demonstrated that whenever church and state unite, the result is oppression, persecution, and the loss of religious freedom. Government exists to protect the civil rights of its citizens, while the work of the church is to win hearts through truth, love, and persuasion—not through legislation or civil enforcement.

The Scriptures also teach a distinction between the responsibilities of civil government and the things that belong to God.

Jesus declared:

> "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's." — Matthew 22:21 (KJV)

Christ also said:

> "My kingdom is not of this world." — John 18:36 (KJV)

The apostles affirmed that our highest allegiance belongs to God:

> "We ought to obey God rather than men." — Acts 5:29 (KJV)

The Bible teaches that each person is individually accountable before God:

> "So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God." — Romans 14:12 (KJV)

The Apostle Paul further reminds us:

> "Who art thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth." — Romans 14:4 (KJV)

These passages demonstrate that matters of conscience belong between the individual and God, not between the individual and the state.

I respectfully urge the Religious Liberty Commission to continue defending the constitutional protections that preserve freedom of conscience for all people. Please oppose any measure that erodes the separation of church and state or grants government authority over matters of faith.

Religious liberty is not only a constitutional principle—it is a biblical principle. It safeguards the rights of every individual and allows faith to remain voluntary rather than compelled.

Thank you for your time, your service, and your commitment to protecting the freedoms that have long been a blessing to our nation.

Sincerely,
Kimberly Layon

PII PII

From: Ernesto Layon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 22:18:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I respectfully oppose any effort to weaken the separation of church and state. Religious liberty is a God-given right that must remain protected for every person, regardless of their beliefs.

Whether Christian, Jew, Muslim, atheist, or of another faith, every individual should have the freedom to worship according to the dictates of conscience, without coercion from the government or interference from man. Faith cannot be legislated or forced by civil law.

Jesus Himself taught the distinction between civil and religious authority: "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's." (Matthew 22:21, KJV). Christ also declared, "My kingdom is not of this world." (John 18:36, KJV).

Please continue defending the constitutional protections that preserve freedom of conscience and oppose any efforts to erode the separation of church and state. Religious liberty protects us all.

Respectfully,

Ernesto Layon Jr.

Sincerely,
Ernesto Layon

[redacted]

From: Kenneth Lockwood <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 22:19:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

It is essential that the Commission's final report keeps current protections in place. The religious freedom we Americans have valued and enjoyed as the nation matured has been amazing.

Just remember how religious freedoms have been attacked throughout history when one faith group or another has become an "official state church." Medieval church domination was fresh in the minds of the founding fathers when carefully constructing the documents of our American experiment.

Contrary to some current Christian Nationalist mis-information, our nation was founded by a mix of citizens who supported some important Judeo-Christian values of freedom of conscience and separation of church from state, but they could recoil at calling the new republic a "Christian" nation, considering the diversity of peoples coming to the "land of the free and the home of the brave."

I foresee a loss of more freedoms and an increasing religious intolerance if we continue to chip away more of the wall of separation of church from state.

Sincerely,
Kenneth Lockwood

[redacted]

From: Connie Cepeda <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 22:25:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms Connie Cepeda

[redacted]

From: John Dawson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 22:26:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. John Dawson
[redacted]

From: Jennifer Ish <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 22:31:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Ish

[redacted]

From: Julie Falkenberg <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 23:06:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

I believe in God, but not religion. Religion is coercive and manipulative, teaching people to hate others. Religion does not and should not have anything to do with government.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Julie Falkenberg

[redacted]

From: Linda Williams <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 23:10:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone, and ensures government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate. And history has proven repeatedly that both will become corrupted and all of society is harmed when there is no separation.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Sincerely,
Linda Williams

[redacted]

From: Scott McDaniel <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 23:12:40 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Scott McDaniel

[redacted]

From: Allie Frances Benson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Sun, 12 Jul 2026 23:56:35 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate!

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate. Please keep church and state separate as our founding fathers originally intended.

Sincerely,
Allie Frances Benson

[redacted]

From: Debbie Bryant <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 00:36:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Debbie Bryant

[redacted]

From: Katherine Ander <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 01:19:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Katherine Ander
PORT ORCHARD, WA

From: Jordan Goldman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 01:30:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jordan Goldman

[redacted]

From: Kathryn Harrington <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 01:42:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Kathryn Harrington

PII

From: JoAnn Klar <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 04:02:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. Our nation was founded on such. This great wisdom by our forefathers stands today.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. JoAnn Klar

[redacted]

From: Dee Jackson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 04:43:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

History has taught us that anytime church and state/governments unite there has ALWAYS been persecution.
America and her freedoms have existed as long as she has because of the safeguards set up by our founding fathers and to dismantle these safeguards is a slap in the face not only to them, but to all those brave men and women who have willingly and unflinchingly spilled their blood to protect ALL our liberties, religious and otherwise.
The memories of those who have gone before us requires us to stand for what is right and just.
I urge you to do what is right and just and maintain the separation of church and state. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Dee Jackson

[redacted]

From: Edwin Greensage <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 07:26:33 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

The Religious Liberty Commision should not be weaponizing the 1st Amendment against the citizens it claims to represent. State-sponsored religion is unconstitutional, it is nowhere to be found in our U.S. Constitution.

Texas, with their voucher program, is currently “prohibiting” me from “the free exercise” of my religion.

A person being taxed by the state to provided financial support for religious teaching that is contrary to their own “sincerely held religious beliefs” is NOT being allowed to freely exercise their religion.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission’s final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don’t harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Edwin Greensage

PII
PII

From: Grace Ukoha <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 09:08:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and well-being of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow, politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Grace Ukoha
Holts Summit, MO

From: Michele Morris <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 09:18:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Michele Morris
[redacted]

From: Sheryl Pace <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 09:20:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Sheryl Pace
Scituate, MA

From: Georgette Dyer <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 09:33:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Georgette Dyer

[redacted]

From: Mark Graham <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 10:02:04 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mark Graham
[redacted]

From: Ken Curtis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 10:02:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Pastor Ken Curtis

[redacted]

From: Lynne Wickey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 10:15:15 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

We only need to look to the Declaration of Independence of the United States of America to read these powerful words: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lynne Wickey

[redacted]

From: Carol Rose <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 10:28:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

As much as Christians believe that the answer to all problems would be the pure, true love of God, we must not try to force others and must allow freedom of choice in their religious practice—as long as it does not hurt others.

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Carol Rose

From: John Parsons <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 10:40:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Hello,

I'm writing to express my total and unwavering support for the separation of church and state. As a non-Christian, I find it fundamental to protecting my spiritual journey and that of everyone in this country. The rise of Christian nationalism in this country truly concerns me, and I urge the commission to support genuine religious freedom for all people and to not privilege Christianity or any form of it over any other religion.

I am opposed to any and all government attempts to mandate religious prayer and observance in public schools, whether that be through requiring religious observance or through school officials and employees influencing students' religious practices, beliefs, or choices.

I am opposed to federal agencies proselytizing their employees, whether that be through emails, pressuring religious conversion, or privileging one religion's holidays over another's.

Lastly, I am staunchly opposed to any attempts to make this nation officially Christian. Doing so would be an egregious violation of human rights. Instead, I support government being neutral towards all religions, so the people of this country can make their own religious choices without government coercion or pressure.

Sincerely,
John Parsons
[redacted]

From: Laurel Burchfield <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 11:34:17 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Laurel Burchfield

[redacted]

From: Tom Shelly <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 11:42:32 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Tom Shelly

[redacted]

From: Frank Descant <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 11:53:26 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I strongly urge that the Religious Liberty Commission's final report will clearly reflect the fact that separation of church and state ensures religious freedom for all Americans and therefore has been critical to the peace and prosperity of the United States.

Our founding fathers created a system of government at a time when religion was an integral part of most countries' governments, including the country we broke away from. They purposely chose to be a secular democracy with a wall of separation between church and state, a very unconventional idea at the time. They knew this would protect religious freedom for all and drive rational, transparent, and fair behavior on the part of citizens and government alike, which would lead to peace and prosperity. And the past 250 years have proven them to be right.

Sincerely,
Frank Descant

[redacted]

From: Stephanie Arthur <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 11:56:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are kept separate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Stephanie Arthur

[redacted]

From: Jose Serrano <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 12:11:25 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Jose Serrano

[redacted]

From: Daniela Soto <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 12:21:42 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Daniela Soto

[redacted]

From: Dan J <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 12:23:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Church-state separation also ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dan J

From: Lacramioara Buxton <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 12:26:24 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lacramioara Buxton

[redacted]

From: Beth Curnuck <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 12:28:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Beth Curnuck

[redacted]

From: Laura Hanks <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 12:36:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Laura Hanks
Portland, OR

From: Debbie Goodman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 12:46:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Debbie Goodman
[redacted]

From: Audrey Prus <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 12:50:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

All of us Christians enjoy our religious freedom to worship at the church of our choice. This country was founded upon religious freedom to do so. I cannot impose my beliefs on other people any more than they can on you. Remember, follow Christ's example in the "Go ye forth…". He didn't push people into his agenda; he led us by examples of compassion and love. I am asking each of you to stop and reflect on what you are doing and how you are going about it. What I have seen lately is a blight against Christianity and has the opposite effect. It's pushing people away from the joy of knowing Christ and is an embarrassment!! Please stop!! If you follow Christ, you love and accept people. Lead by example, not dogma, coercion, attitudes of "mine" is the only religion in America and the world!! Then, The rest of us can graciously go about being a Christian light for others to see. Take these comments very seriously, please.

Sincerely,
Audrey Prus

[redacted]

From: Malcolm Tobias <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 12:50:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Malcolm Tobias
[redacted]

From: Staephen Godfrey <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 13:15:31 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Staephen Godfrey
[redacted]

From: Nancy Friedman <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 13:16:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I'm writing to ask that the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role that church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

I've watched part of Chairman Patrick's presentation of the report and skimmed and read parts of the report. Some parts are unassailable, such as the executive summary's first sentence and third paragraph. So is the fourth paragraph's last sentence. The report, however, rejects the importance of separation of church and state to maintaining religious liberty in this country and to enabling voices of all Americans, including religious voices, to be heard.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. As the report says, the Constitution aims to prevent the government from controlling expressions of faith. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. The government does at times fall short of this goal, such as when a particular Christian concept is enacted through legislation or books that reflect a religion's practice are banned from a public school or library, resulting in the suppression of expressions of faith by those who have a different religious viewpoint. That doesn't mean, though, that we should not keep working to achieve this goal. Separation of church and state is the best way to achieve what the executive summary calls a "rightly ordered relationship" between them.

Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate. Like some other constitutional rights, the phrase "separation of church and state" isn't in the Constitution, but the concept is. It's clear from the Founders' statements and writings and other historical sources that they wanted Americans to be free to worship without government officials, be they legislators, judges or executives, trying to impose their own practices or beliefs on the rest of us.

Church-state separation also protects institutions, including houses of worship, nonprofits, schools and the military, and their members from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference and religious coercion.

This foundational principle has served our nation well for centuries. It's no coincidence that we have moved closer to a "more perfect union" and religion has flourished here like in few other countries.

I urge you to revise or delete those parts of the report that disavow, dismiss or diminish separation of church and state and to recognize it for what it is—a foundational principle that has been and continues to be vital to making this country a great one.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nancy Friedman
[redacted]

From: Laura Anderson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 13:24:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Laura Anderson
[redacted]

From: Rita Wright <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 13:46:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. It was an essential part of our founding and needs to be kept in place.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

To change the norm is to invite back the issues that were present in the colonies where people were burned at the stake and othered because of their beliefs.

Sincerely,
Rita Wright
[redacted]

From: EDWARD BEITZEL <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 13:57:54 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
EDWARD BEITZEL
PII PII

From: Moira Ashleigh <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 14:02:08 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Moira Ashleigh
Owego, NY

From: Annie Morgan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 14:18:06 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Annie Morgan
[redacted]

From: Daniel Morgan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 14:20:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Daniel Morgan

[redacted]

From: Rebekah Morgan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 14:22:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Rebekah Morgan

[redacted]

From: David Troiano <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 14:29:58 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. David Troiano

[redacted]

From: Victoria Martinez <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 14:35:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Victoria Martinez

[redacted]

From: Geoffrey Omoro <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 14:45:13 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Geoffrey Omoro

[redacted]

From: Chelsea Diaz <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 15:18:53 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Chelsea Diaz

[redacted]

From: Rosa Hartwell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 15:20:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Although the Constitution does not have the phrase "separation of church and state" within it, it gives us the right to practice our religion without fear, because the government cannot establish a religion that all must follow or be punished. Please make no change in the constitution.

Sincerely,
Rosa Hartwell
[redacted]

From: Lisa Mandigo <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 15:56:38 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Lisa Mandigo

[redacted]

From: Mike Bostic <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 16:06:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Mike Bostic
[redacted]

From: Andrea yang <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 16:12:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Andrea yang
[redacted]

From: Kimberly Winans <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 16:48:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission;

I believe that the separation of Church and State is of utmost importance ! Our founding fathers did not believe in bridging Church and State because they realized that this would result in religious persecution. Our forefathers escaped from England due to religious persecution. They definitely did not want to repeat history ! In addition, I believe that the Johnson Amendment should be retained ! This ensures the independence of our government and preserves the integrity of our religious institutions. Thank you !

Sincerely,
Kimberly Winans

[redacted]

From: Jonathan Herr <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 16:55:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Jonathan Herr

PII PII

From: Maydelyn Andrade <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 17:19:20 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Maydelyn Andrade

PII PII

From: Sherlyn Bryant <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 17:20:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Church-state separation has protected our religious freedom in our country a long time and I want to see religious freedom continue for all Americans. This is not something that should be changed! The church-state separation plays a vital role in protecting the rights of all people.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Sherlyn Bryant
[redacted]

From: Cavenet Jean <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 17:25:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Cavenet Jean
[redacted]

From: Andrea Keil <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 17:31:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I am 15 years old, and I believe it is important to protect the separation between church and state. The wall between them is not meant to stop people from practicing their faith—it helps protect everyone's freedom to believe differently.

When the government becomes involved in religion, it can create pressure and unfairness for people with different beliefs. Faith should come from personal choice, not from government support or influence.

Please keep the wall between church and state. It protects the freedom of all Americans, including young people like me.

Thank you for listening.

Sincerely,
Andrea Keil
[redacted]

From: Jaime Keil <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 17:49:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

I strongly believe that church and state must remain separate. This separation protects both religious freedom and the rights of all Americans by ensuring the government does not favor or support any one religion.

I oppose using taxpayer money to fund religious activities. Keeping church and state separate helps protect everyone's freedom and preserves the constitutional rights of people of all faiths—or no faith at all.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Jaime Keil

From: Karen Sager <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 17:49:43 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Those who long for theocracy need look no further than Saudi Arabia, Iran, Iraq, Somalia or any Muslim country. Christian theocracy has given us the Crusades, the Inquisition, and here in the US, the Salem witch trials. Any time religion takes over government, it turns into a bloodbath.

"The purpose of separation of church and state is to keep forever from these shores the ceaseless strife that has soaked the soil of Europe in blood for centuries. [Letter objecting to the use of government land for churches, 1803]" — James Madison

Sincerely,
Karen Sager

[redacted]

From: Kate Goff <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 17:56:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

In the Religious Liberty Commission's final report, Americans need you to protect and acknowledge the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for Americans.

Even if your religion is mainstream Christianity, you need to ensure that the government doesn't meddle in your religious beliefs. Governments change, and you don't want the government to ever be able to tell you (or your children and grandchildren) whether you can or can't worship as you choose. The only way to ensure that is to permanently separate state and religion. This is something that our founding fathers understood so well that they literally created our country using this principle.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Think not only of today, but also of the future. We need to ensure church and state separation so that when some politician in the future tries to use religion as a weapon, they won't be able to because of the strong separation of church and state. Don't weaken it.

Sincerely,
Kate Goff
[redacted]

From: Lesley Miller <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 18:13:21 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs Lesley Miller

[redacted]

From: Karen Hoover <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 18:22:30 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Karen Hoover

[redacted]

From: Eileen Cheffee <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 19:19:46 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Religious Library it in the fabric of the USA.
Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Eileen Cheffee

[redacted]

From: Richard Stowell <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 19:28:28 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Richard Stowell

[redacted]

From: Meagen Attebery <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 19:37:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans. The Ten Commandments should not be posted unless you are willing to post all religious pillars /tenets. Students should not have a specific religion forced onto them.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. It allows for the diversity and freedoms that our nation was built upon.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Meagen Attebery

[redacted]

From: Daniel Shannon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 20:32:41 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Daniel Shannon
[redacted]

From: Donna Shannon <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 20:33:47 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Donna Shannon
[redacted]

From: Lis Regula <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 20:57:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I submit this comment as Lis Regula, Co-chair of Ohio Equal Rights, a statewide organization working to ensure equal protection under the law for all Ohioans, and as a scientist, educator, and person of faith who has spent my career building bridges across religious, civic, and advocacy communities.

Religious liberty is one of America's most fundamental constitutional protections—but it is meaningful only when it protects everyone equally. That includes people of every faith tradition, people of minority faiths, and people with no religious affiliation. It also includes ensuring that no one person's or institution's religious beliefs become the basis for denying another person's civil rights, dignity, or equal treatment under the law.

Ohio Equal Rights believes that genuine religious freedom and equal rights are complementary values, not competing ones. Throughout our work, we have partnered with clergy, congregations, and faith leaders from diverse traditions who understand that protecting the rights of LGBTQ+ people, women, religious minorities, and other marginalized communities strengthens—not weakens—our shared commitment to religious liberty. Many of these leaders are motivated by deeply held religious convictions that call them to pursue justice, compassion, and the inherent dignity of every person.

As both an educator and advocate, I have seen how pluralistic communities thrive when government remains a neutral protector of everyone's freedom of conscience rather than favoring one religious viewpoint over another. America's constitutional commitment to religious liberty has allowed an extraordinary diversity of faith communities to flourish alongside one another. Efforts that blur the distinction between religious freedom and religious preference risk undermining that pluralism and leaving minority communities—including religious minorities—less protected. Recent proposals from the federal Religious Liberty Commission have drawn criticism for emphasizing the perspectives of a narrow set of religious viewpoints while giving insufficient attention to the needs and experiences of America's broader religious diversity.

Our nation does not need government to choose which religious beliefs deserve greater protection. It needs government to faithfully uphold the Constitution by protecting every person's right to believe, worship, or refrain from religious practice according to their own conscience.

We therefore urge the Religious Liberty Commission to affirm a vision of religious freedom that is broad, inclusive, and rooted in equal protection under the law. Religious liberty should never be used as a justification for discrimination, nor should civil rights protections be weakened in its name. Instead, our policies should recognize that a healthy democracy depends upon both robust religious freedom and equal justice for all.

Respectfully,

Lis Regula
Co-chair, Ohio Equal Rights

Respectfully,
Lis Regula
Columbus, OH

From: Terry Williams <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 21:53:23 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr Terry Williams

[redacted]

From: Kathy Yohn <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 22:41:49 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

As a life-long church attendee I am very concerned with the direction the current administration is taking regarding separation of church and state. I urge your to ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others. In making statements about the need to protect the expression of Christian beliefs, the current administration appears to be abandoning religious neutrality by singling out one religion for protection over others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Freedom of/from religion was a brilliant premise of our nation's founders and was unique to our democracy. It remains a pillar of that democracy. It must be reflected in the final report of the Religious Liberty Commission.

Sincerely,
Ms. Kathy Yohn

[redacted]

From: Penny Moore <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 23:16:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Penny Moore

[redacted]

From: Kathy Golic <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 23:24:57 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This is ABSOLUTELY A POWER PLAY, NOT A JESUS DRIVEN PLAN. HE WOULD BE SO ANGRY TO SEE YOU GUYS DO THIS, AND IN THE NAME OF CHRISTIANITY. NOT LOVING, NOT EQUAL PROTECTION, NOT RECOGNIZING ALL GOD'S CHILDREN AS DESERVING OF PROTECTIONS. USING HIS HOUSE FOR POWER AND FINANCIAL GAIN AND CONTROL. SHAME ON YOU. YOU WILL DEFINITELY NEED TO REPENT AND ADJUST YOUR WAYS- THEN ASK FOR MERCY.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Kathy Golic
North Bend, WA

From: Tobin Lewis <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Mon, 13 Jul 2026 23:40:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Tobin Lewis
[redacted]

From: Veronica Jenkins <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 2026 01:02:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Recognizing that Church and State, independent of each other, have very distinctive roles, they, therefore, function best as the separate and different entities that they are. When a broader range of History, inclusive of wider eras and experiences are taken into consideration, past history becomes an excellent teacher and predictor of future results of combining church and state.

Sincerely,
Ms. Veronica Jenkins

[redacted]

From: Fish McGill <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 2026 08:45:22 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Fish McGill
Scituate, MA

From: JOSEPHINE TAN <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 2026 10:07:44 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

History is the best witness of the tragedy brought to humanity for that dark period of time when church and state were united...the persecution of people based in their beliefs, bible truth suppression, the inquisition, etc...when the church was given utmost power over public well-being and interest.

Sincerely,
JOSEPHINE TAN
[redacted]

From: James Keegan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 2026 11:53:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

Our Founders wrote and ratified our godless Constitution with its prohibition of religious tests for public office for good reasons and we ignore their wisdom to our peril. To our real and actual peril in cases like the Philadelphia Bible Riots of 1844 where we saw Christians murdering each other in the streets and burning down churches over which version of the Bible was to be used as a reader in the tax-funded schools. When the clearly Constitutional answer was neither. It is exactly that sort of strife the Founders sought to keep from our shores by rejecting the Scriptural doctrine of the divine right of kings and replacing it with the Enlightenment doctrine of consent of the governed as the wellspring from which civil authority flows.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
James Keegan
[redacted]

From: Keith Tse <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 2026 12:44:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Keith Tse

[redacted]

From: Jenn McCullough <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 2026 14:00:39 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Jenn McCullough
Annapolis, MD

From: Aislinn Frye <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 2026 15:28:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Aislinn Frye
[redacted]

From: John Strubhart <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 2026 17:05:07 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. John Strubhart
[redacted]

From: "S. E. Williams" <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 2026 19:12:19 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. S. E. Williams
[redacted]

From: Diane Cook <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 2026 20:04:14 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Diane Cook
Farmington, NM

From: Katherine Cleland <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Tue, 14 Jul 2026 20:46:51 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report includes separation of church and state, and religious freedom!

The separation of church and state protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. We need to make sure the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government and the people do better when they are separate.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Katherine Cleland

[redacted]

From: michael mccarthy <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 15 Jul 2026 08:49:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. michael mccarthy
[redacted]

From: Melinda Richards <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 15 Jul 2026 09:31:36 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

As a psychology professional, I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Melinda Richards
Spring Hill, FL

From: Mark Heron <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 15 Jul 2026 15:54:29 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mark Heron

[redacted]

From: Cynthia Rosenblath <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 15 Jul 2026 18:39:50 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Cynthia Rosenblath
Pena Blanca, NM

From: Susan von Schmacht <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Wed, 15 Jul 2026 18:45:12 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Susan von Schmacht
Watsonville, CA

From: Nancy Wilkinson <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Wed, 15 Jul 2026 19:31:11 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

As a member of a minority religion, I treasure the separation of God and government, which is enshrined in the first amendment's "no establishment" clause. I also believe that parents, and not the school, should select the religion, if any, in which their child will be raised.

Sincerely,
Ms. Nancy Wilkinson

[redacted]

From: Mir Faugno <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 16 Jul 2026 04:02:37 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Mir Faugno
Playa del Rey, CA

From: Steve Hafner <PII>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <PII>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 16 Jul 2026 09:33:59 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Steve Hafner

PII PII

From: Ronald Rose <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 16 Jul 2026 10:37:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Mr. Ronald Rose
[redacted]

From: Ryan Kerrigan <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 16 Jul 2026 11:04:09 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ryan Kerrigan

[redacted]

From: Gayle Raymond <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 16 Jul 2026 12:12:10 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Ms. Gayle Raymond

[redacted]

From: Margo Salone <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT – Protect Religious Freedom
Date: Thu, 16 Jul 2026 12:14:03 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Religious Liberty Commission,

I am submitting this comment to express my opposition to the draft report issued by the Religious Liberty Commission. As someone who believes deeply in the dignity of every person, I urge the Commission to substantially revise its recommendations before finalizing this report.

Please read as the following are exactly my thoughts!!!

This report claims to protect religious liberty, but it does the opposite. This report elevates one narrow set of religious viewpoints while disregarding the rights and safety of others. True religious freedom does not mean using one belief system to supersede the civil rights, healthcare access, or educational protections of people who believe differently or who hold no religious belief at all.

My belief system calls me to protect the freedoms and wellbeing of my neighbors. It calls me to create a society where everyone is treated with equal dignity. I urge the Commission to reject recommendations that would enable discrimination in housing, healthcare, education, and employment and ultimately undermine religious liberty itself. This report should reflect genuine religious pluralism, not a single narrow politically driven perspective that would privilege a select few.

Respectfully,
Margo Salone
Shubuta, MS

From: Dan Dworkin <[redacted]>
To: "RLC (OASG)" <[redacted]>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] PUBLIC COMMENT: Separation of Church and State is Vital
Date: Thu, 16 Jul 2026 17:20:52 -0400
Importance: Normal

---

Dear Members of the Religious Liberty Commission,

Please ensure the Religious Liberty Commission's final report reflects the vital role church-state separation plays in protecting religious freedom for all Americans.

The separation of church and state gives us the right to practice any religion or no religion as long as we don't harm others.

Church-state separation protects religious freedom for everyone—religious and nonreligious people alike. It ensures that the government cannot impose religious beliefs on anyone or favor one religion over another. Our Founders recognized that both religion and government flourish when they are separate.

Separation of church and state guarantees that students and families—not government officials—can make their own decisions about religion and religious education.

Church-state separation protects houses of worship from intrusion by the government, guaranteeing their independence and allowing them to remain free from political control and interference.

Church-state separation protects our public schools by keeping coercive prayer out of classrooms. It ensures schools are welcoming for students of all backgrounds and beliefs.

Church-state separation protects taxpayers from being forced to fund religion. Taxpayer dollars should be used for public purposes that benefit everyone.

Church-state separation ensures equal treatment under the law. The government must serve all people fairly, regardless of what they believe or whether they practice a religion, and taxpayer-funded religious groups must not use religion to discriminate.

Sincerely,
Dr. Dan Dworkin

[redacted]